THREE CENTS

10,000 See $40,000 Fire Peril Scores

Georgetown Warehouse Gutted; 70 Dwellers Nearby Evicted.

A spectacular fire early today destroyed the lumber warehouse of W. P. Galliher & Brothers, Thirtieth and K streets northwest, causing damage estimated at $40,000. Every fire engine in the District was called out in a general alarm to suppress the blaze.

The fire was discovered by Patrolman Ruby Downs of the Seventh Precinct.

Within 14 minutes a succession of alarms were sounded and at 11:50 a general alarm sent all District apparatus racing to the scene.

The first alarm struck at 11:36 p. m., the second was sounded at 11:42, the third at 11:44, the fourth at 11:46 and the general alarm at 11:50. As every District apparatus moved to the blaze, engines from nearby communities in Arlington County moved into the Georgetown firehouse, ready for emergency duty.

Witnessed by 10,000.

A crowd estimated at 10,000 was drawn to the scene. Flames leaped 100 feet above the two-story frame building. The flames could be seen for miles.

J. H. Galliher placed the loss at $40,000.

"The fire got too much of a start on us," said Fire Chief George S. Watson, as he ordered the men to concentrate on saving the dwellings contiguous to the warehouse.

When the firemen arrived the building was a seething mass. After a futile effort to save some of the lumber, the firemen devoted their efforts to preventing the spread of the fire.

Every water plug within a quarter of a mile was put in use. This, shortly, became inadequate.

The Firefighter, District fireboat, was rushed to the docks a few hundred feet away and began pumping operations. Several motor engines also began pumping river water onto the blaze.

Center of Industry.

The area is Washington's most important industrial center. Lumber, coal yards and other plants make up the vicinity. This factor motivated the assignment of considerable apparatus to sprinkling generally establishments.

Sparks from the dried lumber endangered nearby dwellings as well as the coal yard of William King & Sons, which borders the warehouse on the east end. A wall of water was erected between the lumber warehouse and the coal yard.

Fire Chief Watson expressed the opinion that the fire originated on the second floor of the building, where pressed wood for mill work was stored.

J. H. Galliher, the general manager, said he believed the blaze was started by a lighted cigarette dropped by some intruder. He discounted any arson theory.

70 Dwellers Evacuate.

At 12:15 a. m. police were forced to evacuate 70 colored residents of a row of brick houses on the east side of Thirtieth street. Carrying what belongings they could, the residents made their way to the canal bank to watch the fight against the flames.

A crowd of nearly a thousand quickly took possession of a large low building adjacent to the fire. It looked like the bleachers at a ball game as the flaring flames illumined the thickly clustered faces.

Freight cars were scattered here and there along the tracks south of the burning structure. These were also points of vantage for hundreds of onlookers. The glare was visible through a large section of the northwest residential area.

The fire was pronounced under control at 12:35 a. m., by Chief

Parachute Saves Pilot of Glider

Elmira, N. Y., July 23 (AP).—August C. Haller, of Pittsburgh, was forced to make a parachute jump from a glider today when a wing of his motorless ship gave way while he was being towed by an airplane in an "areial train" with two other gliders 1,000 feet above the city.

Although his parachute failed to open until he was scarcely more than 100 feet from the ground, he landed in an open field on the outskirts of the city, uninjured except for bruises and cuts. He is believed to be the second man to make a parachute jump from a glider. Prof. R. E. Franklin, of the University of Michigan, made a forced jump three years ago.

Haller's glider, cut loose from the others before he jumped, was demolished when it landed in a gravel pit about 500 feet from where he came to the ground.

Brazil Accepts U. S. Bid for Trade Pact

Rio De Janeiro, July 23 (U.P.).—Brazil's formal acceptance of the United States' invitation to study bases for a new commercial accord between the two countries was announced by the foreign office today.

Doctor Flies

Liberty, N. Y., July 23 (AP).—Commander R. C. Duncan, a Navy consulting physician, returned to Washington by plane today after a visit to Miss Grace Tully, member of President Roosevelt's secretarial staff, who is recovering from illness. Miss Tully has been staying at her mother's cottage at Roscoe since the first of July.

After examining Miss Tully, he planned to return to Washington, but a thunderstorm delayed his departure. He spent the night at the home of Dr. Victor G. Bourke, Miss Tully's regular physician.

Dr. Bourke said Miss Tully was convalescing. She was Mrs. Roosevelt's secretary during the years that Mr. Roosevelt was governor of New York. Prior to that she was Secretary to Cardinal Hayes.

32-Hour Week For Shipyards Seems Certain

Battle Rages as Johnson Also Raises Pay Level; Labor Accepts.

(Associated Press.)

Administrators of the national industrial recovery act last night appeared disposed to invoke a 32-hour week for the shipbuilding and ship repair industry despite the bitter opposition of shipyard management.

A two-hour conference yesterday between Administrator Hugh S. Johnson and groups representing shipbuilding employers and employes terminated with Johnson insisting on his compromise 32-hour week proposal and the builders denouncing the plan as unfair and economically unsound.

The impasse between Johnson and shipyard employers was considered the most critical of the differences arising since the national recovery act began to function.

U. S. Bids Due Wednesday.

With bids on the Navy's huge building program scheduled to be opened Wednesday, Government officials had hoped to rush through a code of fair competition for the shipbuilding industry with little difficulty.

Instead, a three-day hearing on a code proposed by shipbuilders ended with no promise of compromise between labor and management and three conferences Saturday and yesterday only increased the anger of the shipbuilders, who stood by their original proposal for a 40-hour week and minimum wages of 35 cents an hour in the South and 40 in the North.

Labor demanded a 30-hour week and a minimum weekly wage of $25, citing a provision in the national recovery act stipulating that a 30-hour week be observed on all public building projects "wherever feasible."

Warn of Higher Costs.

The shipbuilders asserted during hearings on their code and at subsequent conferences with Johnson that a working week below 40 hours would increase the cost of naval construction and possibly delay delivery. High Navy officials offered corroborating testimony.

While labor and management remained unyielding, Johnson called both groups to his office yesterday, heard their arguments, and then submitted his own proposal for a 32-hour week and a slight increase in the minimum wage proposed by the employers.

Labor accepted at once. The management asserted the proposal was unacceptable.

Mattern at Fairbanks On Way to New York

Fairbanks, Alaska, July 23 (AP).—Jimmie Mattern, frustrated in a world flight attempt, and his rescue crew arrived here today at 4:30 a. m. (9:30 a. m., E. S. T.) in a plane piloted by Bob Ellis. They planned to fly on to Juneau and later go to Terrace, B. C., where the rescue crew, headed by William Alexander, has a plane. From there they will return to New York.

Roosevelt Returns From River Cruise

Lays Aside All Work on Overnight Trip on the Potomac.

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt returned to the Capital late yesterday after one of his overnight cruises down the Potomac River on the yacht Sequoia.

The small party which accompanied the President included Warren Delano Robbins, Minister to Canada, Mrs. Robins and Miss Marguerite Lehand.

Mr. Roosevelt, recovered from a slight indisposition which kept him confined several days last week, laid work aside during the trip.

Big Campaign To Fill Jobs Opens Today

(United Press.)

President Roosevelt today will open the administration's gigantic and unprecedented campaign to increase mass purchasing power by asking industry to "sign on the dotted line" agreements for uniform higher wages and shorter working hours.

The Chief Executive's address tonight, which he drafted yesterday aboard the yacht Sequoia, will be the signal for such a mass attack on public opinion as this Nation has not seen since the war.

Trains speeding out of Washington last night were bearing to everyone of the country's 5,000,000 employers the agreements they are asked to sign fixing a 35-hour week and a $14 weekly minimum wage for labor, with a $15 minimum wage and a 40-hour week for the "white-collar" worker.

Following the President's opening plea for cooperation, the country will be flooded with literature, with speeches, from the platform, over the radio, through the motion pictures, explaining his objective and that of general, Hugh S. Johnson, recovery act administrator.

Pledge Full Support.

Telegrams continued to pour into the White House and Johnson's office yesterday pledging support. Their burden was:

"We are with you 100 per cent."

Forty newspaper advertisements are being mapped out by advertising agencies. These advertisements will be offered to local committees for underwriting by local groups. The Government will not spend any money in this advertising campaign.

In his message tonight, President Roosevelt will show how purchasing power has fallen far behind production and prices which are feverishly rising. It was this lag which precipitated the depression from which the Nation now is emerging. Unless purchasing power is built up to absorb the goods which industry is piling up so swiftly, there will be another fall, leaders here warned.

Likewise, he will show how wages have been slashed during the last three years and how hours gradually have been increased to the "sweat-shop" levels of several years ago in many cases.

Oil Hearing Today.

Today hearings will begin in one of the key industries which will furnish a real test—oil. Representatives of the industry have been unable to agree on numerous points in the code they submitted. These differences will be carried into the open forum for discussion.

There is not only a major dispute involved between the big companies and the independents, who have submitted a separate code with higher wages and shorter hours, but there are controversies among the major producing companies.

Motor transportation agencies are seeking to formulate bases for codes with representatives of the recovery administration. Deputy Administrator Malcolm Muir was busy with both the bus and trucking companies and with taxicab owners and operators.

Man With 2 Guns Amuck; Wounds 2

Drives Wildly Through Chicago Streets Until Police Catch Him.

Chicago, July 23 (AP).—Two men were wounded and hundreds of persons were terrorized today when a man giving the name of Charles Fester, 29, went on a two-gun rampage and for four hours drove his automobile wildly through the streets, taking pot shots at pedestrians and buildings.

A half dozen squad cars took up the chase and finally arrested Fester after following a trail of broken street lamps and plate glass windows. They found him sound asleep in his car, two revolvers across his lap. At the police station he mumbled about being "on a liquor party" and then went to sleep again.

Raymond Wiora, 29, suffered a bullet wound in the right side. William Pobloski, 30, was struck in the arm.

Mayor Is Drowned Off His Spurting Motorboat

Hudson, N. Y., July 23 (AP).—Mayor Archibald M. Best, 40, drowned today when thrown from a spurting outboard motor boat in the middle of the Hudson River.

Canoeists saw the mayor standing up in a new blue boat which he had launched only a short time before. He was trying to start a stalled engine. Suddenly the engine came to life, the boat jumped forward in a welter of spray, and witnesses saw the mayor fling face foremost over the stern.

Escapes; Dies

Philadelphian Victim of Wounds Received in Kidnap Battle.

Philadelphia, July 23 (AP).—Shot while fighting two men who attempted to kidnap him four days ago, Frank A. McClatchy, 55, real estate broker, of suburban Upper Darby, died tonight in a hospital.

Lured to a sample house by the men on the pretext that they wished to purchase the place, McClatchy was told he was being kidnaped. The men attempted to bind his hands, but McClatchy struck them with his fists and feet. He fell and was shot in the chest.

Police declared the would-be kidnapers originally sought McClatchy's brother, John H. McClatchy, millionaire real estate dealer, who in the years after the World War built up the Upper Dabry section from vacant fields to a thickly-populated community.

Frank McClatchy was given two blood transfusions but failed to rally.

Meanwhile, a nation-wide hunt for the slayers was being conducted, with local, State and Federal authorities cooperating. Police believe their best clew is in fingerprints found on a package containing a roll of rope carried by one of the two men. The search was extended to Arizona and throughout the Southwest on information the men were members of a gang from that section.

Oil Magnate's Family Ready To Pay Ransom

Contact With Kidnapers Likely in 48 Hours; U. S. Takes Charge.

Oklahoma City, July 23 (AP).—Arrangements have been made by the family of Charles F. Urschel, millionaire oil man, snatched from his home last night by two machine gunners, to pay ransom as soon as contact with the kidnapers is established, it was learned authoritatively today.

District Attorney Herzert K. Hyde said he believed word would be received from the kidnapers within 48 hours.

Federal agents took complete charge of the investigation, which was veiled in secrecy.

A rogue's gallery picture was identified as that of the smaller of the two gunmen by Urschell's friend, W. R. Jarrett, who also was abducted, but released an hour afterward early today. Jarrett refused to comment, but his identification was reported to be positive.

Seized in Bridge Game.

Urschel and Jarrett, also a wealthy oil man, were playing bridge with their wives when the two kidnapers entered the sunporch.

No communication from the gangsters who hold Urschel a prisoner had been received late today. All investigators maintained tight-lipped silence concerning leads upon which they were working.

Jarrett said he believed the gunmen were "professionals," were well acquainted with Oklahoma City streets and hoped to leave the impression that Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd, notorious desperado, was involved.

The men made no mention of ransom and treated their victims "like gentlemen," Jarrett, general manager of the Jarrett Petroleum Corporation, said. He was released about 10 miles from Oklahoma City on a country road but said he had "promised the kidnapers to keep quiet" about the exact whereabouts.

Wife Is Slick's Widow.

Mrs. Urschel, who was the widow of the late Tom B. Slick, "king of oil wildcatters," said the kidnapers were "foreigners and professionals."

Urschel is a trustee of the Slick estate. He married Mrs. Slick in St. Louis last October 17. Urschel's first wife was a sister of Slick.

Federal agents were quick to start work on the abduction. The great Urschel mansion today was

American Trouper Cleared in Vienna

Vienna, July 23 (AP).—Charges by a shopkeeper that a woman member of the Amherst Masquers, an American troupe, had stolen several handbags while shopping in his place of business, were dropped tonight when detectives of a police handbag squad said they had caught the real culprit, the wife of a Budapest business man.

Previously the police had searched the rooms of the American woman and demanded that she give up her passport. She refused, but did sign a promise to remain in Austria until the case was closed.

The shopkeeper, much chagrined, set out in search of the woman and her husband after the announcement of the detectives, but learned that they had already left Vienna.

The masquers, including a son and daughter of the late Dwight W. Morrow, played six nights in the historic Schoenbrunn Palace Theater under the auspices of the federal ministry of education and were well received.

Mollisons Injured as Plane Cracks Up in Connecticut After 39 Hours Over Ocean

Associated Press Photos.

Wiley Post Slept Only 20 Hours on World Hop

New York, July 23 (AP).—Wiley Post got only about 20 hours of sleep during the week he toured the world. He obtained five hours' rest at Koenigsberg, East Prussia; four at Irkutsk; six at Ruhlovo, Siberia, and five at Flat, Alaska.

The robot pilot, however, lessened the fatigue, although Post said he couldn't sleep while the plane was moving.

Every time I would doze and drop the stick," he commented, "I would wake up with a start."

The stubby-statured former Oklahoma barnstormer smiled.

"Well, I don't know," he drawled, "I still think I can do it in five days."

Then Balbo said, in Italian:

"I am happy that on my last day in America I have had the pleasure of saying good-by to you—a man whose flight has shown him to have rare courage and ability."

"You're Great," Post Drawls.

Balbo's voice, schooled in the niceties of diplomatic phraseology, contrasted with Post's pleasant low drawl as the American replied:

"I want to congratulate you too. I think you have proved yourself a great general, and a great leader, and I offer my humble, but sincere congratulations."

The two heroes of the air met in the hotel suite where Post had slept for ten hours after his landing yesterday at 10:59:30 p. m. E. S. T. He had completed his trip of more than 15,000 miles in 188 hours, 49½ minutes, lowering by more than 21 hours the mark he and Harold Gatty established in 1931.

On awakening early in the afternoon, Post shaved, donning clean clothing, and motored to Floyd Bennett Field to inspect his plane, the Winnie Mae of Oklahoma.

Fatigue Vanishes.

He said he was "feeling fine—considering" but his bronzed face looked fit and refreshed. He

5 Persons Drown When Boat Upsets

Warren, Pa., July 23 (AP).—Five persons, one a would-be rescuer, drowned today after a rowboat upset in the Allegheny River near Warren.

The dead: Charles Devore, 27, of Warren; Raymond Devore, 7, his son; Marie Devore, 5, his daughter; Mrs. Ella Goodard, 30, Devore's housekeeper; Albin E. Hultberg, 40, also of Warren.

Hultberg, who witnessed the accident, dived into the deep waters and swam toward the four as they struggled in an attempt to clutch the overturned craft.

As he reached the scene, he, too, was seen to go down, drowning before aid could reach him.

Christ's Seamless Coat Is Exhibited

Trier, Germany, July 23 (AP).—Christ's seamless coat, one of the most precious relics of Catholicism, was exhibited today with solemn exercises for veneration in the ancient cathedral here for the first time since 1891.

Among the thousands of pilgrims was Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen, who flew here from Rome, where he went last week to sign the Vatican-Reich concordat.

Many government functionaries attended the impressive ceremony in the presence of Karl Cardinal Schulte and Bishop Franz Bornewasser of Trier, who officiated.

Thousands Suffer As City Swelters

Two Drowned and Four Prostrated; Rains Will Bring Relief Today.

Heat held its clutch on the city yesterday, and, the weather man says, will continue to hold forth until late this afternoon, when thundershowers will bring surcease.

Thousands abandoned sweltering areas yesterday for woods, parks and beaches. Four heat prostrations were reported and two drownings, one in the Tidal Basin and another at Marshall Hall, down the river.

The mercury reached its highest point, 95, at 4:30 p. m. It was a climb from 72 at 5 o'clock in the morning. After dusk yesterday a cool breeze brought relief.

Those prostrated were: Benjamin Frye, colored, 19 months, 1019 Minnesota avenue northeast; Sadie Hammondtree, 42, colored; Peter Brown, colored, 44, 1236 First street southwest, and Frank Piner, colored, 45, 2133 Ninth street northwest. All were treated at local hospitals and declared not seriously affected.

3 Yacht Racers Lost When Gale Strikes Regatta

Penn Yan, N. Y., July 23 (AP). Three yachtsmen were missing tonight as an aftermath of a furious storm which broke over Keuka Lake today, overturning and dismasting many boats in the colorful Keuka Yacht Club regatta.

Five Class A racing sloops and junior racers were upset while being towed by a motorboat. At least two of five star boats racing farther out in the lake overturned and sank.

Boathouses were wrecked, trees uprooted and cottages damaged by the black storm which roared up the narrow Y-shaped lake so suddenly that the yachtsmen had no time to reef for lower sails.

Names of Missing.

The missing:

Mrs. Roosevelt Motors To Albany for Night

Albany, N. Y., July 23 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt arrived here tonight by automobile after driving from Portland, Me. She was accompanied by Miss Lorena A. Hickok of New York.

Mrs. Roosevelt and her friend will spend the night here and leave tomorrow for Chautauqua where Mrs. Roosevelt is scheduled to make a speech Tuesday night.

Couple, Cut and Bruised, Removed to Hospital at Bridgeport.

Run Short of Gasoline and Land in Ditch Near Airport.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 23 (AP).—After conquering the North Atlantic and flying within 60 miles of their goal, the British air aces, Amy and Jim Mollison, crashed their Black Cabin biplane near the airfield here tonight, but escaped with slight injuries. They were taken to the Bridgeport Hospital, where they said they would spend the night.

The couple, who had set out from Pendine, Wales, yesterday in an effort to make a nonstop flight to New York, circled the airport five times in an apparent effort to find a safe landing place. The airport is in the village of Stratford, near here.

After successfully crossing the North Atlantic and speeding down the New England coast, the fliers cracked up at 9 p. m., Eastern standard time, after 39 hours in the air.

Capt. Mollison told a doctor at the Bridgeport Hospital that he had run short of fuel while coming down the coast.

He said he saw the lights of the Bridgeport airport and decided to land there. He said he circled the field five times before he put the plane down.

Lighted for Arrival.

The airport was lighted on the chance that they might halt there and Fred Moller, airport manager, was atop the Administration Building when their ship appeared.

On each of the five circlings the aviators attempted to come down on the regular runways of the airdome without success. Moller was signaling frantically all the while.

On their sixth attempt to land they came down in a drainage ditch some distance from the field. Their biplane nosed over in soft marsh land and both of the fliers were thrown clear of the machine.

Working with pocket lamps, searchers discovered them about 400 feet from the boundary of the airfield.

Suffers Cuts and Bruises.

His wife was lying about 15 feet away, also suffering cuts, but the injuries of neither was serious.

The searchers reached into the smashed plane and cut away enough fabric to fashion stretchers for both of the fliers.

Using these, the Mollisons were rushed to the Bridgeport Hospital.

Hasty examinations by physicians there showed that neither had been seriously hurt. Mollison was found to have a lacerated skull with superficial abrasions on his leg. His 24-year-old wife, the former Amy Johnson, suffered a bruised chest and a lacerated right hand.

"I was so tired I didn't know where I was headed," said Mollison to hospital attendants.

"He couldn't see. He couldn't see," moaned his wife.

First Leg of Flight.

The transatlantic flight was the first leg of a 12,000-mile triangular flight planned by the couple. After arriving in New York they had planned to rest for a short time and then back-track their ocean trail and continue across Europe to Bagdad. Thence they intended to go back to London.

The start of the journey had been long delayed. They had damaged their plane in an attempt take-off at Croyden airport, near London, on June 8. After repairs were

Post Voices Regret At Mollison's Crash

"I am very sorry," he said. "To have come so far and yet to have crashed is distressing."

Manufacturing, Prices, Loans Show Upswing

(Associated Press.)

Signs of improved economic conditions, including increased industrial production, upward movement of commodity prices, larger loans and investments by Federal Reserve member banks and reopening of more unlicensed banks, were reported yesterday by the Federal Reserve Board.

Reviewing business and financial conditions in June, the board said loans and investments of member banks had increased by about $240,000,000.

This represented a growth of about $300,000,000 in holdings of United States securities at reporting banks outside New York City, offset in part by decreases in their other investments and in loans, as well as in loans of New York City banks.

Loans secured by stocks and bonds increased $35,000,000 from May 31 to June 28, while all other loans dropped by $68,000,000.

The number of member banks licensed during the month was 66, bringing the total now open on an unrestricted basis to 5,602.

The board said 1,104 remain unlicensed, but that these have only 5 per cent of the total deposits of member banks.

A survey by the Comptroller of the Currency and the Federal Reserve Board showed that on May 13 a total of 5,500 member banks had deposits of $23,542,307,000 in 30,556,105 accounts.

The average account was $770, with 98.5 per cent of the total having deposits of $2,500 or less.

The physical volume of industrial production increased rapidly during April and May, the board saying in the latter month it was 77 per cent of the 1923-25 average compared with 60 per cent in March.

Wholesale commodity prices, which have been advancing for four successive months, in June reached 65 per cent of the 1926 average as compared with 59.8 per cent in February, the board said, adding the widest price advances have occurred in raw materials.

Gold reserves of the principal European countries were reported to have declined by about $35,000,000 during the month.

Latest reports show England had gold reserves of $922,000,000; France, $3,185,000,000; Italy, $355,000,000; Belgium, $372,000,000; Netherlands, $326,000,000; Switzerland, $374,000,000, and the United States, $3,996,000,000.

Gen. Balbo Heaps Praise on Post

He hastened back from the airport to receive Gen. Balbo, who had been tied up in a traffic jam last night, preventing a meeting at the field when Post arrived.

The Italian air minister told Post he considered him a true comrade and had a "profound admiration for the tireless American."

The general said he had issued orders to his men to receive final instructions tonight as to the exact time for their take-off tomorrow on their homeward route.

"Tonight after 8 o'clock," he added, "my officers and crew will be once more navy men. They will be subject to our full discipline and will not be permitted to leave the hotel."

"Signor Post tells me he can go in his, what you call her, La Winnie, even faster around the world. I believe him."

While the two aviators were talking, Mrs. Post stayed in the background, smiling approvingly as Gen. Balbo and her husband shook hands.

She told newspapermen she was uninformed as to her husband's schedule after he receives the city's formal welcome, Wednesday, in a parade from the Battery to City Hall.

"I don't know anything about our plans," she said. "I heard somebody say we were going home Friday, but I'm not sure."

Asked how she felt at her husband's safe return, she laughed and said:

"I feel relieved. Wiley thought he was lucky to be here because when he had all that trouble in Alaska he was feeling pretty low."

While her husband was still away, Mrs. Post had asserted she would not let him make another world flight. But today she had changed her mind.

"I'd rather he would do something else," she said, "but if he wants to go, he has my permission. I don't mind his flying, but I'd rather he did not do things like this."

Mrs. Post, who still looked tired even though she said she had slept well, passed part of the day looking over the many congratulatory messages received by her husband. Among them were telegrams from Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma, Mayor Blinn of Oklahoma City, and Will Rogers.

She said that, although her husband had been temporarily deafened by the roar of the Winnie Mae's motor, his hearing was rapidly returning to normal. He consumed a hearty breakfast before going to the airport to check over his equipment.

Guarded like a visiting potentate, the Oklahoma flier went into the hanger housing his ship and drove away before most of the crowd at the field knew he was there. With him was Lee Trenholm, his manager.

"Brain Trust" Head and Family Meet

Bombs Wreck Three Homes In Miners' War

Residences of New Union Officials Damaged and Watchman Wounded.

Taylorville, Ill., July 23 (AP).—Five bombs were exploded and a watchman was shot and wounded early today in a renewal of Christian County's coal mine controversy.

Bombs were exploded at the homes of three officials of the Progressive Miners of America, labor union trying to wrest control of the Illinois fields from the older United Mine Workers of America.

The residences were badly damaged, porches torn off, windows shattered and plastering ripped loose. Neighboring residences also were damaged. Bombs also were tossed into two garages.

Charles Deevers, on guard at the home of Jack Stanley, president of Local No. 9, one of the homes bombed, told police that he fired at the automobiles carrying the bombers. The bombers poured 13 buckshot slugs into his body. Doctors said his injuries were serious but not critical.

In addition to Stanley's home, the residence and garage of Leal W. Reese, attorney for the progressives, and the home of Andy Newman, director for the State organization, were targets for the bombs. Both Stanley's and Reese's homes previously had been bombed.

The blasts today brought to 40 the total of bombings in Christian County during the mine difficulties that have extended over a year.

Deevers said he was unable to determine the number of men in the automobile.

More Make Use Of Play Facilities

4,012 Attend Alexandria Grounds for Recreation During Week.

The attendance at Alexandria playgrounds last week totaled 4,012, of whom 2,105 were boys, 1,724 girls and 183 visitors. Almost every day showed an increase over the previous day.

Numerous sports events are in progress at the grounds each day. The first of a series of baseball games will be played today. The boys will have a track meet on Haydon Field Wednesday, when the boys will vote for a harvest queen. The girls will hold a track meet August 9, when they also will vote for a queen.

The public is invited to any of the grounds between 9 a. m. and noon, and from 2 to 6 p. m.

The attendance at the various grounds was as follow: George Mason High School, 344 boys, 184 girls, 26 visitors. Washington Street, 442 boys, 349 girls, 52 visitors. Maury School, 278 boys, 303 girls, 18 visitors. Avalon School, 349 boys, 271 girls, 30 visitors. Windmill Hill, 414 boys, 348 girls, 35 visitors. Parker-Gray (colored), 278 boys, 269 girls, 22 visitors.

Plane Plunges in Bay Before Airport Throng

New York, July 23 (AP).—An airplane piloted by Archie Baxter of Brooklyn, with Alfred Clay of Brooklyn as passenger, plunged into Jamaica Bay tonight in full view of the throng at Floyd Bennet Airport awaiting the Mollisons.

Baxter and Clay escaped with minor lacerations but the ship was wrecked. Coast guard boats put out at once to rescue the men.

Radio Meet in Mexico Snagged on Program

Mexico City, July 23 (U.P.).—Committees of the North American Radio conference were reported tonight to be encountering the greatest difficulty in reaching an agreement on measures to be submitted to the full conference for approval.

Vienna Press Decree Bans Sensationalism

Vienna, July 23 (AP).—The official government gazette today published the text of a new press decree regulating the size and character of type which may be used in newspapers.

Bannerlines must not exceed seven inches in length. Otherwise the publisher is liable to fines up to $350.

Nazi Control Of Protestant Church Voted

German Christians Win Complete Victory, Early Returns Indicate.

Berlin, July 23 (AP).—Although final figures were not ready, it appeared at midnight that the Nazi German Christians had won a complete victory in today's general church elections and that German Protestantism thereby had been delivered into the hands of the Nazi Government.

Pressure Protested.

The elections, in which all persons over 24 years of age possessing Baptismal certificates showing them to be Protestants were eligible to participate, was for the choosing of approximately 400,000 church elders and members of church governing boards. These in turn will select provincial synod delegates who will choose delegates to a national synod. A Reichs bishop will be named by the national group.

Complaints reached the non-Nazi election board from various quarters of undue pressure, threats and actual interference by the Nazi partisans with voters of the other side.

Result Expected.

The board accordingly filed a complaint with an official of the ministry of the interior who had been appointed to superintend the elections "to safeguard their impartiality."

The board claimed that the elections were invalid because of the acts of interference with the freedom of voting.

The issue had been considered hardly in doubt since a speech last night by Chancellor Adolf Hitler, in which he told Protestant Germany that he wanted the results of the election to be in support of the present regime.

Wedding "Lovely," Mrs. Dall States

Newark, N. J., July 23 (AP).—Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, daughter of the President, arrived alone tonight by plane from Chicago and left immediately by bus for New York.

Mrs. Dall, who departed for the East directly after attending the wedding of her brother, Elliott, and Miss Ruth Googins, of Fort Worth, Tex., was not met by anyone at the airport. Her arrival might have gone unnoticed but for the fact that a large crowd had gathered there on the rumor that Dr. Guiseppe Castruccio, Italian consul at Chicago, was on the plane bearing a medal for Gen. Italo Balbo.

Dr. Castruccio did not appear. Then someone recognized Mrs. Dall and she was asked regarding her brother's wedding, in Burlington, Iowa, Saturday. Mrs. Dall said the wedding was "lovely." She was the only member of the Roosevelt family to witness the ceremony.

Tornado Damages Buildings in Arkansas

Plan to Divide Sugar Market To Be Heard

Hearing Set for Aug. 7; Prorata Basis Urged for Industry.

Farm administrators moved yesterday to speed approval of a basic sugar marketing agreement under which the American market would be prorated among domestic beet and cane producers, Hawaii, the Philippines, Puerto Rico, Cuba and the Virgin Islands.

They set August 7 as a tentative date for a formal hearing on the proposed agreement submitted last week by Dr. John Lee Coulter, member of the Tariff Commission, who accepted the assignment of attempting to establish more orderly marketing for the idustry.

Supplementing the proposed general agreement, on which representatives of the producing areas have not fully agreed, the cane and beet refining groups are preparing separate codes of trade practices. These are to be completed by August 1 under present plans.

Dr. Coulter said today he believes an agreement is greatly needed in view of the apparent continuance of the overproduction problem. He explained the prospective supply this crop year is 7,500,000 short tons while the United States market, the principal reliance of the producing area, will absorb about 6,350,000 tons.

He described the present sugar market as "fairly satisfactory," but added that he believed this is due in part to the expectation that an agreement will be reached and approved by Secretary Wallace. He warned that "a collapse in the market would not only ruin those in the sugar industry, but also might have a very bad effect on the general market structure."

Watson, after it had raged for more than an hour.

A few minutes earlier the firemen inside the burning lumber house were forced to flee pell-mell. A cracking of heavy beams told of the imminent crash of the building.

As the firemen appeared victors over the vicious blaze, dozens of colored residents started back to their dwellings adjacent. However, firemen were dubious about permitting them to reenter.

Great clouds of black, billowing smoke succeeded the red glare as the flames began to subside. Water was being pumped from more than two score high pressure hose lines into the deep pall shrouding the burned building.

Several times rescue squadmen penetrated the smoke-enshrouded structure. Each time they returned, figures of charcoal, to report some blazes still crackling inside.

Confined to Galliher's.

Fire officials early today said the fire was entirely confined to the lumber establishment. Damage by smoke and water damage, is believed to have affected the nearby dwellings and industrial plants.

The lumber yard is a long, oblong structure. It is about the height of the average three-story and attic house.

For months, Betty Slick, pretty 16-year-old daughter of Mrs. Urschell, has been under surveillance for fear she might be kidnaped. Today, she was not allowed to leave the home.

Betty told investigators she had noticed two men answering the description of the kidnapers following her car as she returned from Tulsa to Oklahoma City recently. She said they rode in a blue sedan bearing a Chicago license. Noticing the same pair here later in the week, she had not thought the incident worth reporting to her mother.

Officers said they believed the kidnapers intended to abduct Betty, or one of Urschel's children, but decided to take the oil man instead when they found the children away from home.

Kidnaping Laid To Grandmother

Seattle, July 23 (AP).—Mrs. Frances Zioncheck, mother of Representative Marion Zioncheck, was charged with kidnaping her 12-year-old granddaughter, Dorothy Kneeland, in a warrant sworn out today by C. V. Kneeland, her son-in-law and the child's father.

Former Supreme Court Justice Adam Beeler, who acted for Kneeland, said Mrs. Zioncheck had taken the child to Canada. The girl's mother died three years ago, after she had obtained an interlocutory decree of divorce and custody of the child.

Later, in a bitterly-fought action in superior court, the father won the custody of his daughter from the grandmother. The decision was upheld by the State Supreme Court.

Religion Will Bring Power, Says Minister

Harrisonburg, Va., July 23 (AP).—Religion is the most worthwhile thing in life, Dr. R. E. Tulloss, president of Wittenberg College, of Springfield, Ohio, declared today at the closing session of the Virginia Lutheran Conference at Massanetta Springs. The final programs were attended by more than 1,000 persons.

"Religion," said Dr. Tulloss, "brings peace power, which makes me believe that I am captain of my soul. Of all that religion gives, the greatest is growth. Religion is your struggle toward God."

Moderator Calls For More Religion

New York, July 23 (AP).—Dr. John McDowell, recently elected moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., called on church people today for "more religion in terms of the spirit, teaching and service of Christ and less controversy."

Delivering his first sermon in the Metropolitan area since his election, Dr. McDowell said:

"It is still more necessary to help the soul that sins and suffers than to assert our peculiar notions about the metaphysical aspects of religion."

If democracy is to succeed in America, he asserted, there must be cooperation instead of competition.

Latin Nation Diplomats to Honor Bolivar

Ceremonies Today Honor Great Liberator of Pan-America.

Representatives of the 21 American republics will gather today at the Pan-American Union to pay honor to Simon Bolivar, immortal South American liberator.

At ceremonies presided over by Minister J. Varela, of Uruguay, acting chairman of the union governing board and senior member of the entire Diplomatic Corps, they will place a wreath at the base of "the liberator's" statue in the union.

Messages from the presidents of nations which trace their independence directly to the campaigns of Bolivar will be read by the chiefs of missions of those countries in Washington.

The messages are from President Salamanca, of Bolivia; Claya Herrera, of Colombia; Martinez Mera, of Ecuador; Harmodio Arias M., of Panama; Benavides, of Peru, and Gomez, of Venezuela.

Besides these messages, the Spanish Ambassador, Dr. Juan Francisco de Cardenas, will deliver an address.

Following the ceremony the diplomats will be guests at a luncheon given at the union by Minister Pedro Arcaya, of Venezuela, which claims Bolivar as a son.

The minister of Ecuador, Dr. Gonzalo Zaldumbide, will deliver an address commemorative of the life of Bolivar this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the George Washington University before a special session of the university's conference on Hispanic-American affairs.

William H. Oswald, as file clerk, will have a full-time job. He is a nephew of W. Woodin Hanly, member of the Democratic State Central Committee for Allegany County. Mr. Hanly is a first cousin of Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin.

Miss May Elder Dies Following Short Illness

Staunton, Va., July 23.—Miss May Elder, daughter of the late Thomas C. and Annie Fitzhugh May Elder, and prominent resident of Staunton for many years, died here late last night after 10 days' illness.

Surviving are two sisters, Misses Grace and Florence Elder, of Staunton; a brother, Thomas C. Elder, of Washington, D. C., and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 10:30 a. m., from the Elder residence, conducted by the Rev. J. J. Gravatt. Burial will be in Thornrose Cemetery.

Drunk at Wheel, Law Saves Him

Waynesboro, Va., July 23.—A liquor case unique in the history of prohibition enforcement here was brought before Judge A. C. Kimler in city police court yesterday. The defendant, J. P. Swink, was charged with operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

G. Milnes Austin, attorney for the defendant, established that Swink was at the wheel of a car being towed by a taxi when arrested. Attorney Austin then employed two definitions from the motor vehicle code of Virginia to win his case. The first defined an "operator" as a person in "physical control of a motor vehicle" and the second interpreted a "motor vehicle" as being "one which is self-propelled."

The charge was reduced to "plain drunk" and Swink was fined $5.

5 Masked Men Hold Up Club Dance, Rob 93

Wait for Fainting Women to Revive, Then Take $44,000 in Loot.

Chicago, July 23 (AP).—Eighty-two guests and eleven employes, surprised as a dance was concluding early today at the Olympic Golf and Country Club, surrendered $14,000 and jewelry valued at $30,000 to five masked robbers who held possession of the club for 40 minutes.

The bandits, with handkerchiefs over the lower parts of their faces, forced their way into the club in suburban Wheeling at 3:30 a. m.

Made to Lie Down.

Half of those present were women, gathered for a dinner dance. The robbers herded the victims to the middle of the dance floor and made them lie down. Attendants then were rounded up.

J. C. Thompson, club manager, attempted to crawl behind a counter for a gun he had hidden, but the leader of the robbers slugged him with the butt end of a sawed-off shotgun, knocking him unconscious.

Several women fainted and the robbers suspended operations long enough to obtain water and revive them. They then proceeded to take $2,100 from the club safe which Thompson, who had been revived, was forced to open. Another blow across the face from a gun refreshed his memory after he had pretended ignorance of the combination.

All Phone Wires Cut.

The guests lying upon the floor were forced to throw their cash, wallets and jewelry into a pile. Those who were remiss were kicked and otherwise maltreated.

Wires to all telephones were cut before the robbers departed. The quintet evidently had friends outside waiting for them in an automobile. Suburban police after scouring the district for several hours said that no trace of the robbers had been found.

Roland C. Stemple's Funeral to Be Today

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., July 23.—Funeral services will be held here tomorrow for Roland S. C. Stemple, whose body will be taken to Kingwood, W. Va., for burial. Mr. Stemple was a conductor on the Western Maryland Railway for a number of years. He was a member of the Patriotic Order, Sons of America, and the Junior Order United American Mechanics here.

Besides his wife, Agnes Stemple, he is survived by two sons, Victor and Franklin; two brothers, Tilden and Ernest, of Kingwood, W. Va., and a stepdaughter, Katherine Slider.

Capital Man Expires In Michigan Hospital

Special to The Washington Post.

Saginaw, Mich., July 23.—John H. Dwight, of Washington, died suddenly this afternoon at the Omer Hospital, Omer, Mich.

Mr. Dwight had been spending the summer at Tawas Beach. He had lived in Washington for the past two years at the Shoreham Hotel since his retirement as an executive of the General Motors Corporation in 1927. He was 51 years of age, and is survived by his wife, Olive Mitchell Dwight and one daughter, Miss Mary Dwight.

A report reached Gibson Landing that two other men were missing, but this could not be confirmed. State police and shocked yachtsmen had not found any of the bodies late tonight, although they grappled with the aid of powerful lights.

Chicago, July 23 (AP).—Lake squalls capsized several sailboats and caused at least one drowning today as a sudden shift of wind brought rain and relief from excessive heat.

Coast Guardsmen rescued nine persons who were aboard toppled water craft.

A sandstorm, kicked up by the swirling wind, struck the World's Fair grounds. Three injuries were reported.

Herschel Rhodes, 12, of Gary, Ind., carried with his 14-year-old brother out into Cedar Lake in an old boat to which they were clinging when the squall struck, drowned. Mrs. H. A. Rhodes, the mother, rescued the older son.

made they were forced to wait for favorable weather.

When they left Pendine yesterday morning there was a brilliant sun and a calm breeze. As Mollison came to the field there, he said the long three-cornered trip might be "my last spectacular flight."

Mrs. Mollison, wearing white overalls and carrying a lipstick as her only baggage, termed the forthcoming journey "the greatest adventure of my life."

For food they took a few sticks of barley sugar, some raisins and a vacuum flask of coffee.

Their plane was virtually a flying gas tank for space for fuel had been in every possible corner. The machine was built to develop a maximum speed of 133 miles an hour and its maximum cruising range was estimated at 6,000 miles.

Vigilantes Kill Bandit, Make Two Prisoners

After All-Night Manhunt in Illinois, Pursued Thugs Are Cornered.

Yorkville, Ill., July 23 (AP).—An all-night manhunt by vigilantes was climaxed today with the slaying of a bank robber and imprisonment of his two companions.

The dead man was unidentified and his companions refused to give their names, but Sheriff Martin Hextell said he was convinced that the men were all Chicago gangsters, since they asked for a Chicago lawyer.

Throughout the night Kendall County's newly organized antibank robbery vigilantes tramped woods and cornfields following footprints under direction of the sheriff.

Find Loot Intact.

Within a half hour after the $300 robbery yesterday of the Millbrook State Bank, 150 of the vigilantes were scouring Kendall County highways by automobile and afoot.

Two miles south of Millbrook they found the bandit car, overturned, and the loot intact. The trio had fled to nearby woods. The posse surrounded the place and a few minutes later captured one of the group. The others penetrated deeper into the woods.

Follow Footprints.

At dawn the field was searched but again the pair had eluded the posse during the night. Their tracks were plainly visible, however, and the posse followed the footprints for about seven miles before sighting the men.

When they failed to halt Deputy Sheriff Louis Olson, of Hinkley, opened fire with a shotgun, killing one of the men.

New Community Band Formed in Falls Church

The Volunteer Fire Department Band of Falls Church has been disbanded and in its place a new fire department and community band has been organized with Joseph Mitchell as president.

F. A. Carpenter has been named leader of the band of 28 pieces. W. A. Fravel of East Falls Church has been elected secretary and the members of the band are: Burton Dixon, Harvey Imley, I. C. Feusted, J. W. Cole, C. J. Parker, E. K. Jones, Bernard Hanshaw, A. H. Lester, H. C. Geering, J. G. Adzema, sr., J. D. Adzema, jr., Roger Ervin, H. R. Sparrow, P. A. Bowbeer, G. H. Robertshaw, H. E. Fireman's Training School Announced

Special to The Washington Post.

Waynesboro, Va., July 23.—Chief J. Guy Rusmiselle, of the Waynesboro Fire Department, has been notified by the Virginia League of Municipalities that a firemans' training school will be established in Staunton this fall. This school will be similar to the schools conducted throughout the State for police officers.

Regular classes will be in charge of fire fighting specialists, who are now being trained in national and State schools organized for this purpose.

Local fire officials plan to petition the council to defray the expenses of the members of the companies here at the school.

Cherrydale Volunteers Hold Carnival Aug. 1

The Cherrydale Volunteer Fire Department holds its seventeenth annual carnival beginning Tuesday, August 1, and continuing through that week. The event this year will be staged on the vacant property opposite the firemen's hall on the Lee highway.

William D. Topley, general chairman in charge of the program, promises many feature events. He is being assisted by a committee of the ladies' auxiliary, headed by Mrs. Mazzie Shaw, the president. Other members of the committee are Mrs. Lynn Newlon, Mrs. Grace Schmeckel and Mrs. Rhoda Kemp.

Admr. Von Schroeder, German Hero, Is Dead

Berlin, July 23 (AP).—Admiral August Ludwig von Schroeder, 79, who was popularly known as "the lion of Flanders," died here today. Although he retired in 1912, when he was raised to the nobility, he organized and commanded the marine corps occupation of Flanders during the World War.

He was decorated with the Order Pour le Merite in 1915 and after the war was president of the German Officers Association. He was born July 17, 1854.

Officials Seek Federal Study Of Tax System

Leaders at Chicago Meet Told of Breakdown in Collections.

Chicago, July 23 (AP).—Mayors, State and city officials, political scientists and bankers today ended their conference on municipal finances with the recommendation that a Federal commission be established to examine the existing tax structure.

A resolution adopted recommended that the commission be made up of representatives of the Federal, State and local governments and be empowered "to examine the whole existing structure of taxes and revenues, National, State and local; the extent of unnecessary overlapping taxation; the appropriateness of the present division of functions of government; and to suggest such rearrangements and reasonable interrelation of the functions and taxes as present-day facts may demand."

Dykstra Offers Plan.

C. A. Dykstra, city manager of Cincinnati, in presenting the resolution, said:

"The tax problem is acute today. The United States has grown up. But we have not readjusted the tasks assigned to our governments, nor the methods of paying for the work. The result is the breakdown of governmental machinery. The confusion will continue as long as units of government fail to coincide with natural economic and social boundaries."

Regarding municipal tests, the conference recommended: That efforts be made to reduce the need for short-term borrowing by synchronizing the taxing year with the fiscal year, by collecting taxes in monthly or quarterly installments and otherwise; that legislation be sought to place self-liquidating short-term municipal obligations on more advantageous terms in dealing with the Federal Reserve system and all its member banks; and that with respect to long-term debt in those "relatively few cases where no other remedy is available, legal machinery should be provided by Federal legislation for the emergency, which will enable local political subdivisions of government, under the supervision of the courts and with adequate safeguards, to arrange for the composition of their debts with the holders of their obligations."

Urge Strict Collection.

The conference proposed that the problem of tax delinquency be met by "more intelligent and forceful administration of existing tax laws; by discouraging the trend, observable in some States, to enact legislation to extend time for paying taxes, and to reduce or waive penalties for nonpayment; practices tending to postpone payment by those who have funds and might otherwise pay promptly, and by clearer and more understandable reporting of the activities of government and organized efforts to improve the spirit of cooperation among taxpayers."

Jurymen Convict 10 in Oil Frauds

Former Italio Petroleum Co. Aids to Be Sentenced in California Case.

Los Angeles, July 23 (AP).—A United States District Court jury today convicted 10 of the 14 former officials of the Italo Petroleum Corporation on charges of using the mails to defraud. Sentences will be passed Friday.

Alfred G. Wilkes, former vice president and general manager of the Italo concern; E. Bryson Siens, former president of Brownmoor Oil Co., and an Italo director, and William J. Cavanaugh, assistant general manager of Italo, were convicted on two counts of using the mails to defraud and one count of conspiring to use the mails to defraud.

Maurice C. Myers, Italo attorney and trustee of the stock; Fred Shingle, president of the brokerage firm of Shingle-Brown & Co., and syndicate manager for Italo, and Horace J. Brown, partner in the Shingle-Brown firm, each was convicted on one count of using the mails to defraud. Those convicted on one count of conspiring to use the mails to defraud were John M. Perata, former president of Italo; Paul Masoni, former secretary, John McKeon and Robert S. McKeon.

Honest Hats

Federal Trade Commission to Protect the Men From Buying Made-Overs.

(Associated Press.)

The Federal Trade Commission has set itself up as a protector of men who do not ask for what they want when they ask to see a hat.

It issued an order requiring nine New York hat companies to stop selling made-over felt hats for new.

Aside from the damage to companies which really deal in new hats, the commission found that it must prevent merchants from selling the made-over product for new.

The reason given was that the "invariable custom of men when buying hats is to ask for a 'hat' and never ask for a 'new hat.'"

Men connected with four large chain store organizations selling men's hats in New York and other cities and the buyer of men's and women's hats for a chain organization operating 1,472 stores testified they could not recall a single instance in which a man buying a hat in any of the stores asked for a "new hat." They simply asked for a "hat."

To check up on the testimony, the commission called 12 men at random, without telling them what it was all about. All said they had always asked simply for a "hat" and none knew there was such a business as renovating hots.

Service Men Drink 'Er Down as Walter Reed Opens First Bar in Government Hospital

Taproom at Walter Reed Hospital where patients and doctors rub elbows quaffing new legal brew at first bar to be constructed on Government hospital grounds.

Institution's Popularity Is Expected to Grow by Leaps and Bounds.

By John J. Daly.

A bunch of the boys were scooping 'em up in the Walter Reed saloon;
Back of the bar, in a khaki shirt, stood a sergeant with mighty paws,

Not only that, but it's the first bar, and the finest bar, erected so far on Government hospital grounds.

There, to the swaying music that comes in over the radio, the boys gather each night—until taps, or until they tap the last keg of beer—and make merry.

It is quite unlike the old Malumute saloon, made famous by Robert W. Service, Dangerous Dan McGrew, and the lady that's known as Lou; but the bar out at Walter Reed has all the old earmarks save, perhaps, sawdust on the floor.

Doughboys, field artillerymen, mule skinners, quartermasters, old Army men and new Army men, patients and orderlies, lock arms in the Walter Reed bar and toast all branches of the service.

Located in the Post Exchange, the salon de saloon at Walter Reed is a queer combination of ancient and modern bars. One half the furniture saw service in preprohibition days and the other half is the latest model bar fixture, with electrical refrigeration, and a place under the bar to keep four barrels of beer going at once—full blast.

With their feet on the brass rail, patients and the enlisted personnel of Walter Reed resurrect the old army songs, and occasionally burst into the rollicking refrain of that never-to-be-forgotten ditty,

"Step up to the bar again,"
Said General Carrigan—
Heigh-o, Heigh-o,
Drink them all down.

"I'm all shot to ribbons,"
Said Corporal Gibbons—
Heigh-o, Heigh-o,
Drink them all down.

The bar has been doing duty for only a few days. It holds the distinction of being the only bar of its kind in America.

Naturally, when the news gets abroad that patients of Walter Reed Hospital are enjoying a privilege not yet extended to other hospitals—Mount Alto, for instance—there is bound to be a loud yell. That is to be expected, so the officials out Walter Reed way are saying nothing for publication.

It can readily be surmised that the Veterans' Bureau is mighty apt to be swamped with requests for a change in locations, boys down at Base No. 1, Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Tex., asking for quick removal to Walter Reed.

Then, too, there is the possibility that no one will ever get well at a hospital furnishing beer—the only admonition being against 3.2 many.

It must not be surmised from this that there is riotous living at Walter Reed. The beer is not free.

The same old Army discipline is still in effect; the same sentry duty is done, day and night, and the sawbones of the Army are just as busy as ever, but—the bar is going full tilt, and the boys who are able to walk up to it and put their feet on the brass rail are having a grand old time.

"What'll you have, sergeant?"
"What've they got, corporal?"
"Light and dark."
"I'll take the same."

Now these are the simple facts in the case, and I guess I ought-a know,
For a soldier guy with chevrons on was just a-telling me so,
That, back of the bar, in a khaki shirt, is a sergeant with mighty paws,

Texas Coast Escapes Force Of Gulf Storm

Tropical Disturbance Fades at Sea; Freeport Damage Light.

Houston, Texas, July 23 (AP).—A tropical disturbance, its force largely spent in the Gulf of Mexico, struck the Texas coast between Port Arthur and Port O'Connor with torrential rains and a high wind early today.

Damage was slight, however, and residents of the area, warned of the approach of the storm days in advance, settled back to normalcy tonight.

A 60-mile an hour wind blew down signs and tore shingles from some roofs at Freeport, in the vicinity of which fifty persons were killed by a hurricane last August. All save about 500 residents had vacated their homes in fear of another serious blow.

Houston and Galveston, on the fringe of the disturbance, received heavy rainfall and a wind that reached a velocity of 26 miles an hour. Port Arthur, on the coast to the east of Galveston, recorded a rainfall of 7.54 inches during the squally weather that prevailed on the Gulf front over a 200-mile area.

The heavy rains benefited truck crops. Farmers said they expected little damage to cotton and rice.

Henry Roosevelt Visits Naval Base

Awaits Aboard Cruiser to Make Inspection Today at Norfolk Yard.

Norfolk, Va., July 23 (AP).—Surprising naval district officials, who were not expecting him until tomorrow, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Henry L. Roosevelt arrived in Hampton Roads this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock aboard the cruiser Raleigh.

Mr. Roosevelt will spend tomorrow inspecting the naval operating base and the Norfolk Navy Yard, and is expected to leave about 5 o'clock for Charleston, S. C., the second stop on the inspection trip, which will take him to the West Coast.

Because today was Sunday, Mr. Roosevelt was not greeted with gun salutes, and he sent a message ashore that he would remain on the Raleigh tonight, making his first official appearance tomorrow when he is welcomed formally by Rear Admiral A. L. Willard, commandant of the district.

Balbo Punctures Anti-Fascism Myth

Wires Mussolini Armada's Reception Gives No Sign of Ill Feeling.

Rome, July 23 (AP).—In a report wired to Premier Mussolini today, Italo Balbo, Italian air minister, said the existence of antifacist sentiment abroad was a mere myth which was exploded by the enthusiastic welcome his squadron received in America.

He declared that there was no sign of such a feeling anywhere, but that on the contrary Italians and Americans alike gave the fliers the most hospitable greeting.

The man who probably will become Italy's first air marshal on his return, devoted considerable space in the report to warm appreciation of President Roosevelt's cordiality and character.

New Spanish State Aid Formerly Served in U. S.

Madrid, July 23 (A.P.).—The official gazette today announced the appointment of Antonio de la Cruz Marin as under secretary of state. He now is counsellor of the Spanish Embassy at Berlin, and formerly served as consul in Chicago, St. Louis and Norfolk, Va.

Atlanta Wages War On Numbers Game

Balked on Bond Sales Figures, Operators Using Butter Receipts.

Atlanta, July 23 (AP).—Authorities led by Solicitor General John A. Boykin are waging a fight on lottery rackets in Atlanta and thus far 140 indictments have been returned by the Fulton County grand jury.

Boykin says the chief vehicle of the racketeers has been a "numbers game" in which tickets were sold that entitled the buyer to guess the total of bond sales each day on the New York Exchange.

Participants had about one chance in one thousand to guess the exact number and even if they chanced to be right, the lottery operators evaded the pay-off in one way or another, the solicitor general said.

Accordingly, he appealed to the three daily newspapers of the city to omit the exact figures and print them only in round numbers.

The papers complied but now Boykin has found the lottery men have turned to the daily receipts of butter as a basis for the "numbers game."

Lindbergh May Map Out Iceland Route

Gothaab, Greenland, July 23 (U. P.).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh said tonight that he and his wife might fly on to Iceland on their mapping tour but would not continue to Europe because of the lateness of the season.

Meanwhile, he said he would cooperate with the Greenland government in making a series of flights to explore the Greenland coasts—and perhaps the inland ice barrier—when weather permits.

Many Casualties Result As Hindu Tribes Clash

New Delhi, India, July 23 (U.P.). Many casualties occurred in severe fighting between the upper and lower Mohamand tribes northwest of Peshawar, government advices said today.

Fifteen hundred upper Mohamands attacked the Hamalzai Clan and razed three Hamalzai villages. The fighting was about 40 miles from Peshawar.

Keenan Urges Chicago Unite In Crime War

Assistant to Attorney General Cites Limits on U. S. Authority.

Chicago, July 23.—(AP).—Coordination of all local efforts in an anti-crime campaign was urged tonight by Joseph B. Keenan, director of the Federal Government's Anti-Racketeering Campaign.

The special assistant to Attorney General Homer S. Cummings said in an address there was no intention of usurping the law enforcement functions of States and local communities.

Saying that the Justice Department recognizes the existence of "a veritable revolt against orderly Government" among a certain group, Keenan promised Federal action would be directed for the time not toward seeking the cause but in effecting a cure for lawlessness.

He said he counted on the full cooperation of all law enforcement agencies of the United States Government, but the basic remedy must be found in community action.

U. S. Power Limited.

"The Federal Government," he said, "has the privilege and duty only of enforcing its own laws, so it must be realized that the design of the Department of Justice at this time does not include any plan to attempt generally to preserve the peace in each community included in every one of the 48 States of the Union.

"The Federal Government has no such jurisdiction and it does not intend to usurp the authority of others, nor in any manner to relieve local authorities of their privileges and obligation of enforcing various laws of the several States."

Wants a Scotland Yard.

Saying the United States has no central agency, comparable with Scotland Yard, in England, through which the various law enforcement organizations can unite fully in their common purpose, he continued: "So it is apparent that there undoubtedly is a need for some central body of authority in an orderly manner to lend such assistance to the local authorities to meet these conditions.

"The problem of devising a plan whereby the Federal Government can best perform this function is a serious one, and, naturally, requires a substantial amount of study."

Charity Baseball Contest Nets $44

In the name of charity, Takoma A. C. and the Old Timers met on the baseball diamond yesterday afternoon in Silver Spring, Md. The Montgomery County Social Service profited to the amount of $44.50, a doctor bill and the umpire's fee, and the Old Timers were humiliated, 18 runs to 3.

A crowd, estimated at 157 to 169, witnessed the striplings' merciless victory and booed lustily their triumph.

Al Thomas, Takoma Park policeman, originated the idea for the game, which may be an annual event. Sergt. Leroy D. Snyder, county policeman, is manager of the winning team and Jack King rounded up and managed the opposition. Pop Scherger was the gateman. Curly Cross, who had planned to shine at bat and field, was present as a spectator only. He suffered a broken nose in practice last week.

Racketeers Place Bomb in Brewery

Chicago, July 23 (AP).—A 10-pound nitroglycerine bomb was found today in the engine room of the Manhattan Brewery. Police said they believed the bomb was placed there because of failure of hoodlums to "muscle in" on distribution rights for the company.

The brewery, owned by a group of Chicago business men headed by Postmaster Arthur Lueder, has been operating only a short time. Lueder told police that repeatedly hoodlums had attempted to procure distribution rights and that the company refused them.

The bomb, constructed of an Army canister, was found spluttering by a fireman in the engine room. He tossed it into a bucket of water.

Samuel W. Brownlee's Final Rites Are Held

Special to The Washington Post.

Waynesboro, Va., July 23.—Funeral services for Samuel W. Brownlee, prominent cattleman of this community, who died at his home Friday night after an illness of several months, were held today. He was 63, and had lived his entire life in this section, where he had many friends.

He is survived by four brothers, J. I. and C. W., of Lyndhurst; William, of Ladd; J. A., of Portsmouth; and four sisters, Mrs. Bert Coyner and Mrs. A. P. Finter, of Waynesboro; Miss Dora Brownlee, of Lyndhurst, and Mrs. William Hizer, of Middlebrook. He was unmarried.

One Killed, Six Injured In Railroad Wreck

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 23 (AP).—One man was killed, six injured and three persons reported missing after a wreck of the Oneonta Express, of the Delaware & Hudson Railroad, this afternoon at Avoca.

Twenty cars were derailed and four telescoped, upsetting a trestle and part of the tipple of the Langcliffe colliery of the Kehoe-Berge Coal Co.

Movie Moguls To Defy Sound Men on Strike

Producers Offer Jobs to All Men Capable of Technical Work.

Hollywood, July 23 (AP).—The "help wanted" sign was posted in front of 11 motion picture studios today as producers decided to throw down the gauntlet to striking sound technicians, whose walkout at midnight Saturday stopped all production and threatens to throw the 27,000 workers in the industry here out of employment.

Newspaper advertisements were ordered inserted in tomorrow's editions, offering employment "for men capable of doing any kind of sound work in connection with the production of motion pictures."

Representatives of the producers said they would replace the 665 strikers tomorrow and continue production "if humanly possible."

Heads of the sound departments of the studios affected by the strike called their men into conference today and offered them their jobs when the studios open tomorrow morning, advising them the jobs would be offered to anyone else qualifying in the event they did not appear on time.

Harold V. Smith, business agent for the sound technicians, said the only possibility of sympathetic strikes by other organized craftsmen in the event the sound men actually were replaced by nonunion workers.

Pat Casey, representing the Motion-Picture Producers and Distributors of America, said attempts to deal with the striking sound technicians had been futile.

Roosevelt Sends Emperor Greeting

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt yesterday sent birthday congratulations to the Emperor of Ethiopia, whose son-in-law, Ras Desta Demtu, was a White House luncheon guest last week.

At the same time, Wilbur J. Carr, acting Secretary of State, thanked the Government of Lithuania for giving a national funeral to Stephen Darius and Stanley Girenas, who were killed recently on a flight from the United States to their native Lithuania.

The President's message, to Haile Selassie I at Addis Ababa, said:

"I send you my most hearty congratulations on this birthday anniversary and my best wishes for your majesty's health and happiness for many years to come.

"It has been indeed a gratification and a sincere pleasure to receive his highness the Ras Desta Demtu on his mission of good will from your majesty to me, and I am confident that this visit will do much in promoting the good understanding and in cementing the firm bonds of friendship between Ethiopia and the United States of America."

Pollard Forecasts Virginia Wet Vote

Governor Says He'll Urge Early Election; Assembly Meets August 17.

Tahoe Tavern, Calif., July 23 (AP). Gov. John G. Pollard of Virginia said here today he expects voters of his State will favor repeal of the eighteenth amendment at a special election to be set by the August 17 special session of the Legislature.

Gov. Pollard said he will recomend that the Legislature set an early date for the election in view of what appeared to be demands throughout the State for prompt action.

He said he previously had hoped enough States would act to decide the repeal question so that the expense of a special election in Virginia could be avoided.

Launderers Claim Silk 'Undies' Hurt Business

Portland, Oreg., July 23 (AP).—Women's silk "undies" have all but ruined the laundry business, representatives of seven Portland laundry companies set forth when they petitioned the city council for a reduction in their license fees.

"New styles eliminating frills, ruffles and matter requiring skilled ironers," the laundrymen said, have taken away from them the most profitable part of their business. They asked the fee of $7.50 a quarter be reduced to $2.50.

Bomb Shakes Home Of Austrian Governor

Vienna, July 23 (AP).—The windows and the glass-inclosed veranda of the home of the vice governor of lower Austria were shattered today by the explosion of a bomb. An iron balustrade also was torn loose.

A semiofficial communique described the bombing as a "National Socialist boyish prank." The house was unoccupied and no one was injured.

Announcement Due Today on Public Works

(Associated Press.)

The first big batch of Federal public building projects under the Government's program to provide jobs for the unemployed will be announced today by the Cabinet board in charge.

While the total cost of the projects has not been announced, the board recently approved a partial Federal building program involving about $35,000,000. The President is understood to have made some cuts in it, however.

Allocations already have been made for about $85,000,000 worth of Federal construction, but most of it was for reclamation projects and small repairs or improvements to existing plants.

The public works administration said yesterday that New York and Utah would lead the Nation in putting road construction funds to work in job-providing efforts.

It explained the Bureau of Public Roads had approved plans for eleven road projects in New York, and six in Utah, and that workers in these States soon would be moving from the relief rolls to the pay rolls.

Contracts for the work, it was announced, will specify a 30-hour week with minimum rates fixed by the State Highway Departments under the law providing that "just and reasonable wages" must be paid.

The Cabinet Board in charge of the public works program probably will approve at a meeting today another list of Federal building projects, but they will not be announced until President Roosevelt has acted.

The President has been giving all projects the closest scrutiny, and has made sharp cuts in every program presented to him.

Announcement also may be made today of the regional and State advisors who will handle the bulk of the public works program through advances to States and local governmental units for construction purposes.

Game Conservation Harry Hawes' Hobby; Has Noble Collection of Arms and Tackle

Owns Ugly Old Rifle With Which Baldknobber Killed 3 Men.

It is an intriguingly ugly old rifle and it hangs in the conservation room of Harry B. Hawes' law offices in the Transportation Building. A member of the Baldknobbers, an extinct Ozark Mountain band corresponding in purpose to the postbellum Ku Klux Klan, owned the gun. He shot three men with it and was hanged in Springfield, Mo., many years ago.

Scores of antiquated pistols and powder horns keep the weapon company, preserving the memory of days when a man was shot from front and duels were a gentlemanly pleasure.

Hunting and fishing are the former senator's life. While thousands of Filipinos are shouting for or against adoption of the Hawes-Cutting independence act, the measure's coauthor is blithely tinkering with some new fresh-water tackle or playing host to a meeting of Izaak Walton leaguers.

His first speeches as a member of the House of Representatives—the "major" served in three Congresses before entering the Senate in 1928—were on game conservation. As legislator, author and attorney, this subject has been his passionate hobby.

A murderous swivel gun dominates the luxuriously furnished conservation room. How many thousands of ducks it has slaughtered can not even be estimated. One charge accounted for as many as 250.

It is about 12 feet long and bears the name George III, painted crudely, on the wooden stock. The gun was strapped to a boat, which was fixed up as a blind.

The gun was confiscated along the Potomac years ago and its owner sent to jail by Maryland. Every State in the Union has outlawed it.

Almost as impressive as the swivel is the blockhouse flintlock which was presented to Daniel Boone by the Virginia Legislature. It is 7 feet 9 inches long and weighs 49 pounds. All of the flintlocks in the collection are known as Kentucky rifles. One is a three-barrelled Hawkins with revolving barrel. Several others are double barreled, over and under. Most of them have hexagonal bores.

The major (his retired army rank) used to own a revolver which Jesse James used. He gave it to Nick Longworth not long before the Speaker of the House died.

His collection of tackle, plain and fancy, would delight the most expert deep-sea fisherman or the barefoot boy who angles in the old creek. The mounted pair of Philippine cannon, each about 4 feet long, conjures up bloodthirsty pirates, by whom they were used.

Mr. Hawes was asked about the sugar industry, with which he is in close contact.

"Six million hunting licenses," he replied, "and 7,000,000 fishing licenses are issued annually."

What was the future of the Philippines?

"Every year $650,000,000 is spent by sportsmen who hunt and fish," the Missourian responded promptly.

1,000 Are Expected At Snapp Reunion

Washingtonians to Attend Gathering of Clan at Opequon Aug. 17.

Members of the Snapp family in Washington today were planning an exodus to Opequon, Va., near Winchester, to swell the total of more than 1,000 members of the clan who will meet there in reunion August 17.

The Rev. A. M. B. Snapp, Winchester clergyman, who is in charge of the reunion, anticipated 24 States would be represented. Sixteen branches of the family reside in Washington, with others in Rockville and Fairfax.

According to family tradition, John and Barbara Snapp settled at Opequon in 1750. Genealogists estimate there are more than 5,000 descendants in the country.

Sao Paulo Alarmist Reports Are Denied

Rio De Janeiro, July 23 (U.P.).—Alarmist reports concerning conditions in Sao Paulo are without foundation and the "situation is absolutely normal," the newspaper Nacao, closely allied with the federal government, said in a front page editorial today.

"All the armed forces support the government," the editorial said. "The so-called crisis over the interventorship in Sao Paulo does not exist. President Getulio Vargas will name anyone he wishes and his appointee will take office."

Red Tape of Courts Cut By State Economy Drives

Judicial Procedure Simplified, Money Saved, Trials Speeded.

Chicago, July 23 (AP).—Economy drives have resulted in simplified court action and attempts to cut judicial red tape to speed justice.

A survey showed today that in many States the efforts to make income match expenditures had brought about much legislation affecting the judicial system.

In Illinois, new codes eliminated the various items of the circuit courts, making it mandatory that hearings be held within 30 days instead of setting a case over, as was customary, for the next term of the court. Also extensive changes were made in civilian law procedure to eliminate red tape, the "discovery hearing" was instituted to permit questioning of litigants prior to trial, judges were required to give written instructions to juries, and forms of pleadings were simplified.

Connecticut, long accustomed to send the sheriff personally to empanel jurors, enacted a law authorizing superior court judges to conduct the ceremony by mail.

Quick Plea Action.

Arkansas voted to allow defendants in felony cases to waive indictment by the grand jury in open court, plead guilty and start to serve their sentences immediately, thus saving the county jail expenses, witness fees and costs of two juries.

Colorado and Nebraska also approved the summoning of jurors by registered mail in all counties outside of Denver. The former State also reduced the semiannual grand jury meetings in all counties to an annual basis.

Nebraska modified its statutes to permit calling of alternate jurors in long criminal cases, thus spreading fees further, for one thing. It also gave county courts wider jurisdiction in minor criminal cases to avoid holding prisoners while district courts are not in session.

Among other changes effected in court procedure:

Ohio—Required three judges to hear first degree murder trials when defendant waives a jury trial; authorized courts to remit or suspend fines in liquor cases, and to withhold sale of foreclosed propetry for a period not to exceed two years.

Maine—Provided that a member of the bar may become a probate judge.

Wyoming—Tightened procedure in juvenile delinquency cases.

California—Eliminated conflicts in jurisdiction and venue provisions of inferior trial courts; provided that misdemeanor complaints must be filed within a year.

Continuous Probate Court.

Florida—Enacted new code of probate laws; modified laws on disqualifying judges; set six months' limit on suing out writs of error in criminal cases.

Connecticut—Provided that if one of several defendants in a criminal action insists on a jury trial, all shall be tried by jury.

Arkansas—Provided that probate courts remain open continually.

Mother Dies on Ship On Way to Visit Sons

Detroit, July 23 (AP).—A long-deferred visit from their mother turned to tragedy today for James and Lawrence Callahan, of suburban Wyandotte.

The 61-year-old mother, Mrs. Anna Callahan, of Utica, N. Y., left Buffalo last night on a steamer to visit the sons whom she had not seen for several years. She was stricken with a heart attack and died before the steamer was out of sight of land. The sons today prepared to take the body back to Utica for burial.

Cuban Leader Is Held As Attempted Slayer

Havana, July 23 (AP).—Gen. Aldomero Acosta, prominent nationalist leader and former mayor of the suburb of Marianao, was arrested last night on charges of attempting to kill Ramon Souto, a police lieutenant.

Statue for Late Editor.

Portland, Ore., July 23 (AP).—A bronze statue of Harvey W. Scott, late editor of the Portland Oregonian, was dedicated to day at the crest of Mount Tabor Park, located on one of the highest hills on the east side.

Hearings Start Today on 3 Oil Industry Codes

Independents Say Majors' Plans Demand Unfair Trade Advantages.

(Associated Press.)

With three distinct codes of operation already put before him by divergent factions in the oil industry, Brig.-Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, Industrial Administrator, today will open hearings on a trade practice plan for the billions of dollars in the petroleum business.

In advance of the sessions, spokesmen for the widely scattered groups within the industry met in various caucuses about the Capital last night, perfecting their campaign plans.

Since a contest is expected to develop in the sessions, no responsible person would estimate how long the hearings might take—many bearing in mind the knowledge that Gen. Johnson, if the industry's factions persist in disagreement, will bear down on them sharply.

Independents Score Plan.

Scoring the first plan presented to Gen. Johnson, drawn up by representatives of the majority of the Petroleum Industry at Chicago, the Eastern Independent Oil Marketers' Association, in a statement yesterday supported as a substitute a code submitted Saturday by a group of Independent interests.

The association charged that the code written at Chicago was "drafted by and in behalf of the major oil companies and that it is intended to give unfair advantage to the major companies, to the detriment or destruction of independents."

It opposed the Chicago code's 40-hour week, advocating the independents' suggestion for a 30-hour week fo remployes in the production and refining end of a 36-hour week for marketing employes and proposed a flat 50-cent wage scale as compared with the other plan's 40 to 47 cents.

Marketing Diversion Plan.

In addition to these two codes, Gen. Johnson has been presented with a plan for the marketing division by the independent and individually branded Petroleum Marketers Association, composed of independent distributers in 22 States.

The marketing proposal calls for a 42-hour week with a minimum Southern wage of $12 weekly, as compared with $14 in the Northern States, proposes that no petroleum product shall be sold below combined commodity and handling costs, advocates separation of the producing, transportation, refining and marketing divisions and segregation of the oil pipe lines.

Meanwhile, attorneys in the Interior Department worked on a modification of rule 6 of the recent regulations issued by Secretary Ickes prohibiting interstate movement of oil produced in violation of State conservation orders.

The rule, requiring voluminous reports from transporters of petroleum and its products, probably will be revised to exempt those in States without conservatory proration orders from making reports, and to eliminate unnecessary reporting.

Europe Reported Willing to Disarm

Henderson Tells of Visits That May Bring Hitler, Daladier Together.

London, July 23 (U.P.).—A disposition in favor of disarmament was reported by Arthur Henderson, president of the World Disarmament Conference, upon his return from a series of talks in Paris, Rome, Berlin and Prague.

Henderson said, however, that he was doubtful of immediate success toward cutting of arms burdens.

Completing a trip, the most important result of which may be to bring Premier Edouard Daladier, of France, and Chancellor Adolf Hitler, of Germany, together, Henderson said that agreement appeared possible on the following points:

An agreement not to resort to force; definition of agression; control and supervision of arms; standardization of European armies; control arms budget limitation, and controlled manufacture and trade in arms.

Balloonists Ready For Record Flight

Piccard May Let Settle Go Up Alone in Attempt to Hit Stratosphere.

Chicago, July 23 (AP).—Weather permitting, the Piccard-Settle-Compton expedition into the stratosphere with a new altitude record its objective may get under way this week.

Its Chicago backers tonight received word from Lieut. Comdr. T. G. W. Settle, winner of the 1932 Gordon Bennett balloon race, stating charts indicated atmospheric conditions might be suitable for the flight Wednesday. Settle is now at Akron, Ohio, where he is stationed as an inspector of naval aircraft.

By virtue of a sporting offer by Jean Piccard, brother of Auguste Piccard, who established an altitude mark in a similar flight in Europe last year, it was believed here Settle would ascend in the balloon-gondola alone.

Former Governor Stuart Near Death at Home

Lebanon, Va., July 23 (AP).—The condition of former Gov. Henry C. Stuart "continues very grave," Walter Stuart, his nephew and Secretary, said tonight.

Town Stirred Over Bequest

Culpeper Holds Mass Meeting to Determine What to Do With Residence of John R. Norris, Which Was Left by Will.

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., July 22.—A mass meeting of the citizens of the town and county was held last evening in the Municipal Auditorium, so they might hear the arguments for and against accepting the bequest of the late John R. Norris, wealthy resident of Culpeper. He willed his residence on Main street and a considerable sum of money to the town of Culpeper, the residence to be used as a memorial library, and to be called "The John Richard Norris Memorial Library," and the grounds in the rear of the building to be used as a playground for the children of Culpeper.

Coupled with the bequest, however, were certain stipulations, which some members of the council thought unwise, and the matter has aroused the most intense controversy—even the political nominations and the near election taking second place in the interest of the people.

Conditions in Will.

One of the conditions of the will that has caused great agitation was that a quiet reading room should be maintained at all times, where certain periodicals of the Christian Science Church would be kept. Mr. Norris was a member of that faith.

Another was that a librarian must be paid a salary which is thought to be in excess of the income the estate will afford. If the town does not accept the bequest with these, and many other conditions, then, the Norris residence and all money remaining will go to the Christian Science Church of Charlottesville, Va., at the end of the five-year period for which the home place was left to his sister, Mrs. Charles Edward Wager, of Euclid street, Washington, D. C.

In his will, Mr. Norris left the use of $10,000 to his daughter, Miss Sanford Norris, of Baltimore; $20,000 to Mrs. Wager, and $10,000 to another sister in Tennessee. At the death of these legatees these bequests were all to revert to the estate.

Estate Enhanced.

In the inventory of the estate, which was made in October, 1932, the entire property was listed at $94,000, but since that time, due to increase in value of shares of stock, there has been an increase of upwards of $16,000, and there is reason to believe that with the present revival in business these and other shares of stock will materially add to the residuary estate.

Representing the Library Association of Culpeper was Attorney Richard C. Thompson, of Culpeper, and Washington, D. C., who emphasized the increase in the estate since the inventory was declared, and said that figures based upon that inventory were necessarily misleading. Mrs. Henry St. George Tucker, widow of Representative Tucker, also spoke in favor of accepting the bequest, pointing out the possibility of expansion over the present inadequate location, and the great advantage, especially to the youth of the community in having a free library in this place.

Atwell Somerville, member of the town council, stating that he had made a thorough investigation of the resources of the estate and the conditions attached to the bequest, expressed himself as opposed to accepting it. The Norris home in question, is not large, but one of the most interesting in Culpeper, and was built in 1800. It was the birthplace in 1837 of Ellen Lewis Herndon, who became the wife of Chester A. Arthur, president of the United States.

The home, as pictured, was purchased by Peter Jeremiah Norris in 1855, and has been the family residence since that time. Mrs. Wager, to whom Mr. Norris gave a five-year ownership, used it as a summer home. It is furnished with antique mahogany and imported teakwood, and surrounded by a flower garden of rare beauty.

Gold Bloc Nations Attack Speculation

Mutual Assistance Plan as Broached at Paris Is Discussed.

Basel, Switzerland, July 23 (AP).—Battle lines against speculation, in defense of gold currencies, were drawn tighter today by governors of the central banks of the gold bloc countries in a meeting preliminary to the monthly session of the Bank for International Settlements tomorrow.

Representatives of European central banks were understood to have agreed that the World Economic Conference had shown that the future of the gold standard depends upon the economic measures governments take in defense of their money.

The gold bloc discussed a mutual assistance plan, broached at a meeting in Paris, early in July, without revealing its further strategy. It was unofficially announced that the banks were already working closely with the Bank for International Settlements as suggested by a subcommittee of the World Economic Conference in a gold policy report, July 20.

Theft of Women's Hose Reported.

The theft of six dozen pairs of women's hose from a hat shop at 1300 Connecticut avenue northwest was reported to police yesterday. The place was entered through the rear transom. The loss was estimated at $50 by Eva Shenton, of 7 U street northwest, the owner of the shop.

Rites to Be Today For Miss Johnson

Funeral and Burial Will Be in Oakland, Md., for R. F. C. Worker.

Funeral services for Miss Virginia Bowie Johnson, 23, who died Saturday at the residence of her aunt, Miss Virginia Thayer Johnson, 1717 K street northwest, will be held in Oakland, Md., at 2 p. m., today. Burial will be in Oakland.

Miss Johnson was connected with the Bowie and Thayer families of Maryland. She was a great-granddaughter of Reverdy Johnson, former United States Senator from Maryland and Ambassador to the Court of St. James. She also was a niece of Margaret Bowie Grant.

Until she was taken ill a month ago, Miss Johnson was employed in the engineering division of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. She is survived, in addition to her aunt, by three brothers, Bowie, Reverdy, and Edward, all of Washington.

Pines Dedicated to States At Governors' Convention

Truckee, Calif., July 23 (AP).—A grove of tall pine trees on the shores of beautiful Lake Tahoe was dedicated today to the governors attending their twenty-fifth annual convention, opening here today.

A stately pine was dedicated to each State in the Union, while speeches were made telling of the historical significance of the district first opened by the Donner covered wagon party, which more than 80 years ago toiled over the uncharted high Sierras to California.

On each of 12 trees were plaques bearing the name and State of each governor present.

Governors to whom trees were dedicated were John G. Pollard, Virginia; Paul V. McNutt, Indiana; W. L. Cross, Connecticut; I. C. Blackwood, South Carolina; Guy B. Park, Missouri; John G. Winano, New Hampshire; Theodore Green, Rhode Island; F. B. Balzar, Nevada; Ben C. Ross, Idaho; Clarence D. Martin, Washington; former Gov. C. A. Hardee of Florida, and Gov. James Rolph, jr., of California.

Will Rogers Accepts Tree.

Will Rogers, the humorist, who was introduced alternately as the Mayor of Beverly Hills and acting Governor of Oklahoma, accepted a tree for that State in the absence of William H. Murray, of Oklahoma.

"You're giving me this tree?" Rogers asked Rolph. "Thanks. I guess I'll not cut it down until the price of lumber goes up."

Rogers said he regretted he could not plant a tree during the dedication, but said he would be "glad to plant some alfalfa for Bill Murray."

"There is some chance of reaping a crop of that while the Democrats are still in office," he added. "If I planted a tree, the Republicans might get in before it got big enough to be any good."

19-Gun Salute Fire.

Just after midnight, amid the glare of red flares, the firing of a 19-gun salute, and the cheers of a welcoming party of about 300, the main group of the visiting governors was welcomed as the train crossed the Nevada-California State line 25 miles east of here.

As the train rolled to a stop, Gov. Pollard of Virginia, chairman of the conference, appeared on the car steps to greet Gov. Rolph, host of the party. Gov. Rolph was accompanied by Gov. Green of Rhode Island and Gov. Balzar of Nevada.

Governor's wives, secretaries and attendants crowded the windows of two pullman cars. On a hillside a huge fireworks display traced "welcome" in colored lights.

The welcoming party then boarded the train and made the 25-mile ride to Truckee.

Sessions in Sacramento.

After the dedication the governors and members of their party were taken for an automobile trip along the wooded shores of Lake Tahoe and then down the Truckee River to this mile-high city, where a Pioneer Day celebration was held in their honor.

From Truckee the party was driven to Donner Lake, where a short address was made by Hilliard Welch, Sacramento banker, at the monument for the Donner party.

At the lake a picnic luncheon was served and the party drove through the mountains to Sacramento, where the conference sessions will open tomorrow. Several other State executives either drove or flew to Sacramento to join the conference there.

English Jews Refuse To Boycott Germany

London, July 23 (AP).—A demand of a considerable section of British Jews for declaration of an official boycott of German goods and services was turned down at a meeting today of the Jewish Board of Deputies, regarded as a parliament of Jews of the British Empire.

A large majority of the deputies opposed an official boycott, holding that was a matter solely for individuals.

Rebellion Seen If Philippines Are Not Freed

By Morgan Baker.

General boycotts and civil disobedience culminating in revolution will take place in the Philippines soon unless immediate independence is granted, Fernando T. Amis, spokesman of the Filipino Freedom Mission, declared last night.

"The present suppression of the masses can not continue," Mr. Amis said. "The people are tired of persecution by the politicians who have been in power ever since America took over the islands. Freedom of speech, press and public assembly is squelched. Open rebellion is certain unless the commission representing the Filipino people gets satisfaction. The people will not wait ten years under terms of the Hawes-Cutting act."

Benigno Ramos is chairman of the delegation which arrived in the United States recently and is now in Chicago on organization work at the invitation of the more than 3,000 Filipinos in that city. Mr. Ramos and his colleagues will arrive in Washington tomorrow or Wednesday and are seeking an interview with President Roosevelt.

Opposes Cuban Plan.

Mr. Amis is president of the Filipino Educational Society of America, a philanthropic body which sponsors education of islanders in this country.

He declared that the Filipino people do not want an arrangement similar to that of Cuba with the United States. Cuba, he held, is bound to America and is restricted in trading with other nations. The Filipino masses want absolute independence with all control of America severed, he claimed.

Japan, the ardent patriot pointed out, has no desire to acquire his country because "the climate is not suited to Japanese." The Philippine Republic, he said, would give equal rights in commerce to Japan and the United States. He also believed the territory will not need the protection of America. Even the cooperative system within the British Empire does not appeal to the insular advocates of immediate severance of ties with America.

Demand Neutral Government.

Sergio Osmena, prominent capitalist and official, is a "pure Chinese, although born in the Philippines and with a Filipino name," Mr. Amiss strongly complained. Ruperto Montinola, another prominent native official, also was bitterly assailed as abetting the reign of tyranny.

Strict neutrality of Gov Gen. Frank Murphy in the present crisis will be demanded of President Roosevelt by the Ramos Mission, Mr. Amis said.

High praise was accorded Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, for his "interest in the welfare of the Filipino masses and strong advocacy of immediate and complete independence." Senator King is a member of the Territories and Insular Affairs Committee. The mission will insist that Senator King accept their invitation to visit Manila, where he is said to be regarded as a hero and best friend of the Filipino people in the United States.

"The people are ready to fight and die for him," Mr. Amis stated.

"Action to improve conditions in the Philippines must be made soon, or else the plans now under way for boycotts, civil disobedience—yes, even revolution—will be executed, Mr. Amis warned. It is his opinion that if the true facts of the situation in the islands are laid before the citizens on the continent, the islanders will win them to their cause overwhelmingly."

Four Americans Ordained in Rome

Rome, July 23 (AP).—Four Americans, students of the American College in Rome, were ordained priests this morning by Cardinal Marchetti Selvaggiani, vicar general of the Rome diocese. They are:

John Dougherty, diocese of Newark, N. J.; Joseph Sweeney, diocese of Wilmington, Del.; John O'Leary, diocese of Altoona, Pa.; Thomas Doran, diocese of Denver, Colo.

The ordinations were performed in the Church of St. Ignatius, one of the largest churches in Rome. Many American prelates, including Mgr. Eugene Burke, Newark, N. J., rector of the American College, attended. The new priests probably will be received in a special audience by the Pope tomorrow.

Sen Gupta, Indian Rebel, Dies Following Stroke

Calcutta, India, July 23 (AP).—J. M. Sen Gupta, former mayor of Calcutta and one of the most famous leaders of the India civil disobedience movement, died today after a stroke.

Sen Gupta was prominent in the India rebellion during the time of greatest strife between the natives and British authorities. He was frequently in jail and only recently had been released on parole. Even after parole he remained a state prisoner and was forced to reside at a place designated by the authorities.

Msgr. St. John O'Sullivan Dead.

Orange, Calif., July 23 (AP).—The Right Rev. Msgr. St. John O'Sullivan, 59, who restored the San Juan Capistrano Mission of the early Spanish fathers, died of heart disease today in St. Joseph's Hospital. He had been ill four weeks.

Brilliant Fall Radio Season Seen in Listings

President's Talks to Start Soon; Many Favorites to Return.

By Robert D. Heinl.

Although plans are still in the making, there are indications of a brilliant fall season just ahead in radio attraction. The National Broadcasting Co. alone has more than 20 new presentations lined up for Washington. They have, in fact, a line forming to the left of programs seeking an outlet here.

Herluf Provenson, acting manager of N. B. C. during the absence of Kenneth H. Berkeley, who is somewhere in Sherwood Forest on his vacation, is working overtime on the forthcoming presidential broadcasts, having had a terrific workout keeping the Italian flyers covered.

Early this week Mr. Provenson will give his attention to the forthcoming late summer and early fall broadcasts. The first of the big ones will be the Paul Whiteman presentation. This sereis began several weeks ago, but Washington was left out. However, beginning August 3 it will come into the Capital over WRC.

Al Jolson, who didn't do so well on a previous series, but made a great hit on a tryout with Whiteman recently, will be the headliner the night Washington joins the network. Deems Taylor, grand opera composer, will be the commentator.

Winchell to Return.

The Country Club offering with Grantland Rice and Jack Goldman's orchestra, will be back on WMAL August 21. Walter Winchell, doubtless by that time recovered from his encounter with Al Jolson, will make his appearance over the same station September 3. Roy Atwell will appear in a new skit with Fred Allen.

Tom Mix, with a children's program, is booked for WRC September 25 with Wheatenaville returning at about the same time. Charles Leland, comedian, will make a bid for laughs September 25.

"The Wizard of Oz" likewise will come to the radio the same night. This was one of the famous old Montgomery and Stone shows with music by Victor Herbert. Dave Montgomery and Herbert are now dead, but the memory of the former goes on forever, and the music of Victor Herbert likewise.

Famous movie stars introduced by Mme. Sylvia will tell how unaccustomed they are to speak over the radio. This series is allocated to WRC beginning September 26. Sherlock Holmes, blood-curdling screams and all, will again be heard the next night and regularly thereafter.

"The First Nighter" from Chicago with Charles P. Hughes will be with us September 29. "Bob and Betty" arrive early in October, closely followed by "Pages of Romance."

New McCormack Series.

Washington is to be included in the new series of John McCormack, the great Irish tenor, in October. He will be heard over WMAL. Also a new series of Warden Lawes in "20,000 Years in Sing Sing."

A dramatization of stories of circus life will be a new October feature, followed a week later by the begininng of a series of railroad thrillers, the shrill whistle of old 49 as she rounds the curve, wrecks and most everything to gladden the hearts of the "Casey Jones" fans.

The "Voice of Firestone" probably with Lawrence Tibbett will return, and also Lowell Thomas, traveler and commentator. There persists the rumor that the N. B. C. will bag Paderewski, the pianist, and Fritz Kreisler, who is said to have made quite a success as a violinist. Neither has ever been heard over the air in this country.

And we almost forgot, Ed Wynn will be back as soon as he has finished making his picture.

It has not been possible to get much of a line on what Columbia has up its sleeve in the way of new features, but doubtless this network, which now claims to be the largest in the world, will not be found far behind N. B. C. WJSV introduces a new program tomorrow, "American Boy," at 5:30 p. m. The sponsor will be the same one who produces "Skippy."

Don Ross and "The Minstrel" will be heard over WJSV August 1. And last but surely not the least, Eddie Cantor has been engaged for a brand new series which we are going to hear in Washington, but he is to come to us via WRC. This will be on Sunday nights in his original time and place.

Wins Son in 13th Trial.

Seattle, July 23 (AP).—Mrs. Nettie Lang doesn't subscribe to the belief that 13 is an unlucky number. After 13 separate court trials, she finally was awarded the custody of her son, Walter Robert, 11, for whom her former husband, Walter Lang, has been fighting since she obtained a divorce on December 13, 1927.

Capt. Craige Helps Free Man Who Tried to Kill Him

Haiti Crazed Private, Sent to Prison, Coming to Thank Officer.

By John J. Daly.

When last they met, away down in Port au Prince, Mike Brunski had a smoking automatic in his hand, fired the last three shots at Capt. John H. Craige, his commanding officer in the U. S. Marine Corps, and narrowly escaped annihilation by a return fire.

"Only the grace of God saved that guy," said Capt. Craige, recalling how he had drawn his pistol from the holster, had cocked it, and then put the weapon back—after Pvt. Brunski had missed his mark, by inches.

Now the two men are going to meet—here in Washington. Brunski is coming to Washington to thank Capt. "Jack" Craige for extending a helping hand. It was this way:

After the tropical sun had "got" Brunski, back in 1927, he went loco. Several Haitians fell before his gunfire. When the chief of police, who happened to be Capt. Craige, went to see what all the shooting was about he heard a mad voice cry out:

"Here's where I kill a superior officer."

Goes "Loco" on Wharf.

It was down on the wharf at Port au Prince. Brunski was covering the waterfront—with bullets.

When finally they subdued him and got his story—of how a native girl had "done him wrong" by eloping with a Haitian coffee prince—a board of marine officers adjudged the man insane. They sent him to the States to serve sentence in the U. S. Naval Prison, Navy Yard, Portsmouth, N. H.

Six years in that institution made a new man out of Brunski. He became perfectly sane. Not only that, he was a model prisoner. The commanding officer, Lieut. Col. J. A. Rossell, became interested in the case, thought it time the man might apply for a pardon:

"What in the devil did you ever do, anyway?" he asked Brunski.

Served With Craige.

"Know him? I served with him."

"Say," said Brunski, the prisoner, "how's the chance of writing the captain a letter?"

The letter was written. Capt. Craige recalled the soldier who had tried to bump him off, learned that the man was a model prisoner, and started in to see what could be done.

What could be done was done yesterday. Between Capt. Craige and Lieut. Col. Rossell, the naval clemency board was apprized of all the facts, and the man who served six years behind the bars at Uncle Sam's naval prison is now free. He is on the way to Washington to thank his friend and former target.

Before he enlisted in the Marines, Brunski—Mike Brunski — was an actor. He is going back to the show business, having already signed a contract to appear in the act with the Connecticut Hill Billies.

All Capt. Craige fears is that Mike Brunski might turn crooner.

"I'd forgive him almost anything but that," the captain said yesterday, fondling a letter of appreciation from the man who once made him dance on the waterfront of Port au Prince.

U. S. Film Ban Seen In French Quota Plan

Paris, July 23 (AP).—A drastic restriction of film importation, which some importers said threatens virtually to bar American movies from France, was imposed today in a decree applying a quota system of foreign talking pictures.

Arthur W. Kelly, general European manger for United Artists, said the American Embassy will be asked to protest to the French government on the grounds that the decree likely would ruin the American business because the low quota and the especially restricted showing of original versions would make importation unprofitable.

Hull Advises London Parley Limit Recess

Pittman Silver Pact Stands Out as Achievement of Conference.

London, July 23 (AP).—Cordell Hull, American Secretary of State, insisting that the work of the world economic conference scarcely even had been started, was reliably reported today to be convinced that the recess of the parley must be definitely limited to assure a reconvening.

The Secretary's position was claimed to be that an indefinite adjournment after next Thursday would leave such uncertainty over the fate of the world congress that resumption of the work would be jeopardized.

Mr. Hull was understood to have under consideration a recommendation that the recess be for a maximum period of three months, with the steering committee authorized to call the nations together earlier, should it decide this is desirable.

Meanwhile, Senator Key Pittman's pact between eight silver producing and holding countries seeking to raise the price of the white metal stood out as the greatest tangible achievement of the conference thus far. Some delegates felt that this in itself was adequate justification for the parley.

Bishop Ends Work On Hymnal Revision

Special to The Washington Post.

Chautauqua, N. Y., July 23.—Ten men prominent in the Methodist denomination have finished the editorial work connected with the general revision of the Methodist Hymnal and Psalter.

Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, senior bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Washington, D. C., was an important member of this Methodist Hymnal Commission, which has been at work on the revision since 1928. Bishop Hughes was also chaplain-of-the-week here for the Chautauqua Assembly grounds, giving lectures twice daily.

Many Arrested As Spain Wars On Extremists

All Anarchist Centers Are Closed; Dictatorship Is Threatened.

Madrid, July 23 (AP).—All Syndicalist and Anarchist centers were closed and numerous Extremists were arrested today as the government exercised precautions throughout Spain due to rumors that simultaneous uprisings were planned in various cities.

With the exception of a few minor incidents, quiet was reported throughout the republic. Authorities, while discrediting the possibility of serious eventualities, determined not to take any chances.

Several hundred persons marched in Madrid, singing the Internationale, but they were not molested and dispersed peacefully after a brief parade.

Meanwhile, Francisco Largo Caballero, minister of labor, told a gathering at the Pardinas Theater that the Socialists were prepared to establish a socialistic dictatorship in order to wipe out Facism in Spain if necessary, but that they preferred legal recourse rather than violence. Force would be employed only as a last resort, he added.

The minister asserted the Socialists of Spain under no circumstances would permit the same fate to befall them as was the lot of the Socialists in Germany.

Bees Swarm on Bridal Party.

San Mateo, Calif., July 23 (AP).—Bees swarmed on a bridal motor car just outside the church where Miss Agnes Clark and Alexander Albert had just been united at a society wedding. Five policeman and a city councilman pondered. Finally they hit upon the idea of taking the bees for a ride. One of the officers drove them away from there.

O'Connell Family Reported in Dicker

Negotiations With Kidnap Gang Renewed, Belief in Albany.

Albany, N. Y., July 23 (U.P.).—The kidnapers and family of Lieut. John J. O'Connell, jr., were believed tonight to be engaged in new negotiations for release of the 24-year-old National Guard officer.

Reports from sources close to the politically mighty family, however, said the O'Connells were "waiting and hoping."

"There is nothing new in the case," an attache at the home of Daniel O'Connell, the youth's uncle, said. "We are still awaiting word."

Reports still persisted, despite denial, that the family and abductors may have discarded the mails as a means of communication and were using the telephone.

Rodeo Record Broken On Steer Decorating

Salinas, Calif., July 23 (AP).—Snap went a rubber band around the nose of a charging longhorn as Howard Brown, of Paso Robles, Calif., won the "steer decorating" contest at the annual Salinas rodeo in 3.2 seconds—a world's record, rodeo officials declared. Contestants leaped on the rampaging steers' necks before snapping the rubbers in place.

Pilot and Passenger Killed in Plane Crash

Watonga, Okla., July 23 (AP).—Hank Ginder, 23, Kingfisher, Okla., pilot, and Bill Good, of Watonga, his passenger, were killed by the crash of Ginder's plane from a height of 3,000 feet today.

The plane was a cabin model, home made and licensed.

Winnie Mae Shows Effects of Flight

New York, July 23 (AP).—The Winnie Mae, veteran of two round-the-world flights, looked a bit battered today to the thousands who crowded about the ship at Floyd Bennett Field.

The cowling and "pants" on the wheels plainly showed the effects of the nose-over the ship took the night Wiley Post landed in bad weather at Flat, Alaska.

The heavy winds and rains that frequently buffeted Post badly scuffed the fabric on the wings and stabilizer.

A gold heart pasted on the ship's fin read: "Fairbanks—Alaska's golden heart has a soft spot for you."

1,000 in High Point To Return to Jobs

High Point, N. C., July 23 (AP).—Approximately 1,000 furniture workers who were idle last Monday because of a furniture-hosiery strike here will be back at their posts tomorrow under new agreements.

Only three major furniture manufacturing plants here have failed to reach agreements with their workers, leaving, those familiar with the industry said, from 400 to 500 still on strike.

Meanwhile, no definite word came of any approaching agreement between seamless hosiery manufacturers and approximately 4,000 employes out on strike demanding a 25 per cent wage increase.

● ABOVE—SAFE...OR OUT? Millions hang breathlessly on the words of Edson Brewster, master telegrapher for Western Union, as he taps out each exciting play for the tickers and bulletin boards that reach from Maine to Tokio! Before the crowd in the grand stand knows what has happened, Brewster has reported the play.

● LEFT—THERE GOES YOUR OLD BALL GAME! You wouldn't be human if you didn't get excited and wrought up when the home team puts the game on ice. It's a time when you want to smoke a lot. You will find Camels milder, and your nerves will be grateful!

● EDSON BREWSTER, veteran of every World's Series for over 20 years, says: "Camels never disturb my nerves."

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

"It's some strain being the public's eyes at big sporting events," says Edson Brewster, who clicks out the play-by-play for Western Union. "I have to see everything and I have to see it right. I've got to keep my eyes on the field and a steady hand on the telegraph key every second. No wonder I am a steady smoker! But I do not worry about my nerves. I have smoked Camels for years. They are mild, and never disturb my nerves. I like them better."

Camels, being made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand, have brought new smoking satisfaction to thousands of men and women who had never known that a cigarette could be so mild...so rich and pleasing. Try Camels. Your own experience will soon reveal why steady smokers turn to Camels.

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand. They have given more pleasure to more people than any other cigarette ever made. "It's the tobacco that counts!"

Nations Saving Themselves.

On the eve of sailing for New York Senator Couzens summed up the London conference as follows:

> We came over here with hopes for the conference higher than we realized. When we got here, we discovered a business revival in progress in several important countries. Well, countries, like persons, are a little more conceited when they are on the up grade. This made the nations a little more indifferent to the need for co-operation.

Is it possible that the world is not going to the bow-wows after all? Can it be that mankind does not concede that failure of the London conference is a "catastrophe amounting to a world tragedy?"

Before and during the conference each nation was doing its best to adjust itself to the necessities of the situation in which it found itself. The domestic problems of each nation are peculiar to itself, and no statesmen from other countries could be expected to contribute much of value in solving these problems. The opinions of European statesmen concerning America's domestic problems are practically valueless, and doubtless American estimates of European interior problems are equally beside the mark.

Unemployment is decreasing in several important countries. The number of unemployed in Germany was reduced nearly 500,000 from June, 1932, to June, 1933, according to the quarterly statistics of the International Labor Office. Unemployment in Great Britain and Northern Ireland was reduced 200,000 in the same period. The number of unemployed in Germany is now 27½ per cent, and in Great Britain 20½ per cent. These figures represent a heavy burden upon the nations concerned, but they also reflect improvement in conditions, accomplished by the people and not by the London conference.

The efforts of all nations to provide for their own wants are making better world conditions in the main. Great Britain is very backward in stimulating agriculture and dairying, as compared with Germany, which is now almost capable of providing its own food, including wheat. France is making heroic efforts to encourage agriculture. The price of wheat is to be pegged at $1.61 per bushel if the government can accomplish the feat.

Secretary Hull is endeavoring to bring about an agreement to prolong the tariff truce until the London conference can reconvene under more favorable conditions. But he meets with the opposition of countries remaining on the gold standard, and doubtless the United States itself would make reservations against too complete commitment to a truce, for the reason that tariff increases may be necessary as a corollary of the industrial recovery and farm relief programs.

If a business revival is actually in progress in important European countries, even at a slow rate, the respective governments are apt to conclude that they should encourage the process by continuing present policies rather than making great sacrifices in the hope of bettering general world conditions. Universal economic agreements are experimental at best; but the decrease of unemployment is no experiment.

Hard work by the peoples seems to be achieving more than conferences of statesmen. The badly battered old world is slowly but surely recovering from the wounds and losses of war. Each nation is working out of its difficulties as best it can; and its own people and government are the best judges of the remedy to be applied to its malady.

The Army Mule.

As commander in chief of the Army and Navy President Roosevelt is necessarily strictly impartial in his attitude toward those services. Hence it can not be believed that he would deny public works funds to the Army while bestowing them upon the Navy, except for compelling reasons. If he turns a deaf ear to Secretary Dern in regard to mechanization of the Army it is not because Commodore Swanson has a more alluring siren song, but because of conditions in the Army itself.

What are the conditions which forbid mechanization of the Army? Obviously, they relate to unemployment of the Army mule. Can it be expected that the commander in chief would strike a blow at the mainstay, kingbolt, axle, and motive power of the land forces of the United States? The Army, it is true, travels on its belly, while the Navy's beaked ships swim majestically in wine-dark seas. But it is the Army mule that pulls the Army through. The victories that perch on its banners tell no details, but if they did they would blazon the Army mule as the true hero of unnumbered fights. Generals and captains have their names immortalized, while the real winner of victories is unhonored and unsung.

The threat of unemployment directed against the Army mule evokes a portentous waving of ears and brandishing of tails. These storm warnings can not be lost upon the vigilant commander in chief. Mechanization is wholesome in some cases, now that all the world is on wheels and running about in circles, but the Army must move with certainty when it moves at all, and machinery not infrequently breaks down in critical emergencies. The Army mule never breaks down. He may balk a bit on occasions, but his ignition and brakes are always in good working order. He is not disabled for lack of gas or oil. Fogs and low ceilings mean nothing to him. He needs no paved highway—any stony trail, or no trail at all is good enough. In certainty of arrival at destination, howbeit at leisurely pace, the mule out-tanks the tank, outflies the pursuit plane, and laughs the truck to scorn.

Secretary Dern means well in his proposal to mechanize the Army, but his far-seeing superior rightly decides against decommissioning the Army mule.

World Wheat Plan Fails.

For several weeks hopes for the achievement of any tangible results from the world economic conference has been centered in the wheat control section. Now it appears that even this prospect has been clouded. Stanley M. Bruce, the Australian delegate, has given the conference notice that his country will not take part in any international acreage reduction arrangement.

Since Australia is one of the four large wheat exporting nations, an agreement to restrict world wheat production can not now be anticipated. Several weeks ago Australian delegates indicated that they would agree to a curtailment of wheat production, if the Balkan states could be brought within the pact and if the importing nations of Europe would agree to reduce their wheat subsidies to provide a larger export market. A compromise with the Balkan states had been made, but Australia now seems to be unwilling to participate in the proposed agreement under any circumstances.

Two reasons for this sudden change of sentiment are apparent. When Australia agreed to proceed with the negotiations there were some prospects that the conference would reach agreements on a number of subjects. Now all effort to dispose of the chief problems that confront the conference has been postponed, if not abandoned. The Australian delegates feel that the conference as a whole has been a failure. Mr. Bruce intimated that Australia might have been willing to compromise with respect to wheat production if the conference had given evidence of accomplishing anything else. But Australia does not wish to be placed in the position of being the only country at the economic conference to make substantial concessions. Failure of the general negotiations has undoubtedly been an important factor in this unfortunate impasse on the wheat problem.

One other important influence in the decision of the Australian delegates was the attitude of farmers "back home." Curtailment of wheat exports is not popular in the provinces. If Australia could have secured concessions on other fronts, this opposition might have been overcome. But the actual turn of events at London brought this sarcastic comment from Mr. Bruce regarding the wheat curtailment plan:

> Schemes of this character can be carried out only by governments either Socialistic, Fascist or Communistic in character, and Australia certainly does not intend to become any of these.

This criticism was probably intended for home consumption, but, when considered along with Mr. Bruce's other remarks about failure of the conference, it manifests the resentment which some delegates feel at the turn of events in London.

An Anticrime Dictator.

Massachusetts has introduced a somewhat novel idea into the discussion of ways and means of securing more effective law enforcement. Attorney General Joseph E. Warner is advocating the appointment of a virtual anticrime dictator to carry out an experiment for one year. Serious consideration is being given to his plan by a legislative committee.

Like many other States, Massachusetts has been swept recently by an unusual wave of crime. Law enforcement officers have not been equal to it. In some cases excellent work has been done, yet the volume of crime is such as to baffle the authorities. They feel that some special effort is necessary to meet the challenge of the underworld.

Mr. Warner suggests that a single individual be given authority to form special agencies to fight crime; to draft any State, county or municipal officials for special law enforcement work; to consolidate the efforts of all prosecutors and law enforcement agencies within the State for the extermination of crime, and in general to direct a crusade against lawless individuals.

It is proposed that search of any vehicle, package or building other than dwelling houses be permitted without warrants when officers have reason to believe that dangerous weapons, gambling devices or other illegal instruments are concealed therein. Officers would be authorized to seize such instruments and weapons and to arrest their possessor.

Furthermore, the plan calls for an intensive investigation into the alleged advantages, legal or otherwise, obtained by persons accused or convicted of crime. There is a feeling that accused persons are surrounded with so many safeguards designed to prevent conviction of an innocent party that criminals have more than an even chance of escaping the penalties of the law. As crime becomes more prevalent and menacing there is a tendency to give more attention to the rights of the people to be protected against fiends who have no respect for human life.

It is encouraging to note that the States are delving into the crime problem. New methods must be devised to frustrate the underworld. Massachusetts authorities may or may not be on the right track, but their attempt to solve the problem is praiseworthy. All the States may be expected to proceed with caution where any fundamental rights of citizens are involved, yet the necessity of putting down new types of crime requires a revision of law enforcement methods.

Wiley Post.

Wiley Post's second flight around the world reveals a rare combination of daring, skill and human endurance. Two years ago Post and Gatty proved that an airplane could be piloted around the globe in a little more than a week. The world marveled at their achievement. Now Post has covered the same distance on virtually the same route, cutting almost a day from the previous record, and he has done it alone.

Where courage was required to press on it was not lacking in this doughty Oklahoma pilot. Yet he was never foolhardy. At Irkutsk, Siberia, he let precious hours slip by while he remained grounded rather than take off into a violent storm. The genius of the pilot and navigator was mixed in effective proportions with the fearlessness of the adventurer. Post was out to win, not to manifest contempt for grave dangers.

The most striking characteristic of the flight, however, seems to be the vitality and endurance of the pilot. When a trip of 15,400 miles is negotiated by a single individual in 186 hours and 50 minutes under the adverse conditions that are found over broad stretches of ocean and across waste lands near the Arctic it inspires the admiration of the whole world. Wiley Post flew around the globe with 20 hours of sleep. Near the end of his journey he was fatigued and sick, but the spirit within him overcame the weariness of the body until his feat was accomplished.

If the attitude of the public toward this achievement could be analyzed, perhaps Post's remarkable perseverance and determination would be found to arouse more admiration than any other quality of heroism that his flight reveals.

The Law Not Jealous.

From the American Bar Association Journal.

During the course of an address recently made to the law and other graduates of the University of Baltimore, Judge Eugene O'Dunne, of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore, denied the truth of the saying that "the law is a jealous mistress." He maintained that she was not only not jealous but tolerant of occasional flirtations with literature and other attractions, and even of more serious entanglements.

Judge O'Dunne has certainly selected the most favorable time for making this revolutionary declaration. The vacation season, now with us, lends itself peculiarly to the reception of such a liberal view. To make his argument still more convincing, he adduces certain facts which must lend powerful support to it in the minds of many who may be wavering between a fishing or motor trip, or something of the kind, and an exaggerated loyalty to the jealous mistress. We quote from the address:

"I submit, law is the most tolerant, liberal-minded, long-suffering dame known to history. While living with her, by her, and for her, and on her, you can openly frequent the House of Literature and worship at the Temple of Art or woo the muses without being arraigned at the bar for desertion, nonsupport or other statutory offenses more grave, and without experiencing even diminution of her affections. The lives of Marshall, Holmes, Brandeis, Cardozo and others are living testimonials of the fact.

"As Marylanders, need I cite William Pinkney, leader of the American bar, who deserted and abandoned law, once for eight years, and again for over five, while on foreign missions in other fields, and to whom she remained as constant as Penelope, though not then put to her 20 years' test. Luther Martin divided his affections between law and the tavern (without a peer at either place) and to each of them he was equally devoted. He lived with both mistresses at the same time. Even when drunk, he was a match for the best, when sober. William M. Evarts, John H. Choate, and, among the living, Elihu Root, John W. Davis, Newton D. Baker and others deserted her for years, but, when they returned, she smiled on them with renewed affections in their undiminished glory at the bar."

He states that "these and illustrious names have demonstrated the promiscuity permitted at the bar." He then proceeds to cite some of the others, but we need not labor the point further at this time. Defenders of the traditional, unchanging jealousy of the law will no doubt be found as autumn comes and winter once more brings its chill encouragement to greater constancy. But for the present Judge O'Dunne's radical view is too pleasing to be challenged.

Crisis.

In the crisis, right and wrong
Make their bid for man;
Right insists that he be strong,
Wrong has an easier plan.

Right may ask him patient to be,
To suffer and toil and wait;
To stand to his task with bravery
And battle the odds of fate.

Wrong may show him a simple trick,
Seemingly safe and sure,
And forever after leave him sick
With an ill he can never cure.

The crisis comes! In that moment tense
On the choice man makes depends
Things of the gravest consequence—
Honor and worth and friends.

Soil Soon Quits Feeding the Farmer If He Doesn't Feed the Soil

By Robert Quillen

AMERICA'S economic machine was wrecked in spite of high wages—not because of them.

There is only one solid and dependable basis for prosperity. Whatever men may do—whether they plant corn or practice medicine or speculate in stocks or work for wages—they must have a generous reward for their effort.

If their reward is small, the land is poor; if it is large, the land is rich.

And since wage-earners are more numerous than any other group in America, the measure of their reward is the measure of everybody's prosperity.

The relationship between low wages and community poverty is obvious to anybody who will look for the truth.

In a typical small town of that section you will find clerks who are paid $45 or $50 a month. The stores keep a stock of sole leather, for many men half-sole their own shoes. In winter, though the climate is mild, few families try to keep more than one room comfortable. The best selling chair retails for 60 cents. The dentist pulls teeth at 50 cents each and makes a complete set of false teeth for $18. The doctors get $2 for a daylight call, attend a maternity case for $10, and rejoice when they collect for half of their work.

In short, everybody pinches pennies and works for a small reward because the people who provide his living have little money to spend.

The old-fashioned capitalist made his profits by paying starvation wages. His system worked because earners were few and his cash customers were farmers and shopkeepers and independent mechanics.

But now we are a land of employes, and the cash customer who makes prosperity gets his pay check every Saturday. And the size of his check determines the good or ill fortune of everybody in the community.

That is the simple truth on which good times depend. If employers forget it, no scheme of government aid or organization can make prosperity permanent.

Political Comment

An Unfortunate Expression.

Houston Post.

The Federal relief administrator has referred to certain States of the Union as "recalcitrant." That is an unfortunate expression.

In case of a violation of a Federal law by an individual, the Federal authority may arrest that individual without asking either the assistance or the consent of the State.

The marvel is that men in the Senate at Washington, claiming to be Democrats, should assume to pass on the legality of a party primary in any State.

If a State be recalcitrant—that is kicks back—it is clearly within its rights and consequently is not subject to either discipline or rebuke at the hands of an agent of the Federal authority.

A "Great Opportunity."

Houston Post.

Secretary of Commerce Roper, who is chairman of the special Cabinet Advisory Board on Industry, has issued an urgent appeal to industries to submit their codes with the utmost possible speed, not only to attain the major objective of the administration, reemployment of the people, but to prevent distortion of existing conditions by speculation.

Roper told industry that the Government desired to encourage rather than cripple initiative, and added: "If industry fails to see this and act accordingly with the agencies that would assist it in this respect, it will forfeit what I sincerely believe to be its great opportunity to retain independent control of its future."

A Danger to Recovery.

Los Angeles Times.

The Associated Press summary of strikes and labor disturbances in many parts of the East shows clearly a serious danger to the recovery program. Strikes by 3,000 clothing makers in Boston, by 3,000 hat makers in New York, by 2,000 battery makers in Philadelphia, by 10,000 hosiery makers in Reading, by 1,000 furniture workers at High Point, N. C., and by needlecraft workers at Scranton, contribute neither to employment nor to national and local prosperity.

Civil Service Postmasters.

Los Angeles Times.

In the midst of what one Washington commentator calls "the worst patronage scandal in a generation" President Roosevelt has suddenly decided to put all postmasterships under civil service and issues an executive order directing competitive examinations for the posts.

Except, perhaps, from the partisan political standpoint, the move is as shrewd as it is unexpected. The Postoffice Department, with its 47,700 appointive postmasterships, is the largest and fruitiest tree in the administration plum orchard and the crowd of hungry aspirants around it is proportionately dense and clamorous. For every one appointed there are nine disappointed, and long and loud are the screams of anguish after the distribution is made.

Civil Service Reform As It Is.

Springfield Republican.

Mr. Roosevelt, like each of his predecessors since the first reform act of the early eighteen-seventies, will do something for the merit system of appointment later on, when the offices shall have been absorbed by his party. Hence his instruction to Mr. Farley to prepare legislation for the next Congress placing all postmasters "on a strictly civil service basis." It is dollars to doughnuts that Congress will sink without trace Mr. Farley's bill; whatever the President may eventually do to "cover" postmasters into the classified service will be through executive orders in the style of his predecessors. Meanwhile, no sweeping judgments can be passed upon this administration's policy. In every community, the appointments will be estimated on their individual merit and local public opinion will know good ones from bad ones.

The Once Over.

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS GETS THE NEWS.

Reporter—Hey, Chris, wake up!

Columbus (drowsily)—Land ho! Land ho!

Reporter—Wake up, Christopher! I've got big news.

Columbus (slowly coming out of it)—What's the matter? Has somebody else stolen that egg trick?

Reporter—Lissen, Chris, 96 Italians have crossed to America in about two weeks.

Columbus—It's a fake report. No boat could do it, even with favorable breezes all the way.

Reporter—They did it by air.

Columbus—Airplane?

Reporter—Yeah; it's a sort of flying boat. And Gen. Balbo brought 23 other flying boats with him.

Columbus (nervously) — Shush! Not so loud.

Reporter—What's the matter?

Columbus—Isabella might hear you. I always told her it was a six-months trip.

Reporter—Would she be sore?

Columbus—You know how women are!

Reporter—I wish Isabella could have seen it! Ninety-six Italians flying through the skies in boats and landing in New York after 19 days, after stops in Canada and at Chicago.

Columbus—I'm glad she couldn't. Say, didn't they have any trouble finding the place?

Reporter—Not a bit.

Columbus (sadly)—That's funny; I was months trying to find trace of it.

Reporter—It's all different now. They have instruments so they can find it with their eyes shut.

Columbus—Here I am having a nice sleep and you have to come and tell me things like that! Who sent this Balbo to America, anyhow?

Columbus—What for?

Reporter—He figured it would be a swell advertisement for Italy.

Columbus (tartly)—Young man, my trip to America was not only a swell ad for Italy, but it was a swell ad for America. They'll remember me long after Balbo is dead. Say, how's he gonna get back?

Reporter—He's going to fly back this week. He expects to be back in Italy by Friday or Saturday.

Columbus—It can't be done.

Reporter—No fooling, Christopher, it's a cinch these days. Nobody thinks of taking more than a couple days to cross the Atlantic. A feller just did it in a little more than twenty-four hours.

* * *

Reporter—Somebody flies around the world in four or five days every month now.

Columbus—Please run along. You don't need to rub it in.

Reporter—They even have mechanical men, robots, that can fly the ocean.

Columbus (turning over three times)—So long, Munchausen. And if you see Queen Isabella tell her I apologize for all the delay.

Letters to the Editor.

Macon Passes Test in Attaching and Releasing Airplanes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The dirigible Macon passed with high honors her first test in picking up heavier-than-air craft. Forty planes attached themselves to the Macon. They did not do it once, but twice, and a few did it the third time. This proves conclusively that the dirigible can become a veritable hornet's nest, loosing fighting planes upon an enemy.

Another advantage of having a dirigible carry or "mother" 40 fighting planes is that the small speedy craft can wreak considerable damage upon any enemy that approaches too near the shores of the United States. I think that dirigibles will prove to be a valuable asset to any nation's war machine in time of conflict. W. C. H.

Lone Headlight a Motor Danger on Washington-Alexandria Road.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I do considerable night driving between Alexandria and Washington, and have witnessed many narrow escapes from accidents caused by automobiles having only one headlight in operation. Most of the automobiles in this condition bear District tags. Would it not be a good idea for the Washington police to make a drive on this type of motorist and thus eliminate this danger to motorists?

VIRGINIAN.

BACK TO ITALY!

A stowaway was taken from a ship that landed at Naples recently. He was an American youth who had gone to Italy to seek his fortune, and the Italians are quite enthusiastic about him, according to the Lincoln State Journal. They take it as a sign of changing times that Americans should beat their way to Italy to seek fame and fortune, instead of Italians stowing away for the promised land of America. While this is an isolated case, it is an interesting commentary on the America of today. While few Americans are venturing abroad in search of new opportunities, it is also true that comparatively few foreigners are trying to slip into the United States.

U. S. Will Pay $90,000,000 to Wheat Raisers

Cash Goes Out This Fall in Crop Reduction, Exports Drive.

(Associated Press.)

Farm administrators will distribute more than $90,000,000 to wheat farmers this fall to cut production and in addition will establish a fund to stimulate exports of the bread grain.

Announcement of this program was made yesterday while they were working out proposed changes in another phase of the wheat industry, marketing, which they have decided is in need of reform after last week's sharp up and down price movements. The Nation's exchanges were closed the latter part of the week.

Today, at a conference of wheat leaders, including representatives of the principal marketing centers, they are going to ask for suggestions for methods of cutting down the swift shifts in prices.

Have Own Plan Ready.

If they fail to obtain what they regard as a plan assuring greater price stability, it was learned they have devised a tentative program of their own aimed to gain the same point which they are prepared to order into effect.

Meanwhile, markets reopening today will operate under restrictions rarely resorted to in the long history of wheat marketing in this country.

Neither will a rise or fall of more than 5 cents a bushel be permitted at any one session. Both rules will be in effect until Wallace is certain that what he regards as the "present crisis" in wheat marketing is over.

A trader caught on the "long" side of the market when grain prices plummeted last week after 20 days of sensational advances, provided a major reason for the rules.

The unidentified operator held more than 13,000,000 bushels of corn, other millions of other grains. Seventeen brokers handling his accounts would have been forced to "sell him out" unless the rule of minimum prices had been established.

This, Wallace believed, would have caused another crash in grain prices reflecting itself in returns to farmers now harvesting and marketing their wheat.

The production control plans developed these points yesterday:

Administrators determined that 460,000,000 bushels will be required for domestic needs during the next year, or 54 per cent of the average national production for the five years ended June 30, 1932.

They decided that farmers signing contracts during this fall's campaign to reduce acreage during the next two years will be paid "parity" prices based on prewar average farm values of wheat on 54 per cent of their production.

Farmers Paid This Fall.

They also decided that the 30-cent a bushel processing tax, levied starting July 9, should therefore yield $138,000,000 and that the first of the payments to farmers on their allotments will be 20 cents, made this fall, and that the final payment, to be made next year, will be not less than 8 cents.

In addition, administrators announced a program to use part of the processing tax proceeds to open up new export markets.

For this purpose they will withhold not more than 2 cents of each 30 cents collected on a bushel of wheat and larger sums in event that fewer farmers than expected join in the plan for reducing acreage.

The export plans are still in a nebulous state with uncertainty whether $1,000,000 or thirty times that sum will be available for opening new markets, long a favorite plan of George N. Peek, chief administrator.

U. S. Gives Funds To Barter Groups

Two State Labor Exchange Relief Units Alloted $16,500.

(Associated Press.)

The self-help barter organizations formed by the unemployed to keep off the dole received a boost yesterday from the Federal Emergency Relief Administration.

Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, alloted funds to two States for aid in starting such organizations, the money coming from a fund he may use for that purpose.

The California State Emergency Relief Administration received $10,000 and the Michigan Administration $6,500.

The California fund will be used under the direction of R. C. Branion, State Administrator, to help groups of unemployed who are providing a large part of their support by the exchange of labor for farm products. The Michigan fund will go to the Community Cooperative Industries, Inc., of Lansing, which through barter activities of the unemployed is supporting in whole or part 350 families.

6,000 Men Will Work Year in Boulder Canyon

(United Press.)

Six thousand men will be employed for a year on construction sites at Boulder Canyon, the Public Works Administration announced last night. The Bureau of Reclamation has been allotted $44,460,000 out of the public works fund for the Boulder Canyon project.

It also was announced that New York and Utah were the first States to start creating jobs by launching their road projects. The Bureau of Public Roads reported that engineers had approved eleven road projects in New York, and six in Utah. It is stipulated that labor shall be limited to 30 hours a week.

Half Forgotten Romances of American History —Mrs. Hazen and Dewey

Cupid's Surprise Conquest Caught Washington's Society Unawares.

By Elisabeth E. Poe.

"My life never really began until George Dewey married me," wrote the late Mrs. George Dewey to a friend, and the beautiful romance between Admiral Dewey and his second wife, Mrs. Mildred McLean Hazen, has become a tradition in Washington.

The final chapter in this romance was dramatically written in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia last week.

Justice James M. Proctor signed an order setting aside a codicil in Mrs. Dewey's probated will which directed that Admiral Dewey's body be removed from Washington Cathedral and reinterred beside her in the mausoleum built in Arlington Cemetery by Mrs. Dewey and the Admiral's only son, George Goodwin Dewey, of Chicago, after the death of Admiral Dewey, January 16, 1917.

As a result of this decree, the bodies of Admiral and Mrs. Dewey will remain in Washington Cathedral.

Mrs. Dewey's action in the codicil was said to have been due to "a misunderstanding" on her part at the time the codicil was written, in May, 1928, that she could not be buried beside her husband in Washington Cathedral.

Has Body Removed.

Mrs. Dewey had her husband's body removed from Arlington Cemetery.

At the reinterment, in March, 1925, she said:

"As Admiral Dewey was a devout communicant of the Episcopal Church for many years, and an active member of the Cathedral Chapter, I have asked that his body rest in the crypt of Bethlehem Chapel until a suitable memorial can be built in the cathedral."

Second only in interest to his feat at Manila Bay was the announcement of the then Commodore Dewey's engagement to Mrs. Mildred McLean Hazen, prominent in the social life of the Capital and the widow of Gen. Hazen, of Civil War fame.

It was the big romance of the Spanish-American War and around the world rang the news that the conqueror of the haughty don had himself succumbed to Cupid.

Washington society, usually alert in the matter of matchmaking, knew nothing of it until word came from Manila how interested the commodore seemed to have been in a cablegram of congratulation, signed "Mildred McLean Hazen."

Long Acquaintance.

It was a surprise romance and only a few of their closest friends knew that, years before, while still the wife of Gen. Hazen, Mrs. Hazen and her second huband had met, and that a pleasant acquaintance had existed for years between Gen. and Mrs. Hazen and the promising young naval officer.

After Mrs. Hazen became a widow, the friendship was renewed in Washington, while Commodore Dewey was assigned to this paradise of service officers.

Rumors flew about and society was kept in the dark as to the extent of the romance. Mrs. Dewey once told a friend that, at that time, there was no understanding of a romantic nature between Admiral Dewey and herself.

It was noted that when Dewey came home to the plaudits of an admiring Nation and to receive a sword and the thanks of Congress, Mrs. Hazen's mother, Mrs. Washington McLean, herself then a widow, turned her historic home at Connecticut avenue and K street northwest, over to Dewey for his personal use. She and her daughter lived elsewhere during the period of the state ceremonies in honor of the hero of Manila Bay.

This writer had the privilege of Mrs. Dewey's friendship during the latter part of her life. One day, in an expansive mood, talking of this half-forgotten romance of hers, Mrs. Dewey told the true story of the courtship, as follows:

"I always wanted to make some record of George's asking me to marry him and this may serve that purpose. Perhaps in the years to come the people will be interested in knowing how so great a man did ask for his future wife.

"After his return from his triumphant visit to Vermont, in October, 1899, he was established in the Everett House in Washington, where he took an apartment.

"One evening he was dining with us. Sister was there besides mamma and myself. Miss E. came in, too.

"I noticed in the ball room after dinner that George kept looking very kindly to me, and was specially observant of my hands, upon which I wore a good many turquoises. Mamma, who, even then, was very frail, went up to her room. Miss E. and sister left.

"The admiral was telling me how they were urging him to go to some Southern cities and how he dreaded it. * * * I said, 'I would not go if I were you. Don't go. Nobody takes more interest in you than mamma and I, and we both think it too great a strain after your anxieties in the Orient.'"

"He said, 'Do you take an interest?' I said, 'Very great.' He said, 'How great?' And I answered, 'More than I can well explain.'

"He said, 'Do you take enough interest to say——' and with this he leaned over and took up my hand. 'Do you mean that you will be my dear wife, and let me love you, all I wish?'

"I was so scared that I smiled as I always do when greatly stirred. And I said, 'Yes, and thank you, too.' With that he kissed my hand and my face and said, 'Thank God!'

"In three minutes he said: 'Can't I see your mother?' I doubted it but I ran upstairs and found her just out of her bath. She followed me to the stairs and George ran up to her. She looked so beautiful and so frail. He, a step below, looked so manly and so splendid. I, still a step lower, looked up at both."

The tears were in both our eyes as she smiled sweetly over these gentle and precious memories. Then she continued:

"Dear Mrs. McLean," George said, 'this dear little lady has promised to be my darling wife.'

"Mamma gasped, but in a second leaned down, kissed his forehead and said, 'God bless you; I give her to you, and she is my dearest possession.'

Short Engagement.

"I never closed my eyes that night. Nor did my mamma. Still she was the happiest and proudest of mothers and I the most blessed of women.

"We were engaged only 10 days. And now I feel that God's greatest gift to me was my dear George. I had no more idea of being asked to be married than if I had never been born."

News of the engagement spread among their friends, news of it also reached the press, and it was a "must" assignment on all the books, for the society editors and the courts were watched closely for the marriage license issuance. But the victor of Manila Bay knew how to outwit the curious. On November 9, 1899, the Admiral and Mrs. Hazen and a few friends went to the rectory of St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church in Washington, where they were married by the late Monsignor Mackin, then pastor of that church.

The story of their married life can be told best by Mrs. Dewey herself. Eighteen years after that morning, on November 9, 1917, she sat disconsolate in her widow's weeds in their home at Sixteenth and K streets northwest. The Admiral had died the January before and it was her first wedding anniversary without him.

To a friend calling on her she said: "Do not commiserate with me. To have been the beloved of George Dewey for 18 years is more bliss than any woman has the right to expect in her life."

Kept Chair Sacred.

How Famous Naval Hero Proposed Is Told by Second Wife.

A broad, purple ribbon sash protected it. All about her were the tributes to his valor given by a grateful people and by other nations as well.

At the foot of her bed each night she kept Dewey's matchless sword and in a will she wrote on October 25, 1923, in which she made Admiral Dewey's only son, George Goodwin Dewey, of Chicago, her principal legatee, she again testified to the deathless romance between his father and herself.

"In addition to the affectionate regard which I have for my stepson, George Goodwin Dewey, it affords me great pleasure to make the above bequest to him as expressing something of my appreciation of the honorable and fearless nature of his father, the enjoyment of which brought unspeakable happiness into my life," she wrote.

At the opening of the World War, Mrs. Dewey came out of her semi-retirement, due to delicate health, and ardently espoused the cause of preparedness. She inspired the holding of the first national defense conference for women in November, 1915, and was the first president of the Woman's Naval Service. She also served as honorary commandant of the National Service School for Women, to which institution she gave a lecture hall, named Dewey Hall.

Helped During War.

During the World War, Mrs. Dewey also equipped, through the Woman's Naval Service, the naval base hospitals at New London and Charleston, S. C., with surgical bandages, hospital garments and ambulances.

When the United States entered the World War in 1917 Mrs. Dewey offered her own services and those of the women in her organization to the Government.

Mrs. Dewey was honorary chairman of the Theodorus Bailey Myers Mason House, at 1606 Twentieth street northwest, a training school for women in Red Cross and other war work.

On her death, February 22, 1931, Mrs. Dewey was buried in Bethlehem Chapel of Washington Cathedral, beside Admiral Dewey. Thus, as an old poet once wrote, "In death, as in life, they were not divided."

Witness-Slapping Wife Is Divorced

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., July 23.—Judge Albert A. Doub has signed a decree granting Adolph W. Grosskopf a divorce from Elizabeth Grosskopf on the grounds of desertion. Judge Doub declared the charge of infidelity was unsupported by the testimony. The wife had sued and a cross-bill was filed by the husband. Both had charged infidelity. The court indicated that the mother should have the custody of a son, 16, and a daughter, 12, pending further order of the court and that an allowance of $40 a month for their support would be decreed.

Mrs. Grosskopf, who is a resident of Washington, D. C., was fined $10 in court here for contempt, after she slapped Frank Foghtman, a witness for her husband, who testified that he had been intimate with her.

Shirt Factory Toilers at $2 A Week Found

Pennsylvania, Connecticut Worst Offenders on Child Labor.

(Associated Press.)

Shirt factory workers receiving as low as $2 a week have been found by the Labor Department in a survey of conditions in nine States.

Secretary Frances Perkins said yesterday that out of 20,000 pay roll records studied, half of the workers earned less than $7.40 weekly during the early summer of 1933.

The highest median wage found was $9 a week in New York, and the lowest was $5.50 in Delaware. The median in Maryland was $5.60, and in Pennsylvania, $6.10. Other States studied were Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey, Missouri and Indiana.

Industry Shifts.

The study also showed a pronounced shift of the industry away from New York, and into Pennsylvania and Connecticut, and from large cities into smaller country towns and rural districts. Reasons given were a desire to escape labor troubles, cheaper labor and lower rent.

"That the cheap labor factor has been important," Miss Perkins said, "is indicated by the fact that the median (middle) weekly earnings found in these country districts averaged just about half those paid in the towns and large cities. * * *

"That the earnings diminished with the size of the community is shown conclusively by the fact that half of the women workers in rural places earned less than $4.30 a week; in places where the population ranged from 2,500 to 10,000, half earned less than $5.50.

Child Labor Used.

"In towns with 10,000 to 50,000 population earnings averaged $7.90 and in cities over 50,000 the median weekly wage was $8.20. * * *

"While women of all ages are employed in the shirt industry, Pennsylvania and Connecticut are the only States in which child labor is extensively used.

"In one Pennsylvania establishment visited, 30 per cent of the female workers were under 16, and in some plants in that State the majority of the workers are under 20.

"In Connecticut, several firms were found against which the State Department of Labor had recently started proceedings for violations of the Child Labor Law. * * *

"Of the 18,000 women workers studied in the nine States, only 10 per cent earned as much as $12 per week, and 35 per cent earned less than $8 a week. For all the States combined there was a large difference in earnings between manufacturing and contracting establishments, median earnings for women in the former being $7.60 and in the latter $6.40."

Miss Perkins said most of the plants visited were found to be busier than they had been for the past year or two and in a few cases were working overtime, hours ranging up to 57½ a week.

Less Than 5c an Hour.

"The median hourly earnings obtained for 14 plants in four States were 17 cents an hour," the report continued. "Of 2,824 workers, all women, there were 24 who earned less than 5 cents an hour, while at the top of the scale were 40 who earned 35 cents and over an hour.

"In Pennsylvania the median was 15 cents, in New Jersey 19 cents, in Connecticut 17 cents. In Missouri the median for the St. Louis plants was 20 cents an hour, while in a large rural factory the median was 13 cents an hour."

Factories studied included the following cities: Indiana—Columbus, Indianapolis, New Albany, Scottsburg, South Bend and Terre Haute. Maryland — Baltimore, Berlin, Cambridge, Delmar, Greensboro, Hebron, Hurlock, Parsonsburg, Pittsville, Salisbury and Willards. Missouri—Bonne Terre, Dexter, Kennett and St. Louis.

Radio Dial Flashes

By Robert D. Heinl.

THERE is little or nothing the Radio Commission can do about the blaring of the loud speakers these summer nights, other than suggest to listeners that they apply the Golden Rule and show the proper consideration for their neighbors, Col. Thad H. Brown, of the Federal Radio Commission, declared yesterday.

"Certainly at this season, when it is necessary to keep doors and windows open, all radio receiving sets should be tuned down very low, so that the signals will be confined to a very limited area. Low, soft tones are, in many respects, much more satisfying and desirable than loud, harsh ones," Col. Brown continued.

"In all communities the police have authority to eliminate public nuisances. Many towns, villages and cities have enacted ordinances which are proving very effective, in limiting the operation of loud speakers. Broadcasting stations might help the situation by suggesting to listeners that they tune down their sets when they use them during late hours.

"At this time we are being petitioned by many "distracted" listeners for relief from loud speakers operating late in the night. Many complaintants charge they are on the verge of nervous prostration.

"Because of the tremendous demand of the vast majority of the listening public, the Commission has designated the broadcast day as that period from 6 a. m. to 12 midnight. But, as some complainants point out, it is possible for a loud speaker to be operated all night, giving forth programs from distant stations, operating within their lawful time. Reducing the hours in the broadcasting day would not, therefore, solve the problem."

ALL wires will be cleared at 9:30 o'clock tonight for the broadcast of President Roosevelt from the White House. His message will go to every principal city in the United States and to many parts of the world.

It will be heard in Washington over WJSV, WMAL and WRC.

The 150th anniversary of the birth of Simon Bolivar, virtual liberator of South America, will be observed in a program presented by the Pan-American Union this noon. An address will be delivered by the Ambassador from Spain, Dr. Juan Francisco de Cardenas.

Messages from the Presidents of Bolivia, Colombia, Ecuador, Panama, Peru and Venezuela will be read and Dr. J. Varela, Minister from Uruguay, acting chairman of the governing board of the Union, will preside. The program will be broadcast over WRC at 11:15 a. m. and short-waved to South America. The U. S. Marine Band, Capt. Taylor Branson leader, will play.

We commend to the attention of our fellow-Hoosier, Paul Wilstach, the fact that the Radio Guild today is to present an adaptation of Rostrand's "Cyrano de Bergerac" (WMAL, 3 p. m.). This play was made famous in the United States by the great actor, Richard Mansfield.

Mr. Wilstach was for years Mansfield's personal representative and wrote "Richard Mansfield, the Man and the Actor," one of the best biographies we have ever read.

"Cyrano" was produced first in Paris in 1897, with Coquelin in the title-role.

Schirmer and Schmitt, piano team, will play compositions by Debussy and Wagner during their recital this afternoon at 4:30 over WRC. The complete program: Overture to "Die Meistersinger," by Wagner; "Polonaise," by Arensky, and "Minuet," by Debussy.

A PRELIMINARY session of the National Governors Conference at Sacramento, Calif., will be heard over WJSV at 2:30 p. m., today.

Secretary of War George H. Dern, representing the President, will deliver the keynote speech.

When Gen. Balbo arrived at Bolling Field, he was clad in an immaculate white uniform. But when he entered an automobile to ride to Washington, he took with him the imprint of a big black hand on the back of his coat.

Phillip Merryman, radio engineer, was the innocent cause of it. Merryman was aiding in getting the general to the microphone, and in doing so, because of the crowds, he held on to a cable. The result was a rather smeared hand. And when Merryman inadvertently put his hand on the general's back, a black smudge resulted.

"Sweetheart Darlin'," hit song of Marion Davies' motion picture version of "Peg o' My Heart," will be given a new interpretation by Will Osborne over WJSV at 10:45 a. m.

"GETHER Roun', Chilluns," a series depicting the character of Uncle Ab Wallace, a famous old North Carolina slave, will begin tonight at 7:45 o'clock over Station WRC, under the direction of Shannon Allen.

John Shelley, who is taking the part of Uncle Ab, played leading character roles for many years in Robert Mantell's Shakespearean performances. The voices of the Dixie Quartette, whose Negro spirituals and Southern songs already are known to radio listeners, will present the musical background.

Henry M. Neely, the "Old Stager," acting as narrator, will bring to the radio audience much of the background of "Yesterday and Today," a program of hits from the nineties and now. The series will be heard over WMAL tonight at 7 o'clock.

For nine years, since her start with the first dramatic company to go on the air from WGY, Schenectady, Rosaline Green, actress, has been receiving letters from a chronic invalid who never misses a broadcast in which Miss Greene appears, and never fails to tell her how her voice pleases him.

William F. Stevenson, chairman of the Home Loan Corporation, will discuss this new Federal agency over WJSV tonight at 7:15. The H. O. L. C. is an organization designed to help debtors whose homes are burdened with mortgages. Like the farmers, home owners will be able to arrange easier payments and still remain in possession by cooperating with the H. O. L. C.

"Straightening F Street" will be discussed by H. H. Levi, of the Washington Chamber of Commerce over WMAL at 8 o'clock tonight.

ROY ATWELL, noted stage and radio star, now appearing at the Earle Theater, said today he has signed with Fred Allen to return to the air, starting Friday, August 4.

Chester Lauck and Norris Goff, two young men from Arkansas, were close friends and chums for twenty years before the sudden rise to radio fame as Lum and Abner. (WRC, 6:30 p. m.)

Usually radio teams are brought together fairly late in life through professional contacts. Lauck and Goff were pals at college, and both had settled down in the little town of Mena, Ark., one in the wholesale grocery business and the other as manager of an automobile finance company, before they ever dreamed of becoming Lum Edwards and Abner Peabody.

Their professional careers began in the winter of 1930-31, when a flood swept through their section of the State. Benefit performances for the flood victims were put on in the towns and cities, and Lauck and Goff, who were known for their ability as mimics, wrote a sketch depicting life in one of the small towns in the hills of Arkansas.

They were so successful that the manager of a local radio station offered them an engagement. When that engagement was terminated they severed their business connections in Mena and hied to Chicago to seek an audition with N. B. C.

Both boys have a sincere admiration for the type of rural characters they portray, and their sketches have the ring of authenticity. They were successful again in Chicago and soon were heard over the networks. Later they went to the N. B. C. Station, WTAM, in Cleveland, where they have been presenting Lum and Abner, Ford Dealers of the Air, for some time.

Lauck, who plays Lum, is slender in build and over 6 feet in height, with black hair and a dark complexion, while Goff, who portrays Abner, is short, stocky and blond. Both are married.

Walt Mason, Himself

Enough Is Plenty.

I JUST have bought a fiction book that holds 1,200 pages; I'll read it through, by hook or crook, though it may take me ages. Twelve hundred pages of the best for just three paltry smackers! It's easy on my treasure chest, and my financial backers. I'll read a chapter at a time, my ardor undiminished, and then, when comes the winter's rime, perhaps I'll have it finished. The publishers, they looked around, and saw the people busted, they heard a sad and wailing sound from customers disgusted. "We can't afford to blow a buck for any sort of novels," the people said, all out of luck, while mourning in their hovels. "We can't afford the picayunes for padded, short romances, we need the coin for spuds and prunes, and can't take any chances." The publishers, they huddled close, and said, with signs of grieving, "We'll have to give a bigger dose for what we are receiving. Three hundred pages in the past were all the folks expected; but now we find the world aghast, kerflummixed and dejected." And so the "Omnibus" arrives, eight stories bound together, to brighten up our jaded lives, and show us sunny weather.

New Yorker Today

By Mark Barron.

New York—Little dramas, little tragedies, little comedies—you can hear dozens of them by eavesdropping among the crowds bustling along Sixth avenue.

"He promised to buy me a permanent wave for my birthday, but he hasn't called up since then." . . . "I had a job as maid to a woman on Seventy-sixth street, but she fired me because I couldn't help laughing when I saw her blowing on her soup . . . "If I can cadge another dime, I'll have enough for a plate of franks and beans." . . . "Is this a free country or not? A guy can't even stop to chin a little without a dumb cop yelling to move on."

Manhattan Melange.

"Business with me ain't picking up. I only had four fares since 6 o'clock, and one of them only tipped me a dime." . . . "There's a grand sale on Fourteenth street. Real silk dresses for $2.95." . . . "Look at that sap trying to flirt. I've a mind to bang him with my pocketbook." . . . "Naw, I don't. If I had a nickel I wouldn't get a shine." . . . "He socked me right on the nose, then he got sorry and started crying."

"Beat it around there. An old gink is giving a quarter to every guy in the line." . . . "It looked like a good job, but this fellow started getting fresh right away, so I walked." . . . "It's too hot. Let's go to sleep in the park." . . . "Whassa matter them Giants? They can't hit a balloon."

Painful Dentistry.

A fetching blond lass, with a coruscating glint in her eyes, became enamored of a young dentist, and their romance blossomed with all the beauty of arbutus and violets for several months. He had not a single fault she could discover until one day she decided she needed some work on her own molars.

What was more meet than that her boy friend should attend her, so she tripped over to his office overlooking Central park. Then, to her horror, she discovered that her devoted tooth puller was an irrepressible amateur song writer.

Despite the fact that his lyrics are inexcusably bad and that his voice suggests two cats fighting on the back fence, he insists on singing his newest compositions to his patients. Strapped in the chair and with a whirring drill poised at their lips, the patient is in no position to protest the impromptu song recital.

Which may explain to the song scribbling dentist, if he should read this, why so many of his patients fail to return and why his erstwhile ever-loving honey is never home when he calls up these days.

Snake Fights Itself.

Burns, Oreg., July 23 (AP).—Mrs. John Waterhouse, of Hines, heard the warning buzz of a rattlesnake. Investigating, she saw the reptile coiled on a window sill of her home, striking angrily at its reflection in the window. The snake was killed. It had nine rattles.

Byrd Sees Oil Code as Blow To Employed

Section Barring Rebates Will Be Protested to Johnson Today.

A protest against section 10 of the gasoline and oil code will be lodged with Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator, industrial recovery act, at a hearing today involving more than 200 independent retail dealers in northern Virginia.

Senator Harry Flood Byrd, of Virginia, in an authorized statement, declared adoption of the section, as included in the code, would throw many retail gasoline and oil dealers in Alexandria, Arlington and Fairfax Counties, Va., out of business.

In direct opposition to the administration's policy, he pointed out, the code would force unemployment as well as the loss of business.

He said he was ready to assist in eliminating the section, which would stop producers and wholesale gasoline and oil dealers from making allowances or rebates to retail dealers sufficient to equalize profit on the sale of gas and oils.

Virginia Man Weds In New York City

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., July 23.—The marriage of James Crawford Calhoun, jr., of New York City, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Calhoun, of this city, and Miss Margaret Haymaker, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howard Haymaker, of Christiansburg, Va., was solemnized Saturday, at 5 p. m., in the Church of the Transfiguration, New York, the Rev. John Forbes Mitchell officiating.

Mrs. Calhoun is a great-granddaughter of the late Davidson Charlton, a pioneer resident of Montgomery County, Va., and is a relative of the late Rev. John Haymaker, of Strasburg. She attended Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Lynchburg, and Radford State Teachers College.

Mr. Calhoun is employed by the engineering department of the Interborough Rapid Transit Co., in New York, and is a native of Augusta County. Mr. and Mrs. Calhoun will be at home in New York City after September 15.

"THEY" is a word we hear frequently in government employe circles. "They" is a word of mystery to be spoken in a low tone. "If 'they' will leave this bureau alone we'll possibly escape a further personnel reduction," &c.

Who is "they?"

"They" seems to be the mysterious force that causes an employe to dread the consequences of ill will from someone above him. "They" is the word used when we hear of that iniquitous graphic rating scale. "They" are the ones who have power to make or break and the whole mess is clothed in anonymity.

All of which impels the Federal Diary to offer a five dollar merchandise prize for the best definition of "They."

Marine Corps Headquarters:

Emerson Giles, of the A. & I. Department, Marine Corps, has promised everyone in the department a fish. He is going fishing this week-end near Brooms Island. Emerson, you can get sardines for 3 cents a can.

New York seems to have quite an attraction for the Marines. Bob O'Toole and Jack Sinapoli just returned from a three-day visit. Edward McCabe and Tom Powers left on the 19th for a week's visit, and Mrs. Freda Konopka will leave Friday to spend the week-end with her husband, who is employed there.

Mrs. Jane Blakeney (*) said she just wished something would happen to her so that her name would appear in print.

Mrs. Arlene Mix is all aflutter over her contemplated trip home to dear old Reedsville, Va. Who wouldn't be?

Welcome Back!

WELCOME back, strike up the band. Give our prodigal a hand. How we've waited his return from that overlong sojourn far from all the charted ways, welcome back to happy days.

Welcome back, stanch friend of ours. Black and dreadful were those hours and hope faded to a ray when you strayed so far away, but now listen to the chimes welcome back to better times.

Welcome back, the table's set, prince of fellows, hale, well met. See our welcome mat is out and we mean it, have no doubt, dinner's on, come get a seat, welcome back to dollar wheat.—Franklin Coffman, Agriculture.

Dates worth remembering: July 24, 1897: Dingley tariff act passed by Congress in special session and boosted woolen and silk fabric rates. Wool and hide dutiable rates were put into force. July 24, 1901: Navy Department ordered inquiry into Admiral Schley's conduct in Spanish-American War. Requested by the admiral. July 24, 1912: Stars in the flag. Taft issued an executive order dealing with position of the stars in the flag, and color, size and proportions of Government flags. Order later was revoked.

Diary Guest Tickets

IF your name in this column is followed by (*), or if your contribution appears, call on the Federal Diary Editor day of publication, except Sunday, between 4:30 and 5:15 p. m., and receive tickets to Loew's Fox, "Disgraced" (Helen Twelvetrees), or Loew's Palace "Mama Loves Papa" (Charles Ruggles and Mary Boland).

SAW a recent notice to group insurance policyholders of an increase in premium. We recall having owned a group insurance policy, based, of course, on average age in determining the rate. Each year we picked a committee to canvass the incoming and younger members of the organization, showing them the value of insurance to themselves.

Having performed this service to them, we also helped ourselves, for we managed year after year to keep the rate stationary. In a large organization a rise of 10 cents a month on a policy is an important item.

"I WAS called here from Chicago April 12, 1932, for work with the Government as carpenter in the P. B. and P. P., being led to believe from personnel order 71, April 12, 1932, that a six-month probationary period would result in an appointment without further examination. On that belief I moved my family and furniture to Washington. I was furloughed November 11, 1932, for three months. I had been out of work three years prior to my call here."

This man is called upon to keep up a brave front for his son, a tubercular, buying all medicines, &c. He is a Spanish War and World War veteran, service-connected disability from the latter war. He loses $25 pension he formerly got.

In his first examination he had a grade of 105.50. In the second examination he passed with a 90 per cent rating. His family has not been in Washington long enough to receive help. He finds himself with no funds or job.

Fishing—But How!!

APROPOS the Federal Diary Salt-Water Rodeo, it is challenging to state that the fishermen at Chesapeake Beach will have to do some excellent fishing to better the record of Mr. F. Garrison (*), of the shipping section, Washington Navy Yard.

When the noon bell rings, Mr. Garrison chases down to the waterfront to gobble his food and fish for half an hour.

He sits on the seawall and thrusts an 8-foot pole into the river. At its end are three 4-inch hooks fastened together. A hexagonal nut serves as sinker. And, believe it or not, he can easily snag 12-and-13-pound carp and catfish—sometimes three and four within a half hour.

And without any bait, too! No wonder he hasn't bought a fish since he started catching his own! He has elemental equipment, yes! But the poor, poor fish . . . they haven't even got a chance!

A Tight Squeeze.

THE cramped space on submarines is a well-known and stuffy fact. A navy yard visitor approached a sailor near the berth of the R-4, an old wartime "pig-boat."

"Can we go down in the submarine and look around?" he asked. "There are five of us."

"Certainly," replied the sailor; "all five of you can go down at once." Then he grinned. "But you'd better wait until I tell the crew to get up on deck!"

Please accept the appreciation of the association for your mention of its national convention to be held in Chicago August 28 to September 1, with Postmaster General Farley as our speaker-guest of honor.

I also wish to express our approval and commendation for the Federal Diary code for U. S. employes. The six points include restoration of Federal employes' basic pay and five-day week for all Federal employes without loss of pay. These are in our legislative program and support and code are sincerely appreciated.

EVERYBODY'S HAVING FUN.

(A parody on Eddie Cantor's radio parody-song.)

They're tearing hair in London, along the bourse and bund (on)—everybody's on the run.
People everywhere are now keen on revolting, even Nazi men in Rhineland are near bolting.
But whatever comes or goes, this fact quite everyone knows: The Lord will help all those who help themselves.

Church Frown Fails to Bother Elliott and Ruth

President's Son and Bride on Way to Texas for Honeymoon.

Kansas City, July 23 (A.P.).—Elliott Roosevelt said today he was "not interested" in the possibility he would incur the displeasure of the Episcopal Church for his marriage to Ruth Josephine Coogins after a Nevada divorce.

"I am not interested in anything," the son of the President added as the train bearing him and his bride to her home in Fort Worth, Tex., reached this city at 7:20 a. m.

Bishop George Craig Stewart, of Chicago, commenting on the marriage of Roosevelt and Miss Coogins at Burlington, Ia., last night, said Episcopal Church law provides for suspension from communion of a divorced person who remarries when the basis of the divorce is grounds other than adultry.

Roosevelt's former wife, Elizabeth Donner Roosevelt, of Philadelphia, was awarded a divorce on a cross-complaint charging extreme cruelty at Minden, Nev., last Monday.

Talking with well wishers at the door of his compartment here, Roosevelt said "We plan to spend a few days at Ruth's home and then go on to the Coast."

Roosevelt said he and his bride, whom he first met by chance at a reception in his honor in Dallas, Tex., last March, would go from Forth Worth to Los Angeles.

He said he did not know whether he would resume work there as general manager of an air line operating into Mexico.

Along Automobile Row

R. B. English, for a number of years Ford branch manager for the Washington territory, who resigned last January, has purchased the business of the Loeffler Motor Co., 215 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, which has been operating a Ford retail account. The name of the company has been changed to Capitol Motors, of which company Mr. English is head. Numerous changes have been made in the interior of the building as well as the method of receiving and handling service work on Ford cars, which account the new company will continue to represent.

In anticipation of the occupancy of the Government buildings south of Pennsylvania avenue by the Government departments, Director of Traffic Van Duzer's office is one of the busiest places in the city right now. A very close check on the traffic flow south in the morning and north in the evening, as well as east and west, is being made. He realizes that there will be an assembling of several thousand motor vehicles during approximately a half hour each morning, every occupant anxious to get to his desk on time. To handle it both morning and afternoon requires careful planning. Charts in his office show how traffic and pedestrian traffic today is flowing and it is anticipated that he is now planning for a system to take care of all this. Mr. Van Duzer expects that the lights on Pennsylvania avenue between Seventh and Fourteenth and the completion of Constitution avenue from Four and one-half street west to Fourteenth will be very helpful in fanning out the morning and afternoon rush hour congestion.

Lyman Hinkley, who has had many years' experience in the high-priced motor car field in the West, has been appointed general manager of the Kempton Cadillac Corporation, distributors for Cadillac and La Salle in Washington and vicinity.

Edward G. Adams, who has been identified with the retail sales of automobiles in this city for a number of years, has been appointed sales manager of Torrey Motor Co., metropolitan dealers for Dodge and Plymouth.

H. Carlton Hoskinson, of the Kempton Cadillac Corporation sales force, was one of the 114 leading retail salesmen honored by the Cadillac Motor Car Co. at the Century of Progress in Chicago last week. As guest of the factory, he spent three days in Chicago.

Graham Motor Sales Co. has leased the building at 1520 Fourteenth street northwest, which they will occupy as a sales and service headquarters on and after August 1.

Perhaps there is no one more elated over the successful trip of the Italian fliers than John Z. Walker, manager of the Standard Oil Co. Stanavo aviation gasoline was the fuel used in these planes on their trip to Chicago and back to New York. Forty-nine transatlantic flights have used Stanavo aviation gasoline in their flights.

In keeping with Dodge Brothers Corporation, whose business has shown a healthy growth each month this year, J. B. Trew, president of the Trew Motor Co., Dodge distributors in this territory, states that the past two months have been the largest in volume in both retail, wholesale and used cars units in the 19 years that his company has been in business.

The American Petroleum Institute has compiled a set of rules and suggestions to aid in "better housekeeping" around filling stations and bulk gasoline plants. Emphasis is placed on disastrous results that may come from carelessness. Fortunately due to the fire regulations of this city and their observance by the operators of filling stations, a gasoline fire is almost an unknown thing.

Blending of gasoline and alcohol for motor fuel purposes as proposed in the last Congress is by no means a dead issue.

Comparative tests by the Automobile Chamber of Commerce fuel research committee of a blend containing 10 per cent alcohol show:

First—Acceleration is the outstanding performance characteristic demanded by the public and carbureters are set for it. For equal acceleration the fuel consumption with the blend is approximately 4 per cent higher than with straight gasoline. This statement is based on measured performance in cars and corresponds to the heat content of the respective fuels.

Second—Engine starting is more difficult with the alcohol blend. The tendency to vapor lock is greater with the blend.

Third—The alcohol has a higher antiknock value if approximately five octane units, but a much higher cost per unit than by any other available means.

Fourth—The tendency of alcohol to absorb moisture from the air and the water which normally accumulates in the gasoline during storage and service is frequently sufficient to cause separation of the alcohol from gasoline.

Fifth—If alcohol were desirable as fuels for blending the petroleum industry could produce them at less cost from petroleum than they can from corn or other products.

All standard Ford cars now being manufactured are finished with a new enamel developed by the Ford Motor Company. Synthetic resin is used, a combination of glycerin and phthalic acid (produced from coal tar) in making the enamel.

This finish has been used for some time on commercial cars, but it is only recently that it has been applied to the passenger cars. Among the advantages claimed are that it retains its luster longer, that it is not affected by such fluids as anti-freeze alcohol and similar solutions and that the combination itself being lustrous it does not require a finish polishing.

WILLIAM BASTIAN, for years in charge of the accessory department of one of the large tire companies, has accepted a position with the Shell Eastern Petroleum Company, as accessory sales manager for this company, with territory under him from Maine to Florida.

Argentine Paper Raps Radicalism

Buenos Aires, July 23 (AP).—The influential newspaper La Prensa today printed an editorial supporting continuance of the conservative, non-inflationist policies of Dr. Alberto Hueyo, who resigned as minister of finance last week.

The new finance minister should not only be convinced of the necessity of abiding by sound financial principles, the newspaper said, but he must also feel strong enough to battle against severe obstacles on the part of some members of the cabinet and of certain parliamentary groups who desire the adoptions of radical measures which "would not be adopted without damaging the country's good name."

Rosso Remaining in New York Until Italian Armada Leaves

Turkish Ambassador Has Two of Countrymen as His Guests.

THE dean of the Diplomatic Corps, the Ambassador of Turkey, Mr. Ahmet Muhtar, has as his guests Capt. Tevfik, of the Turkish navy, and Lieut. Jevat, of the Turkish artillery, who have been in Chicago for the past ten days, and have returned to the Capital for another visit. They will sail for Europe about the middle of August.

The Ambassador of Italy, Signor Augusto Rosso, who will remain in New York City until the air armada takes off for its trip across the ocean, will return to the Capital accompanied by the newly appointed First Secretary of the Italian Embassy, Signor Bartolomeo Migone, who has just arrived in New York from Europe.

Signor Migone has served in several foreign posts. He was attached to the Italian Legation at Berne, Switzerland, and comes to Washington from Cairo, Egypt, where he served as First Secretary of the Legation. Signor Migone succeeds Count Guido Roncalli, who sailed several weeks ago for duty at the foreign office.

The Minister of Venezuela, Dr. Pedro Manuel Arcaya, will give a luncheon today at the Pan-American Union in honor of the 150th anniversary of the birth of the great South American soldier and patriot, Gen. Simon Bolivar.

Minister of China To Return Tomorrow.

The Minister of China, Dr. Sao-Ke Alfred Sze, will return to Washington tomorrow from Long Island, where he spent the week-end.

The former Charge d' Affaires of Costa Rica, Senor Don Manuel Gonzales, and Senora Gonzales will leave for New York today, after having spent a few days visiting at Shady Side, Md.

The Secretary of War and Mrs. George H. Dern, who have been at their home in Salt Lake City for several days, spent yesterday in Boise, Idaho, where the Secretary addressed the chamber of commerce. They left there yesterday for Sacramento, Calif., where the Secretary will represent the President at the opening of the conferences of governors today.

The Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Stephen B. Gibbons, will return to the Capital today from New York, where he spent the week-end with Mrs. Gibbons.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Mr. Thomas Hewes is expected to return to Washington the first of this week from Hartford, Conn., where he joined Mrs. Hewes for a few days' stay.

Representative and Mrs. Fred A. Britten will leave Washington Thursday by motor for New York, and will spend next week visiting on Long Island, then going to Montauk Point for a week's stay. Later they will motor through the Adirondacks to Canada, and they are expected to return to the Capital the middle of September.

Danish Counselor Returns to Post Here.

The Counselor of the Danish Legation, M. Hubert de Wichfeld, has returned to Washington from Denmark, where he went about two months ago with Mme. de Wichfeld. The Counselor has taken an apartment in the Shoreham until the autumn, when Mme. de Wichfeld will join him and they will again occupy the house at 1327 Thirty-third street, which is now occupied by the Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Harold L. Ickes, and Mrs. Ickes.

The Financial Counselor of the Roumanian Legation, Mr. Georges Boncesco, is in Canada for a holiday visit. Mme. Boncesco is spending this month at Bethany Beach, Del.

Mme. Pillon, wife of Brig. Gen. Francois Pillon, the Military Attache of the French Embassy, will sail early next month for her home in France, where Gen. Pillon will join her later in the year for a vacation.

Miss Jean Browne Wallace, daughter of the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, will leave today and accompany Mrs. Wilson Compton to her summer home at Otsego Lake, Mich., where she will remain a month.

Mrs. Nicholas Longworth Working on Her New Book.

Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, who is an occasional visitor to Oyster Bay, has been dividing her time between Washington and her Cincinnati home, where she is at work on her forthcoming book to be called "Recollections," supplementing her magazine articles. She expects to complete the book later in the summer at Whitefield, N. H.

The former United States Ambassador to Russia, Mr. George T. Marye, and Mrs. Marye have as their guest Mrs. Lily O'Conner, of San Francisco.

Col. and Mrs. Charles M. Wesson have visiting them the former's daughter, Mrs. Raymond Stone and her children, Anne and Gregory, who arrived in Washington last week from West Point, N. Y.

Capt. R. S. Cauvins Here From Buenos Aires.

Lieut. and Mrs. Timothy O'Brien entertained at a dinner dance on the Shoreham terrace Saturday evening. Their guests were Lieut. and Mrs. John Heath, Lieut. and Mrs. William Lalor, Lieut. and Mrs. Francis McInerney, Lieut. and Mrs. John Pearson, Lieut. and Mrs. Carlton Todd, Lieut. and Mrs. John Waters, and Lieut. and Mrs. Henry Wray.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Mrs. Nina Maynard Connor and Col. Laurence A. Curtis, U. S. A., retired, which took place on July 16 in St. Anne's Episcopal Church, Annapolis, Md. The Rev. Edward D. Johnson performed the ceremony.

Mrs. Curtis, formerly a resident of Washington, has been living in Annapolis for the past year. She is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Martin of Washington.

Since his retirement, Col. Curtis has been making his home in Berkeley, Calif. After August 1, Col. and Mrs. Curtis will be at home at 9 Drummond avenue, Chevy Chase, Md.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitney Go to Hollywood.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hay Whitney, who were at Greentree, Manhassett, Long Island, have gone to Hollywood, Calif., for a sojourn. Later they will go to Saratoga, N. Y.

The wedding of the Hon. Phyllis Astor, only daughter of Viscount and Viscountess Astor, to Lord Willoughby de Eresby, son and heir of the Earl of Ancaster, will take place on Thursday at the Parish Church in Taplow Village, England. The wedding will be a simple one, in accord with the village setting. The accommodations of the tiny church have limited the list of guests to members of the two families and closest friends.

Little Miss Davina Bowes-Lyon, daughter of the Hon. David Bowes-Lyon and Mrs. Bowes-Lyon, with Anne Winn and Elizabeth Winn, small daughters of the Hon. Reginald Winn and Mrs. Winn, will attend the Hon. Phyllis Astor as flower girls. They will wear frocks of crisp white organdie, made with full skirts and fitted bodices, and having China ribbon sashes.

The bride will wear a simple gown of ivory satin. The train will be of moderate length, and the veil will be of clear white tulle.

Woodring to Boston By Plane for Wedding

Boston, July 23 (AP).—Harry Hines Woodring, Assistant Secretary of War, arrived at East Boston airport today after a 3-hour trip from Washington, for his marriage at Fitchburg, Tuesday, to Miss Helen Coolidge, daughter of Senator Marcus A. Coolidge.

Secretary Woodring was met at the airport by his fiancee. Accompanied by a motorcycle escort, they drove immediately to Fitchburg.

Culbertson Bridge Challenge Taken

Americans Give Odds in Side Bet With New British Team.

London, July 23 (AP).—A challenge of Ely Culbertson, whose American team yesterday won the Charles M. Schwab contract bridge trophy, to meet any other British team was accepted today.

Capt. Lindsay Mundy accepted the challenge and offered to back his team with £900 against Culbertson's £1,350. The offer was accepted and a match, to begin Friday, was being arranged for 120 boards. If Capt. Mundy's team wins, there will be another match at 300 boards.

Culbertson said: "We are not playing to win money. The bet is necessary to cover our expenses in staying in London and in compensation for missing American matches."

An American team led by Mr. Culbertson, and consisting of Mrs. Culbertson, Theodore A. Lightner and Michael T. Gottlieb, defeated an English team consisting of Col. H. M. Beasley, P. V. Tabbush, Sir Guy Donville and George Morris by 10,900 points for the Schwab trophy. The play was completed Saturday night.

How to Get Well

Shoes and the Century of Progress.

THE influences of certain fairs on civilization is well recognized. Of course there must be a theme in the fair that puts it in harmony with some social trend, else a result of importance would not ensue. A better way to put it is that every important fair has offered an opportunity to society to recognize some social trend, to embrace it, and to develop it.

The great trade fairs, somewhat permanent in character, or staged at yearly intervals, such as the one at Nizhni Novgorod before the revolution in Russia, have forged bonds between people, fostered trade routes, and standardized certain products.

Certain breeds of improved stock have been popularized, standardized, and diffused by yearly stock fairs held in the same country. The fair of 1850 in England, opened by Prince Albert, was an important factor in establishing the world commercial supremacy of Great Britain. The Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia in 1876 played a most important part in establishing the supremacy of the Hamiltonian industrial policy. Its exploitation of the Corliss engine, the telephone, and other machinery made us conscious of the fact that this was the machine age. Of course the exposition did not make it so. It did make us conscious of the fact that the machine age was on us, and this fact, brought home to us by the exposition, caused us to move toward destiny with a clearness of purpose otherwise impossible.

The World's Fair of 1893 in Chicago found itself in harmony with the times on the cultural side. Wealth had been accumulating for some decades and our people, given leisure, were going in for culture. Art, music and philosophy were the great themes of the World's Fair of 1893, because the people had yearnings in that direction and the fair catered to them.

What is to be the great harmony that A Century of Progress will share with the spirit of our day? That question, asked a hundred thousand times, finds a multitude of answers. We may not know what the real answer is until we look back on it and on our present-day culture a quarter of a century from now. Vista, perspective, softening of lights is necessary for the great answer.

But the need of perspective does not prevent people from having answers. One that was not very broad was overheard the other day. This party said the great change that this A Century of Progress would effect would be change in women's shoes. To navigate the distance from the north to the south end with all the by-excursions in between is not possible for any person wearing high-heeled shoes. This type of shoe is made to wear when sitting. The mechanics of the thing does not permit of much walking. The fair is a walking proposition.

The people get broad shoes with low heels as an act of preparation for the trials and tribulations of the visit, just as they prepare for it by washing their feet in alum water and using foot powders. These broad, low heeled shoes, bought for the fair, will prove so comfortable that they will be worn at other times and places.

A Century of Progress will bring about a new fashion in shoes. That's what the writer heard. Believe it or not.

Neurosis.

B. A. writes: What are possible causes of neurosis? Please suggest preventive measures.

Reply.

Among the definitions of neurosis given by Stedman are: A peculiar state of tension or irritability of the nervous system: any form of nervousness. The term is a loose one. It is more a state of mind than a disease. The fundamental cause is a lack of equilibrium. The possible contributing causes run into hundreds. The fundamental treatment consists in training in poise and self-control. Secondary measures of prevention relate to avoidance of the contributing causes.

Wise, in Paris, Says Jews Will Triumph

Paris, July 23 (U.P.).—Obviously referring to the flight of Jews in Germany, Rabbi Stephen Wise today delivered a sermon at the American Church on "Faith, Love and Courage."

As guest preacher at the church, the rabbi said that Israel always triumphed over persecution.

"Germany presently is faced not only by the unshatterable courage of Israel, but by the horror of all Christendom," he said.

Culbertson on Bridge

A LUCKY SLAM.

IT is my good fortune every month to judge some thousand-odd bridge hands which are sent in to a national magazine as part of a huge prize contest which has been running for over a year.

Most of these hands are quite interesting and many of them are very fine from a technical point of view. However, in the great majority of them some fortunate Declarer fulfills a redoubled Slam contract by means of three finesses, a squeeze and three end-plays—and occasionally a coup to boot. The most common of all the hands submitted for the contest is, in other words, what might be termed a lucky Slam.

I have a hand of my own to contribute, which is of this type. On the hand below my partner and I reached a Small Slam contract due to a slight bit of overbidding on both our parts, and made it by virtue of three lucky breaks.

North, Dealer.

	♠ K 4 3 ♡ A 5 4 ◇ K Q J 8 6 ♣ A J
♠ 9 5 2 ♡ Q 10 8 ◇ 6 2 ♣ K 9 6 4 3	N W E S	♠ A J 8 6 ♡ J 7 ◇ 5 4 3 2 ♣ 10 8 7
	♠ Q 10 7 ♡ K 9 3 ◇ A 10 9 7 ♣ Q 5 2

The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

North	East	South	West
1 Diamond	Pass	2 NT (2)	Pass
6 NT (2)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—The two-no trump bid is slightly doubtful but two diamonds seemed to me highly inadequate and one-no trump would certainly be an under-bid.

2—North showed considerable optimism in immediately contracting for the Small Slam. However, he knew that my two-no trump bids are usually quite sound.

West's opening lead was a low club. The Dummy went down and after a few seconds' study I good-naturedly announced to the opposition that the odds were 100 to 1 against my making the hand. But I added that if this hand were a hand in the contest I was sure that Declarer would win two finesses and subsequently find a squeeze for the twelfth trick.

Believe it or not, this is what actually transpired. The club Knave held the first trick. Not being vulnerable, I decided to boldly try to make the hand and not to play safe for a set of one or two tricks. Immediately I led a low spade from Dummy and played the 10 from my hand. This held the second trick. I now led back a spade, which East won with the Ace. Now, no matter what the return, I could not lose any more tricks. Actually East led a club, which I won with the Ace in Dummy. I now ran my five diamond tricks, discarding a low heart from my hand on the fifth diamond. The lead of the King of spades now squeezed the West hand. He was unable to hold on to the club King to top my own Queen of clubs and still hold three hearts to keep the last heart in Dummy from being the thirteenth. He chose to discard a heart and the last three tricks were won in that suit.

If I live and play bridge for many more years, I do not hope ever to bid and make a luckier Slam than that one. My only apology to my opponents was that at least I announced the possibility of making it at the start and even went so far as to outline the play to them at that time. It is interesting to note that strangely enough this Slam could have been defeated by a very remarkable play by East. If East had held up his Ace on the second round of spades the subsequent squeeze could never have developed as I would have been unable to play a third round of that suit except at the risk of allowing East to take two tricks in that suit immediately. Therefore West would have had to find one less discard and been able to keep both hearts and clubs guarded. But I doubt of there are many players who would have seen the possible advantage of refusing the second round of spades, particularly when holding the Knave, unless they looked at all four hands.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

If East is playing a contract of three-no trump and South's opening lead is the club Queen, what card should South next lead if the Queen is permitted to hold the first trick?

South, Dealer.

	♠ 8 6 4 2 ♡ 9 7 6 3 ◇ Q 4 ♣ K 5 4

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

We're All in Print

By Mary Brook Lucas

Being "In the Print" doesn't mean we are publicity seekers. Oh, dear, no! But it does mean we are Fashion wise and are wearing our smart little print costume right through July. Mother's attractive suit of brown and white printed chiffon voile is finished with a large collar of white pique.

For very complementary accessories to accent a dark dress choose one of the hat, glove and bag sets. This ensemble combines a "soldier" type hat of printed satin with matching gloves and an initialed bag built on roomy proportions. "Almost as modern as the Fair building and just about as attractive," decides Judy.

That youthful miss wears a very summery chiffon frock printed in colors that vie with the late garden zinnias. Two black chiffon flowers, black bindings and large black hat add a flattering, sober touch. Judy is the vivacious type of young person who adores a gay dress for gay occasions.

For evening she notices many a popular Chicago debutante wearing one of the soft flowing chiffon frocks in the "dark and light" patterns. The newest thing about Judy's dress is the wide, dropped shoulder line has been used to advantage in ruffles and puffs.

Surprise Packages in Store for Shoppers During This Midseason Buying Time

Sea Lion Lamp, Statis Flower Are Discovered

Furniture Manufacturers Have Capitulated to King Baby.

By the Meanderer.

A sea lion stretched himself over a wave-worn rock. Lazily he watched the sea gulls wheel above him. An artist sketched him, there, and painted him in oils. A sculptor carved him out of stone. A designer of lamps used him as a model for one of his creations. And that is the story of the sea lion lamp. Would you like to have one? They are on sale at a down town store in either green or red, with parchment shades, $1.00.

A surprise package is always a source of delight. There's a grand combination package put up by a Thirteenth street bakery. While you are downtown tomorrow go in and take a peep. There's one loaf of fresh bread, a half dozen sweet rolls, a cake, and a dozen cookies. Price, 39 cents.

She still wanted statis flowers. She donned her hiking boots and called a cab. The search was on. The hands of the clock spun around. The taximeter mounted. She must find this dainty fern-like flower to grace the shoppers' tables. She pried into the corners of a downtown market. On the counter of a flower stall stood a basket of the delicately tinted lavender flowers. Ahead of schedule, and low in price, 25 cents for one bunch, one bunch for several vases.

Vanities Aplenty.

Vanity of vanities, all is vanity!

The counter groaned beneath its load of vanity mirrors, vanity combs and vanity cases! The Meanderer was suddenly philosophical. It's a wonder, she mused, we women aren't vain! The way the stores cajole us with helpful hints on cultivating beauty. Her gaze was drawn to a small round mirror. She picked it up to look at herself. A cyclopian eye peered into the very soul of her. The shock subsided as she realized that a magnifying mirror was not uncommon. She toyed with the handle. A small pair of tweezers hid in its 4-inch depth. Here was another cajolement, this time to tempt milady to pluck her brows. One dollar.

Furniture manufacturers have capitulated to King Baby. Now his high chair enthrones his highness at meal time and folds into an arm chair and table for play time. More surprises yet. Little wheels on the legs allow it to be rolled easily from room to room. Free rides for the ruling infant, and more leisure for his fond parent. In green lacquer finish, $6.95.

A New White Coat?

The little white sport coat you bought in the late spring has served its purpose well. It was the very thing for those cool nights when you strolled along the beach. More than once it has enabled you to wear your sleeveless frocks downtown. A very faithful friend, this white sport coat.

Perhaps it's hard for you to look at it impersonally. Perhaps you're loath to think of it as spotted and yellow through long service. But the hardest facts in life must ultimately be faced. It may be difficult, but let's discard that coat. You need a little inexpensive model to last you through the summer. We have it! The very thing! What about a short coat of cotton waffle cloth? Yes, it buttons down the front, and has patch pockets on the sides. The very plain neck will be delightful with some of those large collars on your frocks, and extremly striking with a gayly-colored scarf. This coat is reduced to $1.95. You'd better try it on!

Work Never Done, Edith Rogers Finds

House Adjournment Means Nothing to Her; She's Still Busy.

In or out of session, the women members of Congress are among the busiest workers on Capitol Hill. One of the busy, busy bees is Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, of Massachusetts.

This attractive legislator, who won the title "The Angel of Walter Reed" through her war work for that institution, will not rubber stamp her correspondence. She reads and signs all letters herself and keeps one woman and two men secretaries breathless getting them ready for her. Even when she is not in Washington she supervises the mail that goes out of her office. Important letters are referred to her at her home.

Representative Rogers adores walking, and often trudges the miles between her upper Sixteenth street northwest home and the Capitol. In the interim between congressional sessions she thinks little of alighting at one of the flying fields near Washington early in the morning and beginning a long day of "trotting about" and then flying back to her home in Massachusetts.

Effective Use of Furniture Needs Little Space

Little space is needed to achieve the charming decorative effect apparent in the above photograph. A corner of a living room, or a hall opening to a terrace has been presupposed by the decorator, who has used classic furniture in the interior and the most modern developments in outdoor furniture on the terrace.

Dress of Child Should Be Like That of Mates

Being Stylish Too Early Makes Clothes Obsession With Girl.

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

Molly had a very artistic mother who delighted in dressing her small daughter in odd colors and styles at a time when most little girls wore blue pleated skirts, middy blouses and boys' reefers.

Undoubtedly the child was more attractive in smocks of dull blues and greens than her playmates in their severely tailored suits, but to the children themselves and more particularly to the little girl in question, she was the queer child of a queer mother—an object of pity because she was not quite normal.

As she grew older clothes became an obsession with her. She withdrew more and more from the group with which she was not uniform, and either played alone, dressing and undressing her dolls, who became nothing but models for costumes, or hung about the more unconforming adult world, gleaning scraps of a life far too old for her comprehension.

At 14 she is out of touch with her contemporaries, and in time, unless some change is made, she will be unfitted for a normal adult life.

I have, I confess, chosen a rather extreme case. Not all children take clothes so hard, nor are all children as yielding to parental control as Molly. Some would show anger and break down the mother's theories; others would take pride in their oddity and even exaggerate its value. But all would react in some way to their sense of separateness, and clothes would assume undue value in their lives.

Children want to be part of the group. Their suits and dresses may be unbecoming and even shabby, but if dressed in the style and general appearance of the other children they are far more content than they would be in expensive new clothes which not not conform to the mode.

Veterans Suggest Duce For Nobel Peace Prize

Rome (AP).—A move to gain the Nobel peace prize for Mussolini as a reward for his creation of the four-power pact has been advanced by L'Italia Grigio Verde, the official organ of the National Ex-Servicemen's Association.

"It is more than legitimate," says this publication, "to affirm the right and duty of conferring the Nobel peace prize on Mussolini.

First Insurance Policy Brought Loss in 1583

London (AP).—The 350th anniversary of the first life insurance policy has been marked here. It was in 1583, when Queen Elizabeth was on the throne, that a William Gybbons took out a policy for $1,900.

The insurers lost, for Gybbons paid a premium of $150 and died within a year.

Out of this small beginning a colossal business has grown, the working class alone carrying $6,000,000,000 industrial insurance.

White Leather Chair Lends Dignity to Terrace Entrance.

"Rockless rockers" in attractive lines are featured on the terrace with a modern outdoor table in chromium. The "rockless rockers" have been said by experts in furniture to equal, if not excel, other types of rocking chairs in comfort.

Clan Chief

Eleanor Washington Howard Last Washington Born at Mount Vernon.

The chief of the Washington clan, men and women, collaterally descended from the first President, is now Mrs. Eleanor Washington Howard, 77 years old, with the history of the Washington family and the Revolutionary period at her finger tips.

Mrs. Howard has the added distinction of being the last Washington living who was born at Mount Vernon, and is General Washington's great-great grand niece. She has a remarkable facial resemblance to her great collateral ancestor.

While inspecting a statue of Rochambeau in Lafayette Park the other day a group of tourists espied Mrs. Howard. She told them all about the statue and about Rochambeau, a Revolutionary hero like her ancestor.

The eyes of one bright-eyed old lady did not leave Mrs. Howard's face while she was talking.

Finally she said: "Pardon me, but we have just left the White House and saw the Gilbert Stuart portrait of George Washington now hanging in the East Room. Do you know you resemble him greatly?"

"Well," replied Mrs. Howard modestly, "I guess I do; all of us Washingtons look alike." Later she posed for the proud and happy tourists, turning her profile so their eager cameras might catch the most pronounced resemblance possible to the Father of his Country.

Roquefort Stirs Jaded Appetite At Any Dinner

Dry Flavor Acquired by Months of Curing in French Caves.

After hours of strenuous sightseeing, many of Chicago's World Fair visitors drop in at the nearby Chicago Athletic Association, where they are received with delicious appetizers and refreshing drinks, planned and prepared under the direction of Arnold Shircliffe, catering manager.

He believes that Roquefort hors d'oeuvres stimulate the most jaded appetite and are the perfect beginning for any dinner. In speaking of the genuine Roquefort, which he always uses, Shircliffe says that it has an "assertive" flavor, and to appreciate its natural tang the hostess should serve it in thin slices or individual wedges, with salted wafers and demitasse, in the dessert course, in tasty appetizers or in very simple recipes. He warns that its excellence is often ruined by housewives who use it in fancy complicated recipes.

The distinctive, mixed "dry cheese" flavor of Roquefort is acquired after months of scientific curing in the cool caves of Roquefort, France. The shopper always can identify the imported product by its creamy white, crumbly texture, etched with delicate "veins of flavor," and its metal wrapper imprinted with a sheep design, symbolic of the animals which supply the rich cream used in its manufacture.

The two following appetizers, delicious, and easy to prepare, were created by Shircliffe.

Pecan Hors D'Oeuvers.

Take jumbo halved pecans or those in shell and divest them of any bitter bits of bark. Be sure that your nutmeats are perfect. Add a little cream to the cheese and stir until it is worked into a smooth paste. Spread a thin layer of cheese on the flat side of a half pecan, then press it against the similar side of the other half. Follow the same directions with almonds if desired.

Shrimp Canape.

Boil fresh shrimps, clean and split. Canned shrimp may also be used. Insert a small portion of cheese in the center of the two halves. Roll in flour, then egg wash, then in bread crumbs and fry to a delicate brown in hot fat.

Friendship Garden Is Floral Link of States

Mrs. Grace Lincoln Hall Brosseau, honorary president general of the D. A. R., while in Washington recently, visited the Friendship Garden at Memorial Continental Hall planted in her honor when she was presiding officer of this army of patriotic women.

The Friendship Garden is a floral cross-section of the United States. There blossom, in perfect fellowship, ivy roots from the birthplace of Sidney Lanier, sweet singer of the South, and chrysanthemums from Longfellow's garden; iris from the Old North Church, in Boston, and hawthorn bushes from the battlefield of Shiloh. Arkansas sent a grown magnolia tree.

He Waited Two Years Before His Favorite Part Came.

By Hubbard Keavy.

Hollywood.—When Preston Foster was an advertising salesman for a newspaper in Philadelphia a few years ago he wasn't superstitious because he believed the only way to get ahead was by working hard.

Now he's Preston S. Foster, he's an actor and he's superstitious.

We were standing on the sidelines while the cameras were being placed for a new scene for "The Man Who Dared," in which Foster has the starring role of Mayor Novak. The story is based on incidents in the life of Chicago's slain Mayor Cermak. It is the biggest and most important role Preston has ever played, the kind of one for which he has waited two years in Hollywood.

"Who wouldn't become superstitious in a business in which luck plays such an important part?" he asked, partly in explanation, partly in defense. "I swear I never used to be. I once thought it funny to whistle in dressing rooms because actors didn't like it, but I changed my mind after I saw what ill luck beset persons who defied the tradition.

Due to Luck.

"The fact that I have this role is due entirely to luck. Yes, that I'm able to play it may be because of ability, but I insist that it was luck alone that got me the part. I was called to play a minor part, but I refused it because it meant only two day's work. The next day it developed that Spencer Tracy couldn't be in the picture and because the director had seen me he thought of me for the lead.

"It just happened that I didn't go out of town, and, furthermore, it just happened that a print of 'The Last Mile' was available for the director to see. He saw my work in that picture and I was in town when he phoned me. Isn't that luck?"

Strangely enough, the role of Killer Mears in the famous death house play has brought two others good luck, too. Spencer Tracy created the role in New York; it brought him to Hollywood.

Gable Had Role.

When the play was staged locally, Clark Gable was fortunate enough to be in it. As a result of his performance, he got the screen test he'd waited years for. And Foster played in the screen version of the picture.

"I still believe hard work is important," Foster went on. "But being in the right place at the right time—simple luck—seems to me to mean more than anything else in this funny business."

Yes, Preston Foster changed his name by inserting the "S," which stands for Spencer, for superstitious reasons. He didn't think he was getting on as well in pictures as he'd hoped when he came here to play in "Two Seconds," so he consulted a numerologist.

He, or maybe it was she, told Preston he'd never get a worthwhile role while he had 13 letters in his name.

What Today Means

"Leo."

IF July 24 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:55 a. m. to 10:10 a. m., from 6:30 p. m. to 8 p. m. and from 9:45 p. m. to 10:20 p. m. The danger periods are from 12:10 p. m. to 2 p. m. and from 5:43 p. m. to 6:50 p. m.

Influences operating on this date will tend to make people introspective. Self-analysis, if not of a destructive or morbid sort, may prove beneficial and lead to development along right lines. Lovers will not get along on this day as well as they might, but no serious upheavals or final partings should occur.

The child born on this July 24 will fit very definitely into his prepared place in the home. His influence will prove stimulating to his parents, and all through his life his presence will mean added weight in the scales of justice and right doings. Great spiritual depths and most receptive to the good things of life, he will cause little trouble or worry to his parents.

If July 24 is your birthday, the chances are that you are a person who brings much happiness and joy into the lives of others simply by virtue of your being what you are. Yours is a buoyant nature naturally. Coupled with that, is an ability to attain happiness yourself in very simple ways. You constantly anticipate good; you look for it in every one and in everything you encounter. As a result, good things do come your way, without any actual striving on your part to bring these good things to pass. People constantly do little things for you.

Born on July 24, you will probably rise to a position of importance in your community. You are intuitive to a goodly degree, and when seemingly baffled by any situation, you invariably feel your way out of it and reach a satisfactory result. You act on your own decisions and are not easily influenced by others. If you get into business, which you probably will, you will best succeed if you can find some work where you will not have to consult with or rely on others to any great extent. You are not, however, lacking in willingness to cooperate. Marriage will come along quite naturally and you will be married without much ado.

Successful people born on July 24:

Henry Shaw, philanthropist.
Josiah G. Holland, author.
Benn Pitman, phonographer.
Lewis Miller, inventor and philanthropist.
William Gillette, actor and playwright.
A. Barton Hepburn, banker.

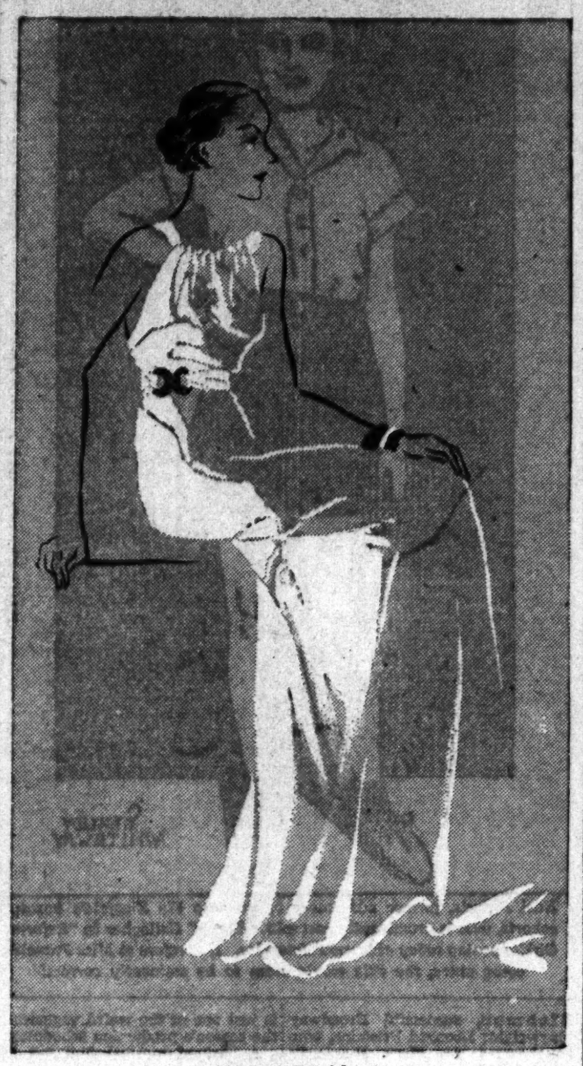
What's in Fashion

Satin in White and Pastel Blends With Sun Tan



By Amos Parrish.

New York, July 23.—White satin with your sun tan in the evening. There's a handsome idea for you. And this is just the moment to take advantage of it. Because satin is a leader for fall and a new creamy white satin evening dress bought now will carry you fashionably through autumn as well as be the most flattering frame you can put round a bronzed skin.

Pastels in satin do great tricks to sun tan, too, and they've right in fashion. Try that pale sort-of-icy green or a delicate blue. The sheen of them brings out all sorts of amazing tints in your skin.

Princess Silhouette.

This new satin dress should follow the outline of your figure in an almost princess silhouette way. Until it gets down to the hem, that is. There it billows out into very grand, very graceful fullness . . . sometimes even out into a train.

Augustabernard has a train on her dress which is made on the real tightly fitted princess lines and absolutely devoid of trimming except for a soft floppy bow on each shoulder.

It's a sophisticated silhouette—not one that the fluffy-ruffles girl will take to. But so elegant that many a fluffy-ruffles girl is going to make herself over into a haughty grande dame just to be able to wear it.

Softly Draped Bodices.

Most of these new satin evening dresses have some kind of softly draped bodice. The shirred halter neckline shown in the sketch is one smart kind.

Other necklines are much lower in front, and the draping that finishes off these usually extends over the shoulder to the still lower-cut back decolletage

Strapped Backs.

Strapped backs are used on these shining satin dresses, too. This year's straps are broader and tend to cover up quite a bit of the back.

New Kinds of Satin.

When you speak of satin this season you don't mean only the plain, flat type. There's a satin with flat ribs; another, of very high luster, with a fine crepe back; still another printed in tiny allover patterns of white on black. (At night it gives an almost phosphorescent effect.)

Croquinole satin has a fine crinkled effect. A metal thread is run through another new satin. And there's a satin-and-crepe striped fabric which is most effective when used on the diagonal.

Mrs. Hoover Busy With Needle Work

Former First Lady Welcomes Chance to Resume Favorite Hobby.

In a letter to a Washington friend Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the former President, wrote the other day that she was finding "more time for her knitting," now that the burdens of the First Lady of the Land have fallen from her shoulders.

This is good news for Peggy Anne, Herbert, jr. (Peter), and Baby Joan, grandchildren of Mrs. Hoover, who could tell what becomes of the soft, colorful, woolen garments made by Mrs. Hoover's busy fingers.

Mrs. Hoover knits these garments for her grandchildren with the skill with which she does everything else. Often she has them choose the colors from which the garments are to be made. Another feminine fad of Mrs. Hoover's is needle-point work. She is especially gifted in the portrayal of trees and blooming flowers in this work.

Surprise Your Family With Outdoor Meal

Picnics Should Not Be Confined to Sundays and Holidays.

Hot weather and picnics are a grand combination, but don't limit your picnicking to holidays and Sundays. Serve picnic style occasionally in the back yard, the porch or even in the dining room. If you live near a park, river or lake, pack your supper and surprise your family by announcing that an outdoor dining room has been chosen for the evening meal. They will enjoy the change and it will prevent your becoming wilted and fagged from standing over a hot stove just before dinner.

The choice of food is not difficult, but remember that outdoor appetites are always keener and it will take more food to satisfy them.

Cook in the cool of the morning and prepare enough so that you can serve the same food in a different manner for several dinners.

It is well to have a variety of cold meats on hand. And if you want to save yourself considerable trouble, your supply of cold meats will be selected from the wide assortment of ready-to-serve meats. These meats are all carefully cooked and seasoned.

Canned meats are a great help in preparing the impromptu picnic, because they are so versatile. Sausages have long been the popular picnic meat and you will find sausages of all types awaiting your approval.

The following menus may offer some suggestions for picnic meals.

Pale Pink Tulle Used In Paris Evening Dress

Paris (AP).—The Countesse Andre de Contades attended a recent evening gala wearing a gown of pale pink tulle. The corsage was simply designed, while the skirt was finished with flounces of the same fragile fabric extending from the waist to the hem. With it she wore a little short sleeved wrap of pale pink tulle.

New Producing Company Announces Films for First Season

Twelve Titles 20th Century's Complete List

By Nelson B. Bell.

After weeks of preliminary ballyhoo and tentative hurrah, mixed with a bit of aggressive defense of the ethics of its campaign for a roster of representative stars, the newest of the producing companies has come out with a specific announcement of its complete season's plans, the executives who will direct the work and the extensive personnel that will insure the satisfactory functioning of each department of large-scale picture-making.

Marked by such exuberant enthusiasm is the introductory paragraph of this comprehensive declaration of purpose that it deserves to be quoted in full, verbatim, and to wit:

"Twelve picture, 'SPECIALS,' sweeping in background, smashing in dramatic content, colorful and brilliant in lavishness of production, and all presenting casts that are studded with box-office names of all-star value—that is the first season's program for Twentieth Century Pictures, as revealed by Joseph M. Schenck, president, and Darryl F. Zanuck, first vice president in charge of production."

This might reasonably be construed as a little dash of the jolly old hooey, were it not that the announcement's continuing remarks fairly well bear out the seeming ebullitions of the first paragraph.

Pursuing the lengthy brochure, one learns that under exclusive contract to Twentieth Century, at the moment, are George Arliss, Constance Bennett, Loretta Young and Constance Cummings, and that other topnotch names will be added to the list as negotiations now under way are completed.

Getting right down to brass tacks, Mr. Zanuck lets it become known that the twelve features, to be released through United Artists, will run about like this.

"The Bowery," the first of the dozen to go into active production, is already pretty well known as a picture that will enlist the services of all three of the borrowed stars above named and introduce such notables of an earlier era as John L. Sullivan, Carrie Nation, Chuck Connors, Steve Brodie and "Nigger Mike" Salter and such well-known moderns as Al Smith, Pimmie Walker, Irving Berlin and numerous others.

George Arliss will make two pictures during the year. The first will be "Red Tape," a modern comedy-drama of fast action; the second, "The Great Rothschild," a biographical drama, like so many of the others Arliss has done, woven around the picturesque life of one of the most famous of the money barons.

Constance Bennett, also is scheduled for two releases. One will be "Moulin Rouge," a musical extravaganza, based on the stage play by Lajon de Bri. While the second has been decided upon, the story is of a nature so foreign to anything Miss Bennett has heretofore done that nothing is being revealed as to its character. It is said that to mention even the title would betray the nature of the story—so nothing is being said.

Another Twentieth Century production that bids fair to prove a sensation—the sock on the jaw administered to its author by the irate Mr. Jolson in the fight stadium in Los Angeles the other night has already given it a flying start—is "Broadway Through a Keyhole," predicated upon the exploits of a notorious columnist who revels in airing the secrets of Broadway's great and near-great. This will have Peggy Hopkins Joyce in the cast, will be directed by Lowell Sherman and will be musically embellished.

The remaining six of the proposed season's product are "Blood Money," an original story by Rowland Brown, having to do with the bail bond and income tax rackets; "Miss Lonelyhearts," featuring an "advice to the lovelorn" editor; "Trouble Shooter," an original by J. R. Bren and Elmer Harris, noted playwright, glorifying the lads who keep the telephone wires straight; "Born to Be Bad," Ralph Graves' story of the "customers' girls" in the garment trade; "P. T. Barnum," an epic of the life of the greatest showman ever born, and "The Unnamed Woman," by Willard Robertson, former Washington stock actor who, for a time, was an attorney-examiner with the Interstate Commerce Commission and numbers many Washingtonians among his friends.

Outside of these few minor chores, Mr. Zanuck has practically nothing to do!

To make the record complete, you might care to know that among the directors engaged to guide the players through these Twentieth Century productions are Raoul Walsh, borrowed from Fox for "The Bowery;" Gregory La Cava, whom you may identify most readily by his "Gabriel Over the White House;" Lowell Sherman, Walter Lang, who made "The Warrior's Husband" and "No More Orchids," and Sidney Lanfield, whose last three were "Dance Team," "Hat Check Girl" and "Society Girl."

For those with literary tastes, it will be of interest that the writers who will see to whipping the Twentieth Century yarns into shootable shape, include Howard Estabrook, who will long be remembered for his adaptation of Edna Ferber's "Cimarron," Clemence Dane's "A Bill of Divorcement" and "The Masquerader;" Elmer Harris, James Gleason, Arthur Richman, successful Broadway playwright; Leonard Praskins, who collaborated on Mary Pickford's "Secrets," "Min and Bill," and other notable successes; Sam Mintz, John Huston, Graham Baker and Gene Towne, Maude T. Howell, Nunnally Johnson, coauthor with Arthur Kober of the amusing, "Mama Loves Papa," currently at the Palace; Henry Lehrman, Laird Doyle, Courtney Terrett, Michael Simmons, Ralph Graves, Harold Long, Rowland Brown and the aforementioned Willard Robertson, who broke into the writing game as coauthor of "Big Game" with Kilbourn Gordon, a former drama reviewer for this desk, who guessed right on "The Cat and the Canary" and made himself a piece of dough!

After all this, all Twentieth Century needs to do is see to it that at least some of these pictures turn out to be good!

Speaking of former Washington stock favorites—as we were back there in the case of Mr. Robertson—another one, Warner Richmond, has a bit as the radical soap-box spellbinder in "Mama Loves Papa," with Charlie Ruggles and Mary Boland. Mr. Richmond was a member of the former Columbia Players and appeared also with Charlotte Walker in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," in which Mr. Robertson likewise did a realistic hillbilly. That, however, was a few years ago!

It is, after all, perhaps not so surprising that "The Ingenues," appearing on the stage at the Earle this week, present one of the most brilliant orchestral offerings ever seen in the Capital.

One of the axioms of the theater is that the major difference between a chorus girl and a star is merely a matter of mentality. That probably holds true in equal measure as marking the difference between a mediocre orchestra and one of the best on the road.

At any rate, that is a fair assumption, for "The Ingenues" rate especially high in college and university alumnae. The record of their cultural background reduced to cold type compiles this list of distaff instrumentalists and their respective alma maters:

Mina Smith, Springfield, Ill., Champagne University; Genevieve Brown, Hardensburg, Ky., University of Kentucky; Paula Jones, Maywood, Ill., University of Illinois; Mary Donahoe, Chicago, Ill., De Pauw University; Dorothy Donahoe, Holy Child Convent; Juel Donahoe, Uptown Musical Conservatory of Chicago; Grace Brown, Hardensburg, Ky., University of Kentucky; Frances Gorton, Porto Rico, Indiana University; Thamar Lacey, St. Pius College, Sidney, Australia, and Maxine Kirch, Madison, Wis., Madison University of Music.

Without any desire to inspire a long and futile trek to Hollywood in quest of quick employment and movie fame, it may be set down as one of the breaks in the clouds of adversity that have enshrouded the Nation these past few years that the skies are looking a little brighter to the movie extras as a group, even though there are still dark days ahead for many of them as individuals.

After a rather meager record for atmosphere jobs doled out during the first six months of 1933, it is reported from the West Coast that there has recently been an increase of about 25 per cent in extra placements.

The percetnage increase, however, it is pointed out by Dave Allen, manager of the Central Casting Bureau, is not so significant of good fortune for the registered extras—numbering about 17,000—as it would appear at first blush.

It is one of the peculiarities of the increased call for extras that many of them have been for members of distinctive groups who do not make a business of extraing, but may be engaged on call—ex-soldiers, school children, authentic Russians, Chinese and the like. This is just one of the weird vagaries of the season's production schedules.

A revived musical film fad has very definitely placed rainbows 'round the shoulders of the chorus girls. They are finding steady work again after many months of lean pickings.

All of which ought to have some bearing or other on the working of the recovery code, or somethirng.

Mason and Faye, smart young steppers, are clicking like a Morse sounder as entertainment headliners this week at the Club Michel Marine Roof, Walter von Herbulis' night club, 'twixt Thomas Circle and the stars. These versatile young dancers, who come to Washington from a season of uninterrupted activity in New York, present their own original dance creations.

Pete Macias and his orchestra, Marty Rubin and his voice and Charlie Wright and his goings-on continue to contribute rhythmic interludes that fill in splendidly between the entree and the roast or the dessert and the coffee.

Or do you take your own sandwiches with you?

Howard Dietz, of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer publicity forces—when he is not knocking out books and lyrics for hit revues—vouches for this one, which is no reason whatever, he being avowedly a press agent, why anyone has to believe it.

Every night when she finished work on the "Another Language" set, Louise Closser Hale hurried home to work in her garden. There were so many snails in the patch that she named it "The Snailery." Then a friend told her a duck will eat snails. Miss Hale bought a duck. The duck ate the snails. The duck also quacked. The neighbors—probably the same ones who had recommended the duck—complained. Now Miss Hale is in the market for a quackless duck on a snail diet!

Glen Echo Park.

Glen Echo Park claimed a large percentage of the recreation seekers over the week-end, all of whom sampled everything on the bill of fare at the popular resort.

Coaster dips, airplane swings, the old mill, as well as the hundred and one things to amuse, were all doing capacity business.

Sunday was the big day for the picnic parties. Good car service along the Potomac aided things considerably.

Morton Is Paid Honor at Camp Ritchie Service

War-Time Commander of 29th Division Will Be Buried Wednesday.

Special to The Washington Post.

Camp Albert C. Ritchie, Cascade, Md., July 23.—Tribute to memory of Gen. Charles G. Morton, wartime commander of the Twenty-ninth Division, was paid by Brig. Gen. Milton A. Reckord at the annual memorial services of the First Infantry, Maryland National Guard, here today.

Gen. Morton is to be buried Wednesday at Arlington National Cemetery, Washington. The memorial services were conducted by Maj. Frederick C. Reynolds, former Washington clergyman, chaplain of the regiment.

Names of Dead Read.

The names of members of the regiment who have died since the last camp were read. They are Lloyd C. Riggin, Headquarters Company, Third Battalion; Charles C. Cannon, Headquarters Company, First Battalion; James E. Kibler, Company E; Robert L. Schlotterbeck, Company B. The always impressive firing squad and bugler were made even more so when the sound of musketry and bugle echoed from the mountains surrounding the camp.

Capt. Joseph C. Cissel, of Silver Spring, was transferred to assistant plans and training officer today and his place as regimental supply officer is to be filled by First Lieut. Lewis W. Kreh, also of Silver Spring. Col. D. John Markey, commanding officer, today inaugurated an innovation in talking movies at camp. The first picture shown is a song film and members of the command sing the words.

Will Parade for Woodcock.

Another innovation, starting tomorrow, will be a march past Lieut. Col. A. W. W. Woodcock, of the regiment, as it starts to the training field in the morning. The regimental band will play as the men march past. The first regimental parade under the new army regulations was held today before nearly 5,000 visitors. Several men were overcome by heat, one being a color guard. None was in serious condition. Col. Markey ordered that parades will be held late in the evening on hot days in the future.

Robert Fechner, director of the civilian conservation camps, and a party of ten today inspected the conservation camp No. 55, at Camp Ritchie. After the inspection Mr. Fechner said the camp has accomplished more than any he has inspected and that it has the best living and working conditions.

Funeral Held for Son Of Dr. Stanley House

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., July 23.—Funeral rites for Stanley N. House, son of Dr. Floyd N. House, professor of sociology at the University of Virginia, were held at 11 o'clock this morning from the university chapel, the service being conducted by the Rev. W. Kyle Smith. Burial was in the University Cemetery.

Young House had recently graduated from Lane High School, this city, and was planning to enter the university next session. He was born in Boulder, Colo., but had lived here for the past seven years. Besides his parents, he is survived by one sister, Mrs. John Walsh Moore, of the university.

Two Men Captured As Chicken Thieves

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., July 23.—Two chicken thieves, believed to be members of a gang which has stolen $10,000 worth of fowls in Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Virginia, were captured here today by a local officer at the point of a gun. The pair had just disposed of a truckload of fowl to a Winchester huckster.

Acting Sheriff J. W. Newcome saw the men unload their chickens and became suspicious. Just as the pair started to drive off, he commanded them to halt, but Hicks refused to stop the car until the officer jumped on the running board and jabbed a gun in the former's ribs.

Kiwanis Boys' Camp Open in Fairfax County

90 Lads Will Be Summer Guests of Alexandria Club Members.

The Washington Post Bureau, 907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va., Phone Alexandria 523.

The boys' camp of the Alexandria Kiwanis Club at Mount Hebron Park, Fairfax County, will be opened formally today, when President Irving Diener and a number of club directors will escort ten boys to the camp to join five who have been there since Thursday, comprising the first contingent to spend ten days as guests of the club.

The camp is ideally located on a tract of 13 acres of wooded land. The building is 56 feet long and 16 feet wide and consists of a large dormitory, a lavatory with two shower baths, modern kitchen and dining room, the latter to be used only in bad weather, private rooms for the director and the cook and a large porch which will be screened and used as overflow sleeping quarters in addition to serving as a dining room when the weather permits.

The camp is electric lighted, cooking is done on an electric range and water is supplied from a 40-foot well, with an electrically-driven pump. There is a storage tank with 500 gallons capacity.

Clarence Ale in Charge.

The camp director is Clarence K. Ale, who has had several years experience in boys' camps. Godfrey Runaldue is his assistant.

Ground is being cleared for a baseball diamond. Gloves, bats and balls have been supplied, and there are 15 pairs of stilts for the amusement of the youngsters. Director Ale stated yesterday that a training schedule will be worked out shortly. Plans also are under way for building a dam near the camp and impounding the water from two springs to form a "swimming hole."

The boys already in camp are becoming accustomed to camp routine rapidly. The day begins at 7 o'clock. After breakfast the boys "police" the camp and spend considerable time working on their baseball diamond. Games are played under the direction of Ale and Runaldue and at 8:45 p. m. lights are extinguished.

Open to Needy Lads.

This camp is a part of the program of the Kiwanis Club for the underprivileged children. The boys are selected carefully, only those whose parents are unable to afford an outing for them being selected. Each boy is furnished with two suits of overalls or play clothes, and will receive all the benefits of the camp, without charge, for ten days. The club expects to entertain not less than 90 boys during the summer.

Next Sunday will be flag-raising day at the camp. The ceremony of raising the flag will be conducted by President Diener and members of the club. There were many visitors at the camp yesterday, but next Sunday will be designated specially as visitors' day.

Bag-Worm Plague Strikes Arlington

Comes From Egg of Wingless Moth and Eats Trees and Shrubbery.

The dreaded bag worm is eating up shrubbery in Arlington County, it was revealed yesterday.

The Agricultural Department says the worm, which comes from the egg of the wingless moth, is most prevalent on garden shrubbery, but at times is found to thrive on the oak and elm tree.

Investigation in the vicinity of Lyon Village, Arlington County, revealed that cedar trees were practically alive with the worm, which is found concealed in what resembles a bag. In some cases the trees were stripped of foliage.

There are two ways, it was found, to destroy the pest; one to pick the bag from the tree, the other to saturate the tree with arsenate of lead. Care must be exercised in using the spray, as the solution is a deadly poison.

Nats Beaten by Tigers, 12-8, Drop to 2d Place as Yanks Take Pair

Britain Eliminates U. S. in Davis Cup Play; Vines Collapses on Court

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

There's comfort, though, in the evidence that the Nats are a "road" club this season. Their home stays this year have borne nothing but grief. Their weakness used to be in the West and the North, but on foreign fields this year they have been eminently successful, except in Philadelphia, which is the fly in the ointment right now.

The Nats have won only one ball game in six attempts in Philly. The closest they have come to winning two was the day a windstorm broke up a 13-to-13 game in the tenth inning. That game will be played off as part of the double bill this afternoon in Shibe Park.

Not Unduly Perturbed.

I am in a mood today, as far as the Nats are concerned, to make Pollyanna look like a rank pessimist. Two weeks ago I was viewing with distinct alarm the loss of the Nat's league lead, but at this writing I find it difficult to become unduly perturbed.

The first time it happened, I was quick on the trigger in bemoaning the sad estate of Cronin's Club. It was hard to take, that loss of the lead after the Nats were out in front winging by 4½ games. But all was forgiven when they settled down to some nice baseball and went right back to the top. They did it once, and —you know the possibilities.

Despite that awful commotion out at the ball yard yesterday in the eighth inning when Cronin's pitchers looked like so many sand-lofters, there is no small bit of balm to be extracted from the performance of Monte Weaver, who was making his first start since June 8. Despite the fact that Weaver left the scene under a cloud in the sixth inning, there remains the fact that Monte let only one man reach third base for five frames. Weaver showed signs.

Goslin May Be Back.

The chances are that all will be forgiven between Joe Cronin and Goose Goslin today in Philadelphia, when the Goose doubtless will get back into the line-up. That right field in Philly is maae to order for Goslin and Cronin will perhaps be inclined to put personal differences, if any, out of the reckoning for the good of the team.

That all was not as it should be between the kid manager and the right fielder was apparent in Friday's game when, with the Nats in dire need of a left-handed pinch hitter, Cronin called not on Goslin, but on Cliff Bolton, a fellow who has made one hit in ten appearances in the pinch.

Runs, Hits and Errors.

Schoolboy Rowe graduated from yesterday's game in the third inning . . . but not with honors . . . the Nats had socked him for five runs . . . I didn't hear what Bucky Harris shouted to Monte Weaver from the Detroit dugout . . . but Umpire McGowan did . . . but I can imagine the general trend of Harris' monologue . . . up in the coal mine district of Pennsylvania, where Harris hails

Austin's Win Clinches Series

Vines Is Trailing, 7-6, in Fifth Set When He Falls to Ground.

By Melvin Whiteleather.

AUTEUIL, France, July 23 (AP).—England routed America's Davis Cup tennis forces today in another smashing display of singles power that sent the Britons into the challenge round against France and left the American champion, Ellsworth Vines, face down in the red dust of Roland Garros Stadium, a victim of nervous exhaustion.

Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin, slightly built English ace, had definitely clinched the series with a hard-earned triumph over Wilmer Allison, 6—2, 7—9, 6—3, 6—4, but Vines' collapse in the fifth set of his match with Fred Perry furnished a dramatic windup for the biggest crowd that ever saw the interzone finals at Auteuil.

Falls Prone on Court.

Troubled by an injured ankle, Vines had waged a game fight against Perry for four sets in a match that could have no bearing on the series result, but was trailing 6—7 in the final set. As he prepared to serve set point with the score 15—40 against him in the fourteenth game, the tall Pasadena star suddenly fainted, fell prone to the court, his long arms stretched out full length in the dust.

Officials quickly hurried to his aid and carried him to the clubhouse where he was revived in a few minutes.

Will Battle France.

Perry was awarded the victory, 1—6, 6—0, 4—6, 7—5, 7—6 default, thus giving England the series, four matches to one, and qualifying the Britons to battle France in the challenge round here Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Thus came to a dismal end America's high hopes of regaining the Davis Cup France has held continuously since 1927. Out of the five-match series, the Americans saved only the doubles, where George Lott and John Van Ryn trounced Perry and George Patrick Hughes yesterday in straight sets.

America's defeat was forecast on Friday when Vines, playing just about the worst tennis he ever has exhibited since he became a top-flight player, was soundly trounced by Austin in straight sets, and Allison proved equally easy for Perry.

England, on the basis of its splendid showing against Australia in the European zone finals and against America, probably will enter the challenge round slight favorites over the cup holders.

Lacks Necessary Punch.

Allison just missed being the hero of the afternoon. He worried Austin throughout the first match, but didn't quite have the punch to force Bunny into tight spots. As it was the match looked like anybody's up until the tenth game of the fourth set when three consecutive errors followed by an out by the Texan gave Austin game, set and match, and England the third and decisive victory of the series.

After he had smashed through to win the long second set, Allison looked like a winner, but the Texan's overhead game failed to function thereafter and he constantly was dropping easy shots into the net.

Austin Is Cheered.

The crowd, although it was more friendly to the Americans than it had been on the first day, cheered Austin and Britain when the Texan erred for match point.

Vines and Perry then came out for their dramatic but meaningless encounter. The two gladiators reeled off curious games, the American giving little in the first set and losing everything in the second. Vines' showing in this set was pitiful, although his ankle didn't appear to be bothering him. The net absorbed his shots as if it had been made in England for that purpose

Vines settled down again in the third set to gain a 2-1 lead and was giving Perry a terrific battle in the fourth when he fell and injured his ankle again. After that the American depended wholly upon his service, declining to run after the ball at all.

Drops Sixth at Love.

He dropped the sixth game at love and Perry had things his own way thereafter except on services Vines scored 12 aces, 6 in the fifth set, but double-faulted 18 times eight times in the final set.

After the match was over, Bernon S. Prentice, leader of the American team, complimented the Britons on their fine play.

"Great Britain played better tennis thay we did," he said. "Austin's game was the best I have ever seen him play. We proved that we have a magnificent doubles team."

Vines insisted tonight that there

Early in the Game, When the Nats Looked Like Winners

The venerable Sam Rice scampers into third base ahead of the throw to Owens on his triple in the third inning while Umpire Ormsby and Coach Schacht stand by. The blow helped the Nats to the 5-0 lead they couldn't hold.

Kight Girl Adds Fourth A.A.U. Swim Title

40,000 See Miss Hoffman Take Breast Stroke by Finger Length.

By Orlo Robertson.

NEW YORK, July 23 (AP).—Completing a sweep of the free style events in a manner that recalled the feats of some of America's greatest mermaids, including Helene Madison, Lenore Kight, sturdy little swimmer from Homestead, Pa., today won the 880-yard race for her fourth title in the national A. A. U. championships at Jones Beach.

Miss Kight's time was 11:44 3-5 as she churned to the finish line 40 yards in front of her nearest rival, Susan Robertson, of the Women's Swimming Association, of New York.

Miss Kight's victory, which assured the Carnegie Library Club, of Homestead, the team championship, with 30 points, overshadowed the dethroning of 15-year-old Katherine Rawls, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., in the 220-yard breast stroke by Margaret Hoffman, Bryn Mawr College girl, of Scranton, Pa., and the winning of the high dive by the Olympic champion, Dorothy Poynton, of Los Angeles A. C.

H. Johnson, Pipgras in Fine Form as Boston Wins Pair, 6-2 and 7-2.

BOSTON, July 23 (AP).—The Red Sox took their fourth and fifth straight games from the Chicago White Sox in the current series today, 6—2 and 7—2, behind the able pitching of H. Johnson and George Pipgras.

It was the seventh straight game the Red Hose had taken from the White Sox in the last two series.

Johnson limited the White Hose to seven hits in the opener, three, including a homer, were by Simmons, who also drove in Chicago's two tallies. Boston made 11 hits off Lyons, Wyatt and Faber.

Tight Defense Helps Pipgras.

In the nightcap Pipgras, although touched for ten hits, was able to win his second start of the series. None of the ten hits was for extra bases and sensational fielding by Werber and Walters, Boston rookies, prevented several scores.

Cronin, Up Against It for Pitchers, Must Use Crowder and Burke; First Named Handicapped by Cold in Muscles.

By Frank H. Young.

MANAGER Joe Cronin and his Nats boarded a train for Philadelphia last night, leaving behind a generally disappointed bunch of followers. Returning home from their last Western invasion, they were in front four and a half games, but a sorry showing against the same teams here finds them half a game behind—a net loss to the Yankees of five games since July 7.

While the Philadelphia team of 1933 is not what it was last year, it still is troublesome and the Nats will have to play improved ball if they hope to do any gaining in the five games listed at Shibe Park.

A double-header is carded for this afternoon, with Skipper Cronin compelled to call on "General" Al Crowder to toil in one of them, despite the fact he was kept home in bed Saturday. Crowder's ailment was diagnosed as a cold in a muscle, instead of pleurisy, as first reported, but he probably will not be at his best. Bobby Burke seems to be Cronin's only hope in the other game, with prospects looming quite dark in case pinch-pitchers are needed.

These outfielders surely are fielding cautiously these days. From the stands, it looked as though Manush could have caught Fox's liner in the second, but he stopped and took it on first bounce.

Billy Rogell, Tiger shortstop, is one of the few turn-around hitters in the league, hitting equally well—or should we say poorly?—from either side of the plate.

Cronin went behind Bluege to the edge of the grass for Hayworth's bounder ending the third. His long throw beat the catcher to first by a whisker. It was a really great play and prevented a run, for Fox was tallying at the time.

Davis made a sensational gloved-hand stop of Cronin's grass cutter opening the home second, but had little chance to make the play at first, and it went as a hit.

Umpire Bill McGowan did not like some of the things Bucky Harris, Tiger manager, was yelling at Weaver from the bench in the sixth and sent him to the showers. Coach Del Baker took charge of the Bengals for the balance of the route.

Kuhel made a great try for Gehringer's rip-snorting bounder in the sixth, but did not come up with it and the alien second-sacker was credited with a hit.

The Nats benefited from a break of luck when Cronin's humpback bounder just cleared Sorrell's head in the seventh. This allowed Manush to register from third, although Rogell got the ball and killed the batter at the doorway.

Rice came in fast to make a good catch and hold Gehringer on third on Doljack's Texas leaguer in the eighth.

Alva Williams, Former Nat Catcher, Expires

Since his retirement from major league baseball Wiliams had lived on a farm near Hamilton, Ill. He caught for the Washington Nationals from 1910 to 1917 and for Cleveland during the 1918 season.

A benefit ball game, planned for today, was postponed because of his death. His mother and one son survive.

New Yorkers Top League as Indians Are Beaten Twice

New York, July 23 (AP).—The Yankees regained the American League lead today by defeating the Cleveland Indians by the same score of 8 to 1 in both games of a double-header, while Washington dropped a single game to Detroit.

The Yanks celebrated the 300th and 301st consecutive games in which which they have avoided being shut out. The last blanking they received was back in August, 1931.

Gehrig Slams Nineteenth.

Johnny Allen and Danny MacFayden limited the Indians to 13 hits in the two games, while Lou Gehrig helped win the first by clouting his nineteenth homer of the season. The blow came with two aboard in the fifth inning and contributed to a six-run rally that drove Wes Ferrell to cover and decided the game.

Harris Is Ejected From Park and Misses His Team's Rally.

By Shirley L. Povich
(Sports Editor of The Post).

Mr. Bucky Harris,
Manager, Detroit Tigers,
General Delivery,
U. S. A.

Dear Buck:

I noticed as how Hizzoner Bill McGowan thumbed you out of the ball park yesterday for some things you were saying to Monte Weaver in the sixth inning, and I thought you might like to know some of the details concerning what happened while you were downstairs cooling your vocabulary under the showers.

After you left the ball game, Buck, your Tigers took advantage of the absence of your inspiring leadership and turned Washington's 5-0 lead inside out, raising an awful commotion in the eighth inning when they up and scored nine (no kidding) runs to win the ball game by something like a 12-to-8 score.

Lose League Lead.

It is all sad for me to relate, Buck, particularly in view of what happened up in New York where the Yankees dismantled the Indians in both ends of a double-header for a pair of 8-1 victories that pumped them to the top of the league again. Coincidentally, of course, the Nats skidded back into second place, a half game beneath the top.

It was too bad you had to miss the big doings, Buck. You might even have had a chance to pitch for the Nats late in that eighth inning when Washington was running short on pitchers and Cronin started looking threateningly in the direction of Mascot Jimmy Mahorney. That was when the third out in the eighth looked as far away as Jimmy Mattern.

Then Came the War.

Your boys finished what you started on Weaver in the sixth inning to score a couple of runs and narrow the score to 5-2, Buck, but by the time they got around to Al Thomas in the eighth, the Nats were in front, 6-2, with a lead that looked as safe as the second Lindbergh baby.

And then came war.

Washington's pitching staff was just so much fodder for the bats of your lads, Buck. Thomas could only get one man out, while the Tigers were scoring four runs to tie the score at 6-6, but he was eminently successful compared to Bill McAfee and Earl Whitehill, who, with Bobby Burke, made a total of four pitchers that the Nats used trying to get your boys out in that eighth.

Milburn Hurls Millers to 1 to 0 Victory Over Stantons for First-Half Crown

Error Leads to Deciding Run in 3d

Losers Put Three on in 3d, But Lack Punch to Bring Them In.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

A SOUTHPAW and an orthodox hurler, former teammates at the University of Maryland, locked horns in a good old-fashioned pitchers' battle yesterday with the first-half championship of the Capital City League at stake—and the right-hander won.

The victor, Harry Milburn, pitched for the Miller Furniture Co. The vanquished, Ray Davidson, hurled for Stanton Cleaners. The score was 1 to 0. The largest crowd to witness a sandlot baseball game this season braved the heat of a broiling sun to see the Millers trounce their highly touted opponents.

Error Proves Costly.

Inning after inning the pair turned back rival batsmen with a varied assortment of curves, slow balls and speed balls. But for an error that paved the way for the winning run, the two may have battled on into extra innings. Milburn granted only four hits, fanned three and walked three. Davidson was nicked for five bingles. He issued two passes and whiffed four.

It wasn't the defeat, but the humility of Elmer Lambath's clownish antics in right field that made the Stantons feel badly. Elmer had himself a time of it, misjudging flies, bending over backward and stabbing them with his gloved hand when it seemed that the ball would escape him for an extra base hit. He toppled over backward after one catch.

Elmer's unusual conduct in the third inning was responsible for the one and only run of the game. Milburn rifled a single to right field, continuing on to third when Lambath neglected to arrest the ball's flight. "Mouse" Miller was retired on a slow roller, but Carey Maupin came through with a two-bagger down the left field line, scoring Milburn.

Stanton had three men on base in the third, but Milburn bore down and not a man crossed the plate.

Wheaton Nine Divides.

Three home-runs from the bat of Gordon Freas enabled Wheaton to break even in its twin-bill with Gaithersburg yesterday. Gaithersburg won the opener, 9-6, but Freas' trio of homers gave Wheaton an 18-13 verdict in the second.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

ARTHUR HUBELL, inflationist extraordinary, allows himself to be pumped up with a tire pump until, with more air than it takes to fill a tire, he increases his normal waistline by 40 inches. The process is simple enough; he just takes the pump hose in his mouth and holds it there while a friend does all the work.

All this gas on the stomach causes Mr. Hubell no pain. When the Strange As It Seems motion picture company from Universal City filmed Mr. Hubell for a sequence in the Strange As It Seems short, he said he once stayed inflated for three days without feeling discomfort. In the movie you can actually see him being inflated.

The flamingo feeds on small aquatic invertebrates living in shallow still water or mud lagoons. With its long bill the bird would find trouble in picking out each individual morsel, so it scoops up the water and strains out the food through its bill. During the process the head is held upside down.

• • • •

Not only is there a gooseberry bush in a tree as shown above, but there is a bird's nest in the gooseberry bush and, from this we may presume, there are or were at some time eggs in the nest in the gooseberry bush in the tree. Nobody ever bothers to harvest the gooseberry crop—because after you climbed 45 feet up the tree there would be, besides the thorns, possibly the bird, to contend with.

At the Post . . .

Dear Al: Arlington Park, July 23.

I had visions of a steak dinner when Postscript flattered the Bennings selections by stepping down in the first race. I had visions of a week's vacation over in Canada when Grand Prince made it two in a row. I had visions of a new machine, 15 gallons of gas, six new suits and a half-dozen shirts, when Singing Wood proved my third straight. But I lost the new machine in the fourth, the 15 gallons of gas in the fifth, the shirts in the sixth, the week's vacation in the seventh and the steak dinner in the eighth. You know, that's why I like racing. You never can be too sure just what's going to happen.

BILL.

First race—Unless there is a maiden in this race that has been kidding us along, I see no reason why Sir Ten can not breeze home with the long end of the dough. Certainly figures the best. Open Range looks like the best place proposition. Adamite for the show end.

Second race—Just how they are going to beat Brown Wisdom here I don't know. And I don't believe it is going to be done. This one is in fine form now and ready to step fast. LaSalle is rounding into good shape and may beat out Votan for the show end.

Third race—Now let's take a shot at the moon. Timorous has been whispered to me as a brisk worker. Worth taking a chance. Morsum looks like the one to beat. Doris Jean for the show.

Fourth race — Uncommon Gold gets in here with only a steadying impost and is the class of this kind hereabouts. Mrs. Let appears to have a good chance for second money. The sleeper may be Helen Bab.

Fifth race—Liberty Oak seems to have found himself since traveling West, and this looks like the logical spot. Gene D. is a fair sort of juvenile. Gold Pot to take care of the others.

Sixth race—Mr. Joe may be as much as even money in this race, but even that will be a good price. Gay World to do the chief chasing. Big Red for the remainder of the cash award.

Seventh race—My old friend, Stone Martin, who stepped down for me recently, will find this a rather suitable engagement. He will have the formidable Annimessic as his chief rival. Beaver for the show end.

Eighth race—I'm going to string along with Rock Coventry. I know this one is at tops and crying to run. Looks like we'll get a price, too. Snaplock and Pharahead to battle it out for the place and show.

Potomacs Tied With Maids for Lead

Eastern and Versis Lose; Title Game This Week or Next Sunday.

THE list of contenders for the first-half honors in the midget division of the Capital narrowed down to Washington Maid and Potomac Fish Co. teams yesterday as Eastern A. C. and Versis A. C. fell by the wayside. The Maids walloped Versis for a 13-4 victory, while Savoy was outslugging the Easterners to win, 17-14.

But for President Richard S. Tennyson's action in awarding the verdict to the Potomac team in its protest of an ineligible player used by the Savoy A. C., Washington Maid's victory would have given it the championship. Tennyson's action puts the team in a tie with the Potomacs. The two will play the titular game either this week or next Sunday.

Every member of the Washington Maid team made at least one hit. Fourteen bingles in all rattled off the winners' bats as they pounded first Long and then Dechard.

Savoy scored 11 runs in the last two frames of the six-inning game to gain the verdict over the Eastern tossers. Holtane, with a hit for each of his four turns at bat, led the winning drive.

Loney and Goldsmith-Wallenstein Score Minor Public Parks Tennis Upsets

Garnett Bows in Singles Match

All Favorites Advance Handily in Women's Singles Play.

THE second day of the Public Public Parks tennis championship tournament passed serenely into history at the Rock Creek Reservoir courts yesterday with only two minor and no major upsets being recorded. Barney Welsh, seeded No. 1, and one of the heaviest favorites, dignified his first appearance in the tournament by romping through the second and third rounds in straight set wins over Tom Terry and Hal Weiss, both by scores of 6—1, 6—1.

Frank Shore, another favorite, defeated Pierce and Phillips to advance to the fourth round. Pat Deck, a seeded player, made a similar advance. Gene Hermann, Maurice O'Neil, Dean Judd and Gilbert Hunt, all seeded players, triumphed in third-round matches.

Two Minor Upsets.

Two minor upsets were scored, one in the men's doubles and one in the men's singles. The doubles upheaval occurred when Goldsmith and Wallenstein clicked off a 3—6, 6—1, 6—3 victory over the No. 3 seeded team of Ritzenberg and Gould.

Bob Loney created the mild ripple in the men's singles by eking out a 6—4, 0—6, 6—3 win over Muscoe Garnett, who had been generally rated his superior on the courts.

Face Harder Fights.

Today's schedule for the men's singles calls for the appearance of Anthony Latona, Pat Deck, Barney Welsh, Gene Hermann and Gilbert Hunt against opposition perhaps stronger than any they have been called upon to face so far.

Men's Singles.

Second round—Hy Ritzenberg defeated Morris Ruckman, 6—8, 6—4, 6—1; Ben Scheideman defeated Arthur Tomeldon, 4—6, 6—0, 6—4; Strand Johnson defeated Fred Carpenter, 6—1, 6—0; Hush Trigg defeated Alan Staubly, 7—5, 6—4; M. A. Evans defeated George Considine, 3—6, 6—2, 6—1; Frank Shore defeated Ted Pierce, 6—3, 6—4; Larry Phillips defeated Frank Garfield, 6—2, 6—2; Pat Deck defeated Harry Goldsmith, 6—4, 6—1; Barney Welsh defeated Tom Terry, 6—1, 6—1; Robert Boyd defeated Robert Burwell, 6—8, 6—2, 6—1.

Third round—Dave Rains defeated Tommy Thompson, 6—3, 7—5; Morris O'Neill defeated Scheideman, 6—2, 6—1; Fred Mesmer defeated Pin Talbot, 6—2, 7—5; Gene Herman defeated Elwood Hoffecker, 6—4, 6—4; Ritzenberg defeated Don Garber, 1—6, 6—2, 7—5; Dean Judd defeated Johnsen, 3—6, 6—1, 6—0; Frank Shore defeated Phillips, 6—2, 6—2; Stan Haney defeated Harvey Dawson, 6—0, 8—6; Deck defeated Ben Detwiler, 6—4, 9—7; C. Blanchard defeated O. Steinhauser, 6—2, 3—6, 8—6; Welsh defeated Hal Weiss, 6—1, 6—1; Morgan Jacobs defeated Boyd, 6—3, 8—6; Gilbert Hunt defeated Byrd Ferneyhough, 6—1, 6—1; Bob Loney defeated Muscoe Garnett, 6—4, 0—6, 6—3.

Women's Singles.

First round—Frances Stone defeated Catherine Berrall, 6—1, 6—1; Catherine Wassman defeated Dorothy Kelso, 6—2, 1—6, 6—3; Betty Whitfield defeated Margaret Graham, 6—2, 6—2.

Second round—Clara Tabler defeated Esther Wu, 7—1, 6—0; Bobsy Turney defeated Betty Kronman, 3—6, 8—6, 6—3; Sara Moore defeated Edith McKelvey, 6—0, 6—1; Kay Johnson defeated Lou Gatling, 6—1, 7—5; Dorette Miller defeated Ruth White, 6—0, 6—1.

Men's Doubles.

First round—Shoemaker and Lerum defeated Stoner and McLaughlin, 6—4, 3—6, 6—2. Hermann and Blanchard defeated Hulz and Verges, 6—4, 6—4. Cyr and Cyr defeated Hooker and Yeomans, 5—7, 6—4, 6—4. Deck nad Garnett defeated Stein and Mintz, 6—2, 6—1. Dreschler and Hoffecker defeated Cyr and Meininger, 6—4, 6—1. Shore and Johnson defeated Post and Scheideman, 6—1, 6—1. Doyle and Detwiler defeated Johnson and Trigg, 6—2, 4—6, 6—1. Hill and Anderson defeated Forsyth and Mathews, 6—3, 6—3. Goldsmith and Wallenstein defeated Ritzenbers and Gould, 3—6, 6—1, 6—3.

Second round—O'Neil and Welsh defeated Lonow and Talbot, 6—2, 6—1. Hermann and Blanchard defeated Cyr nad Cyr, 6—0, 6—1.

Schedule for Today.

Men's singles—4 p. m., Latona vs. Rains. Deck vs. Blanchard. Welsh vs. Jacob. Loney vs. Hunt. 5 p. m., Trigg vs. Erana. Shore vs. Haney. 5:30 p. m., O'Neil vs. Mesmer. Hermann vs. Ritzenberg.

Woodmont Golfers Beaten By Baltimore Team, 28-26

By Dave Herman.

RENEWING an old rivalry, Woodmont Country Club's 12-man golf team lost by a 2-point margin to the Suburban Country Club of Baltimore yesterday on the Woodmont course. Suburban scored 28 points and the host club, 26.

The Woodmont women, however, gained revenge for the men's defeat by winning from the Suburban feminine team, led by Mrs. Jerome Sloman, 13 points to 11.

Suburban added another victory when Ralph Beach, its crack professional, dusted Tom Hudgins, Woodmont pro, 3 and 2, in a special 18-hole match. Shooting a 37 for the first nine, Beach rounded the turn 2 up on the tall tutor from Virginia.

Kaufmann Trophy is Prize.

Victory in the men's battle gave Suburban the Edmund I. Kaufmann Trophy, while the Woodmont women won the Isaac Goldenberg Trophy. The club that wins the trophies three straight seasons takes permanent possession of them.

Howard Nordlinger, Woodmont champion, set the medal pace with his 77, although he and Mel Kraft lost to Nathan Kaufman and Milton Holle, 5½ to 3½. Lou Harris and Bob Baum featured for the home forces by scoring 8 points against Morton Rothschild and Louis Melson.

Mrs. Sloman, outstanding Baltimore women's golfer, shot an 88 in defeating Mrs. Jerome Meyer, of Woodmont, 3 points to 0.

Results:

Suburban (28), Woodmont (26).

Nathan Kaufman and Milton Holle (Suburban), 5½ points; Howard Nordlinger and Melvin Kraft (Woodmont), 3½; Stewart Weiller and Leon S. Hanline (Suburban), 8½; Fulton Brylawski and Gilbert Hahn (Woodmont), ½; William G. Illch and Byron Ackerman (Woodmont), 5½; Sam Dexer and David Schwartz (Suburban), 3½; Lou Harris and Bob Baum (Woodmont), 8; Morton Rotchschild and Louis Melson (Suburban), 1; Al Steinem and Morris Goldstein (Woodmont), 5½; Sam Silber and Sidney Goodman, 3½; Theodore E. Straus and Donald Weiller (Suburban), 6; Morris Simon and Amby Schloss (Woodmont), 3.

Woodmont (13), Suburban (11).

Mrs. Jerome Sloman (Suburban), 3; Mrs. Jerome Meyer (Woodmont), 0; Mrs. Ralph Goldsmith (Woodmont), 1½; Mrs. Lester Levy (Suburban), 1½; Mrs. Gertrude Schloss (Woodmont), 0; Mrs. E. D. The 520-yard 13th hole of the Congressional Country Club golf course was not unlucky yesterday for Maury Nee, 18-year-old Columbia star.

Nee negotiated the hole in a birdie 4 that enabled himself and his exhibition partner, Harry Pitt, of Manor, to defeat Sandy Armour, home pro, and Luther Steward, jr., former Congressional champion, 1 up in a hotly-contested 18-hole match.

Pitt started the fireworks by pumping in a 10-footer for a birdie 4 on one of the longest holes in this section—the 575-yard first. This put his team in front, and the amateur duo remained ahead until Armour birdied the 8th with a 4. They went to the turn all even.

Armour and Steward became 1 up by winning the 11th in 4's, but Nee was not to be denied. He spanked his shot on the green of the short 12th, nabbed his par 3, while the other three took 4's. Then followed the hole that proved the margin of victory, and it was Nee who won it.

Pitt prevented an overtime match by matching Armour's birdie 3 on the home hole. The Manor ace was 9 feet from the pin on the hole that measures 258 yards, and just did miss his putt for an eagle two.

John Downey, East Potomac spring champion, swung into the semifinals of the District public links tournament at his home course yesterday by defeating J. O'Malley, 2 and 1. The match was even going into the turn, but Downey's putter began to work with telling effect as he stroked in putts for wins on the twelfth and thirteenth holes to take over a lead that he never surrendered.

Downey will meet Lee Sweeny this week, while Harlan Will, the medalist, will engage Bradley Burrows.

H. B. Willey, with 77-14—63, won first low net prize in the sweepstakes at Washington Golf and Country Club. E. F. McIntire, with 87-17—70, was second. E. T. Rice, carding a nifty 38-36—74, was awarded the low gross plum, with Reese R. Hair placing second, with his 79.

Al Houghton continues to finish in the money.

The Kenwood maestro was back home yesterday from Scranton, Pa., where he placed ninth in the Pennsylvania State open championship, won by Dick Metz, of Deal, N. J. After shooting a 155 on the first day, Houghton clicked off a subpar 72-71—143 Saturday. He won $50.

Finishing in the cup on the nineteenth hole, H. A. Strong captured first prize in the flag tournament at Beaver Dam. W. J. LaBille, 2 feet from the nineteenth cup, was second.

Other winners:

D. M. Pratt, 20 feet from nineteenth pin; M. C. Naylor, 50 fet from nineteth hole; J. P. Strong, on edge of nineteenth green; H. R. Devilbiss, in trap on nineteenth; H. G. Gibson, 200 yards down nineteenth fairway; L. L. Neene, 155 yards off nineteenth tee.

A birdie 3 in the fourteenth, resulting from a 30-foot putt, enabled Johnson to shoot a subpar 35 for the second time. Needing a par 4 for a 70, Johnson ruined his chances by three-putting the ninth.

Playing with him were Virginia Pope, who scored an 84, and Lloyd Carey, who shot an 83.

Johnson's card:

Out, par	4	4	4	4	5	3	4	3	4—35
Johnson	5	5	4	4	4	3	4	2	4—36—71
In, par	3	4	5	5	4	4	4	3	4—36—71
Johnson	4	4	4	5	3	4	4	3	4—35—71

The second hole-in-one ever made on the 183-yard third hole of Sherwood Forest's golf course was registered yesterday by George W. Romney, of the Westchester Apartments, Washington.

He played with Stanley Murphy, Harold Hart and F. Mowritsen. The first ace on that hole was scored back in 1928 by J. Carter Walker.

Barbers Stop Heights

Outfielders had an easy time of it as Certified Barbers hung a 9 to 3 defeat on Congress Heights yesterday. Not a single ball was knocked to the outfield. Mahaney, Barber shortstop, accepted 12 chances without a miscue. Jake Lewis led the winning attack with four hits.

Nats Are Beaten; Lose First Place

I might add, Buck, that before it all ended, your lads got a look, too, at Whitey Campbell, the Nats' new pitcher, making it an even half dozen pitchers Cronin used yesterday, one for every two runs your boys scored.

That eighth inning bears retelling, Buck. I know you'll enjoy it. It went something like this:

Gehringer singled to right. Stone singled to right. Thomas walked Fox. Doljack flied to Rice. Rogell singled to center, Schulte kicked the ball and then couldn't find it, and the three men on base came tramping home while Rogell went to second. Hayworth singled to center, driving Rogell home with the tying run, and Thomas out of the box.

It'll take at least two more paragraphs, Buck. Anyway, Bill McAfee came in and got Pinch Hitter Walker out for the second out, and then he walked Davis. Owens drove a double past Bluege and two more runs scored, whereat Earl Whitehill came into the box to do something about the situation.

Whitehill couldn't get anybody out, either. Gehringer, up again, singled again. Stone, up again, singled again. Fox, up again, singled, and Boljack, up again, doubled. Whitehill apparently didn't have his stuff with him, and Bobby Burke finally negotiated the third out. By that time, your boys had their nine runs and the ball game. It was the worst thing that has happened to the Washington pitching staff this year.

Just to keep the records straight, I might let you know, Buck, that your acting manager, Del Baker, put none other than Tom Bridges in there to protect the Tigers' five-run lead in the eighth and ninth. He did. He looked a lot better than Schoolboy Rowe, your starting pitcher, who gave the Nats their five-run lead.

By the way, Buck, you'd better calm down with your voice out there in the Tigers' dugout. A few more incidents like yesterday with your boys winning the game after the umps sent you away, and the Detroit club owners might get an idea.

Very truly yours,

JUSTA PAL.

Rex A. C. Wins Pair.

Post Mortems . . .

Bobby Burke is probably wondering what a pitcher has to do to get a chance as a starter . . . the Nats have given him the assignment twice this season and he not only has gone the route both times but has been credited with victories . . . a sprained wrist did not handicap Frances Meany Scofield much in the National A. A. U. title swimming meet yesterday . . . she finished second to Dorothy Poynton in the diving event . . . Wes Ferrell, Cleveland pitcher, is having trouble turning in his 100th major league victory . . . he has tried and been charged with a defeat his last six starts . . . the Yankees handed him his last setback yesterday . . . the first delivery Johnny Campbell made in the majors was a strike . . . he made his debut with the Nats yesterday and the run coined while he was pitching was unearned . . . Gus Moreland, the Dallas youngster, shot a 72 yesterday prepping for the Western Amateur . . . it was his final warning that he is ready to defend his crown against all comers.

Dougan's Talk Fails to Cause Odds Shift

TWO against the world! Ralph Murdock comes out with a statement that he believes his charge, Leroy Dougan, will knock the ears off Charley Von Reedon tomorrow night in their 10-round bout at Twin City Arena. The other party harboring the same opinion is Dougan himself. Nevertheless, the odds remain unchanged. Von Reedon still is the favorite.

While Dougan has been verbosely describing just what changes he expects to make in Von Reedon's physical appearance, the quiet, unassuming Southerner was perfecting the attack which he hopes will batter the Arkansas Scotchman onto the canvas. Four rounds of boxing, followed by other routine work, concluded his heavy training for the bout.

Heavier than when he first encountered Dougan at the Laurel emporium of punch three weeks ago, and apparently stronger, Von Reedon figures to win by a more comfortable margin than he boasted in the first fight. If given the opportunity to punch Dougan as he did that first time, there will be enough power behind the blows to put Leroy on his back.

While the main-eventers were finishing their work, Roy Manley, the hard-punching southpaw who tangles with Ray Bowen in the 8-round semiwind-up, suffered a cut over his right eye. The injury will not interfere with his fighting, not unless Bowen goes to work on it.

Fourth Swim Title Won by Miss Kight

Like Miss Kight's victories in the 100-meter, the 440-yard and the mile there was not much to the half-mile in the way of competition. The Homestead brunette, her powerful strokes setting a rapid pace, opened up an early lead, and through the 16 laps steadily increased the margin. Miss Robertson, far behind the winner, was easily the better of the remainder of the field of seven.

As a climax to the colorful, four-day show, Eleanor Holm, national backstroke title holder, hung up two new marks in a time trial in her specialty. She created a new American record of 6:13 3-5 for 440 yards, a time which also lowered the world's mark of 6:16 4-5, made by Marie Brawn, of Holland, for 400 meters.

440-yard free style—Lenore Kight.
Mile—Lenore Kight.
*220-yard back stroke—Eleanor Holm, New York.
*300-meter medley—Katherine Rawls.
Platform dive—Dorothy Poynton, Los Angeles.

PROPOSALS

DEPARTMENT OF INTERIOR, WASHINGTON, July 20, 1933.—Sealed proposals, in duplicate, will be received by the Interior Department until 2 o'clock p. m., August 4, 1933, and then publicly opened for furnishing all labor, material and equipment necessary for the demolition and excavation required in connection with the removal of certain boiler plant equipment preparatory to the installation of new boiler plant equipment at the power plant, Saint Elizabeths Hospital, Washington, D. C. Bids will be considered only from individuals, firms or corporations possessing satisfactory financial and technical ability, equipment and organization to insure the speedy completion of the work. Drawings and specifications may be obtained upon application to the superintendent, Saint Elizabeths Hospital. While no deposit will be necessary, the return of the drawings within ten days after the opening of the bids will be required. The right is reserved to reject any or all bids, waive technical defects, accept any part and reject the other, as the interests of the Government may require. Proposals must be securely enveloped, marked "Proposals for demolition and excavation, power plant, St. Elizabeths Hospital," and be addressed to Secretary of Interior, Washington, D. C., to be opened in room 6119, Interior Department Building. OSCAR L. CHAPMAN, Assistant Secretary.

Two Drowned; Suicide Hint in Veteran Death

George C. De Young Said to Have Been Despondent Over Pension Cut.

The body of George C. De Young, 58, of Baltimore, Md., was discovered floating in the Tidal Basin yesterday by a passerby and identified by discharge papers from the Naval Hospital.

Roy B. Eslee, of the Motor Transportation Co., made the discovery and notified the Park Police. The body was removed to the District Morgue.

Despondent Over Cuts.

Friends of the dead veteran, who served in the French and Belgian forces as well as the United States Army during the World War, said that he had been despondent over reduction of his disability allowance. He was said to have made several suicide threats.

Papers found in his clothes indicated he was a member of a Washington Chapter of the Disabled American War Veterans. He was discharged from the Naval Hospital November 2, 1932, and was said to have been hospitalized at Hampton Roads, Va., recently.

Search for the body of Walter B. Stone, of 3829 Thirteenth street northwest, who was drowned late Saturday night while swimming in the Potomac River opposite Marshall Hall, was abandoned yesterday by District Harbor Police. Boats from the Virginia amusement park continued dragging the river.

Drowned off Yacht.

In the heat of the night Stone and a few companions had gone in the water for a swim about 10:30 from the yacht, Ernest D, on which they had come down the Potomac with a party of friends. The yacht is owned by Charles R. Slade, 303 Greenwood avenue, Takoma Park, Md. Slade was host at the boating party.

While the other swimmers stayed close to the boat, Stone swam around aft the yacht some distance away. Those on board the yacht, anxious that he not get too far away, called to him, warning him and urging him to return. They were barely able to see him in the water.

Alarmed when he did not start in, they threw life preservers into the water near him. The swimmers then started out toward him, but on reaching the spot where they had last seen him, they found him gone.

Date to Be Set Soon For Milk Price Probe

A tentative date for opening the Senate investigation of milk prices in the District is expected to be set this week at a conference attended by Senators King and McCarren and Elwood H. Seal, special counsel to the committee.

At least another month is expected to elapse before the committee accountants complete examination of the books of the milk distributors and of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association.

Man Goes for Ride; Beaten and Robbed

Suffering from serious injuries sustained Saturday night when attacked and robbed by two unidentified men on the Mount Vernon Highway, Lanly Steins, of Port Arthur, Tex., was taken to Gallinger Hospital yesterday after receiving first aid treatment at Emergency Hospital.

He told police he met his assailants near Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, shortly after 5 p. m., Saturday. They offered him a few drinks, he said, and it was then decided to drive along the Mount Vernon Highway.

Steins remembers little of what happened, he declared. He was found unconscious lying at the roadside by Allen Simmons, of the U. S. Public Buildings and Public Parks, who took him to the hospital. Steins said his new-found companions threw him from the automobile after he was attacked and robbed of $34.

Physicians said he suffered a possible fracture of the skull, a fractured nose and severe lacerations.

Watch Your Back Yard; Mare and Pony Missing

If a golden brown mare and a brown and white pony should chance to stroll into your yard during the next few days, get in touch with Alice Buck at 814 Fern place northwest—she lost them, or they lost her, maybe.

Anyway, the mare and the pony are missing and police have been asked to look for them, and until they are found it might be a good idea to keep all geraniums and such under cover.

Here It Is! First Melon Boat at Wharves

Members Mark Anniversary of Church Society

Mgr. Gavan held up the example of the Good Samaritan as the ideal and parallel of the work of Vincentians, whose principal activity is the visiting of the poor in their homes. He emphasized that love of God is only proven by true love of our neighbor.

The 400 members of the society received Holy Communion in a body. After the mass they assembled in the basement of the church, where breakfast was served by a committee headed by Allen Pope.

After a brief welcome by Mgr. Gavan, the first number was the reading by John H. Pellen, former president of the Particular Council, of a letter by Pope Pius XI addressed to all Vincentians in connection with the society's centenary.

This was followed by the reading of quarterly reports by parish conferences, giving expenditures, statistics of the number of families aided and other special works. Growth of the work of the society in Washington for the years 1912, 1922 and 1932 was shown. For each of these years (a) the number of conferences were, respectively, 16, 21 and 35; (b) the number of families relieved, 482, 396 and 1,065; and (c) expenditures for relief, $6,495.32, $8,752.01 and $43,847.43. These figures are mute testimony as to how the society has met the increased burden of relief brought about by the depression.

Following reports by conferences, brief remarks were made by the Rev. Eugene J. Connolly, of St. Peter's; the Rev. Louis C. Ott, S. J., of St. Aloysius, and former Senator Joseph E. Ransdell, of Louisiana.

The principal address was by Senator Patrick A. McCarran, of Nevada, who was introduced to the assembly by the presiding officer, George J. Cleary, president of the Particular Council, Society of St. Vincent de Paul of Washington.

Senator McCarran's Address.

Senator McCarran gave an inspiring account of the life of St. Vincent de Paul. He told of the humble birth of Vincent de Paul, who spent his boyhood as a shepherd in an obscure province in France. He related the trials of his life, his suffering as a galley slave captured by Barbary pirates, and later his wonderful work in organizing for care of the poor and the unfortunate. He emphasized that St. Vincent de Paul ever kept his own name obscure, performing all good works in the name of his Savior and Reedeemer. The senator closed with a plea for all good citizens to put more of the spirit of St. Vincent de Paul in their service to their country.

At the close of the meeting the Rev. Dr. Lawrence J. Shehan, assistant director of Catholic Charities for the District, told of the annual meeting of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul in New York October 1. Members from all over the United States will assemble at St. Patrick's Cathedral that morning, the sermon being given by Cardinal Hayes. In the evening noted speakers, including Alfred E. Smith, will give addresses. At least 100 delegates from Washington are expected to attend the New York meeting.

The special centenary committee, Cornelius Ford, chairman, which arranged the Washington centenary celebration, will promote attendance at the New York meeting, when the centenary for the whole United States will be celebrated.

Rush to Buy as Word Gets Around That Fruit Has Arrived.

Just as the sun began to peep over the horizon with its promise of another sizzler yesterday, the first watermelon boat of the season cut through the pungent atmosphere at the District fish wharf and made fast.

Two thousand melons for Washington's ice boxes bulged from every hatch and porthole. Even the forward deck of the doughty craft—The Shamrock—was heaped high with the juicy, bulky fruit.

The Shamrock—though not Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger—is a doughty craft. It had made a brave voyage around the Virginia Capes, all the way from Bogue Sound on the Carolina coast, to bring Washington its first big consignment of succulent red watermelon.

Word Gets Around.

George W. Carroll & Sons, commission merchants, were the consignees. Up to late last night the melons were being merrily bought by perspiring lovers of the fruit. It seems there is a watermelon "grapevine" that gets the word around about the first boat of the season.

Tinted by ocean squall and beating sun, the crew of three seemed right happy yesterday as they surveyed their trim craft and the tons of melons that made up its cargo.

Prices Drop Later.

George M. Hudson, son of the owner of a fleet of watermelon boats, is captain, Harry Self, sandy-haired man of the water, pilot, and Merlin Hayden, cook.

The melons, said Riley Carroll, of the consignee firm, will sell at 25, 35, 50 and 60 cents. Later on when the boats begin to come in thick and fast the price will drop, he said. Another of the Hudson boats is due shortly with more tons of watermelons.

Sixty hours were consumed in the watermelon voyage, which is something of an undertaking. Frequently the small, gas-powered boats are caught in serious squalls as they round the perilous capes and the men who bring the melons to Washington are real seamen.

Challenge in Post Flight Seen Here

Christians Must Run Risks as Great Aviator Did, Dr. Hutchinson Says.

"If we are to carry out as Christians the great commission left us by our Master we, too, must deny ourselves, run some risks and enter upon some great adventures just as Wiley Post did," stated Dr. Forney Hutchinson, preaching yesterday at the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Dr. Hutchinson chose as his topic "The Challenge of the Winnie Mae." He said in part.

"Last night Wiley Post landed in New York City after making his second flight around the world. It was a monumental achievement and will go down in the history of aviation."

"In the first place, it contains a challenge to heroic endeavor. Wiley Post denied himself, took a long chance and "lived dangerously" to promote aviation. His family also shared with him these sacrifices.

"In the beginning the Gospel of Jesus Christ was absolutely revolutionary. It 'turned the world upside down.' Multitudes paid the price of their devotion with martyrdom, but the cause prospered. The modern church is much more conservative. Her slogan seems to be 'Safety First.' She fears sacrifice and awaits results. She should be dynamic and revolutionary. The best moral equivalent for war that I know would be a modern crusade for righteousness."

Sister Overturns Pan, Scalding Younger Girl

Painfully scalded when a pan of boiling water overturned on her legs, Theresa Carragher, 13, of 1307 F street northeast, was taken to Casualty Hospital last night, and released after first aid treatment.

Her sister, Helen, 18, was carrying the water from a kitchen stove to a table. She collided with Theresa and dropped the pan. The child was taken to the hospital by her mother, Mrs. Margaret Carragher.

World Distress Held Stimulus To Christianity

"It can easily be seen that the present political and economic situation in the world is acting as a great stimulus among all of the peoples of the Christian faith in different parts of the world, to bind them together in a common cause to fight courageously for the maintenance and preservation of those standards of righteousness and truth and justice and mercy and love which are revealed in the Holy Scriptures," Dr. James H. Taylor said yesterday morning at the Central Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Taylor made a report on the fourteenth council of the Alliance of the Reformed Churches throughout the world holding the Presbyterian system. This alliance, organized in 1875, held its first meeting in Edinburgh in 1877. The meeting of the alliance is held every four years, alternately in Europe and America. The meeting this year was in Belfast, Ireland, June 20. There are two main sections in the alliance, the Western section, consisting of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches in the United States and Canada, and the Eastern section, which includes the churches in the British Isles and Europe. At Belfast there were representatives from Belgium, Holland, France, Germany, Ceylon, India, South Africa, Australia, the West Indies, Canada and the United States.

Dr. Taylor said:

Object Is Outlined.

"The object of this alliance is to emphasize the substantial unity of faith, discipline and worship among the churches holding the Presbyterian and Reformed faith; to exhibit this union; to secure a closer relationship between the widely scattered families of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churcnes and to consider the subjects common to all and especially to promote harmony of action in mission fields at home and abroad.

"In spite of the world-wide economic depression the attendance from the various countries was excellent.

"The condition of the churches on the European continent came in for special consideration. As was well said by one speaker, 'the Church must learn to be poor; the Church is poor again and poverty today becomes a great school of spiritual life. To be poor is not to be weak, for in spite of poverty the Church is making great progress.'"

Concerned Over Russia.

"Great concern was expressed for our Christian brethren in Russia. It was stated on good authority that more than 800,000 persons had been put to death in Russia; that hundreds of thousands had been exiled to Siberia because they would not surrender their faith in God. Great sympathy was evident on all sides for these Christians of various denominational affiliations that were suffering persecution for their faith in Christ.

"The Council also expressed sympathy and concern for the Jews in Germany. A most illuminating address was given by one of the German delegates, who spoke of the work of Christian missions among the Jewish people.

Take Up Communism.

"On all sides it was stated that the Church should accept the great wave of communism as a challenge and not as a fear. That the Gospel of Christ offered the real panacea for all our ills and if the Gospel was challenged it should be preached and lived, for as it was well said, there is no more convincing dogma than love in action.

"Many of the delegates reported on the economic condition of their countries and the effect of this condition upon the religious life of the people. The universal opinion was that this present material distress was bringing the people more and more to realize the spiritual values of life and to impress upon them the need and the satisfaction of religion in daily life.

"From this fourteenth Council of the Alliance of the Reformed and Presbyterian Churches has gone forth this summons to all Christendom to publish this faith which we believe alone can and will save the world."

Ida Kirk Will Attack Begun By Local Kin

Daughter of First Cousin Files Caveat Claiming Undue Influence.

The will of Ida Kirk in which the slain Chaptico, Md., spinster bequeathed $85,000 to friends is to be attacked by Alene Phillips, of Washington.

Acting on behalf of her 93-year-old mother, who is a first cousin of Mrs. Kirk, Miss Phillips has alleged that the will was made under undue influence, duress and while Mrs. Kirk was mentally incompetent. Mrs. Kirk was a descendant of W. W. Corcoran, founder of the Corcoran Gallery of Art.

Distribution Halted.

The distribution of the estate, which was scheduled for today, has been temporarily halted by caveat proceedings. Attorneys Lawrence J. Heller and William Z. Jemison filed the caveat on Saturday in the St. Marys County courthouse.

Miss Phillips is the legal guardian of her mother, who is in a California sanitarium. Her mother, according to the attorneys, is the closest relative of Mrs. Kirk, and if the will is broken, she will be the sole heir. The caveat automatically suspends the distribution of the bequests by State's Attorneys John H. T. Briscoe, of St. Marys County, the executor of the will.

Relatives Overlooked.

All of the legatees of the will were friends of Mrs. Kirk. None of her relatives received any bequests. State's Attorney Briscoe would receive $5,000 under the will.

The other large bequest is $5,000 to Mrs. Elva Gibson, who was in the automobile when a bomb exploded killing Mrs. Kirk. The slaying took place near Leonardtown on January 7, while Mrs. Kirk was en route to Washington.

Her murderer was never caught.

Navy Band to Play In Festival Series

Well-Known Singer Likely to Appear Thursday in Sylvan Program.

Arrangements will be completed today for the seventh program in the summer festival series in Sylvan Theater Monday at 8 p. m. The United States Navy Band, conducted by Lieut. Charles Benter, will be heard in its annual festival concert at the Sylvan Theater under the joint direction of the Community Center Department and the Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks. It is expected that a vocal soloist, well known in Washington, will appear with the band, in addition to the instrumental soloists.

August festival programs will all take place Wednesday evenings beginning with August 2, when "The Mikado" will be presented by the Estelle Wentworth Opera Group. August 9 the Army Band festival concert, with featured soloists, will be heard; August 16, Washington's juvenile night, when groups representing Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Neighborhood House, Friendship House, Playgrounds, Girl Reserves, Salvation Army Scouts, Boys Club and other organizations will appear in a specially arranged program; August 23, international music night, and August 30, "H. M. S. Pinafore."

Model Home Lure For Many Visitors

Line-Up Assembled Outside Even Before Doors Are Opened.

Real estate circles and home-loving Washington were given a new sensation yesterday when the latest Washington Post model home, at 4604 Nottingham drive, in Chevy Chase, Md., was formally opened for the inspection of the public.

Despite the heat, a large group of persons assembled to go through the dwelling, even before its doors were opened.

All through the afternoon and evening a steady queue passed through the house, admiring its convenient arrangement, solid construction and the beauty of its furnishings. The residence, sponsored by The Washington Post, presented by Boss & Phelps, built by A. T. Newbold and furnished by Hutchison's, Inc., will be open for inspection daily until 9 p. m.

To inspect it, drive out Connecticut avenue to Bradley lane, then west to Wisconsin avenue and south to Nottingham drive, or out Wisconsin avenue to Nottingham drive, the first street south of Bradley lane.

Sleeping Potion Blamed in Death

Magruder Orders Quiz as Mrs. K. O. Whitehorne Dies at Home.

An overdose of sleeping potion was believed to have caused the death of Mrs. Kate O. Whitehorne yesterday, in her apartment at 713 Nineteenth street northwest. She was pronounced dead by a physician.

Although it is believed Mrs. Whitehorne accidentally swallowed the potion, Acting Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald ordered her body removed to the District Morgue pending an investigation.

Man Hurt Leaping From Car.

Addie Gray, 39, colored World War veteran, of Oakville, Md., was probably fatally injured yesterday when he leaped from a moving automobile and fell in the path of an oncoming car. He suffered a fractured skull, fractured left leg and severe lacerations.

Parade Will Open Church Carnival

"Open Door Thief" Walks in, Takes Purse

"The open-door sneak thief," who has recently invaded several apartments and houses in the Northwest section, last night entered the home of Miss Theodora Grith, 921 Nineteenth street northwest, and calmly walked out with her pocketbook containing more than $5.

The intruder, who apparently picks only unlatched doors to gain entrance, was also believed to have victimized Mrs. Lester Shafer, of 1311 Nineteenth street northwest, Saturday night. Police were told that $30 in cash was missing.

'Missing Link' Movie Shown To Geologists

The "missing link" has bobbed up in the Himalayan Mountains.

Hellmut de Terra, of Yale University, in describing an expedition of exploration into the highest mountains to members of the International Geological Congress at the Shoreham Hotel yesterday, told of this discovery.

He said that remains of two species of "primates" closely related to prehistoric man had been discovered during the exploration. He added that possibly the find was the "missing link" which would bridge the gap in the supposed evolution of man.

De Terra's lecture was illustrated by motion pictures, which showed both the vast beauty of the Himalaya Mountains and customs of strange inhabitants.

The play, a weird intermixture of drama, dance and pageant, performed by priests in grotesque masks, is several thousand years old, De Terra declared.

Today the congress will resume its sessions at the United States Chamber of Commerce with the reading of several papers concerning prehistoric men scheduled for the morning hours.

Catholic Men Plan Program For Feast Day

Holy Name Union Sponsors Great Demonstration Here on Oct. 29.

Plans for a colorful archdiocesan celebration of the feast of Jesus Christ, King of the World, were formulated by officers and members of the Washington Section, Union of Holy Name Societies, at their quarterly meeting yesterday in the new Church of the Assumption, Congress Heights.

Pleading for a religious demonstration to surpass all previous observances of the Holy Name Societies in Washington, John F. McCarron, former archdiocesan president of the Holy Name Union, urged on the assemblage determination to make October 29, the feast of Christ the King, a memorable date in Catholic history.

William Joseph Neale, president of the Washington Section, appointed Frank P. Gunning as chairman of the general committee in charge of the prospective event. John Hadley Doyle was named chairman of the publicity committee; Brig. Gen. Michael J. Lenihan, chief marshal, and Col. William L. Peake, first assistant marshal.

Procession on Program.

The demonstration will include a Holy Name procession through the grounds of the Catholic University and the other religious institutions of Brookland. Each parish in the city will appoint one vice chairman of the general committee.

The Rev. Francis X. Cavanagh, rector of the Church of the Assumption, delivered the address of welcome to the delegates.

Resolutions condemning the broadcasting of programs that tend to arouse religious intolerance were presented by Cornelius Ford, representing Holy Comforter parish.

Benediction Ends Meeting.

Following the meeting, Father Cavanagh invited the Holy Name men to his new church, where benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was given.

An outstanding feature of the speakers' program was an address by Caesar L. Aiello, recently elected president of the Archdiocesan Union of Holy Name Societies.

Meters Asked For Taxis in Recovery Code

People's Council Prepares to Fight Move to Abolish Zones.

Abolition of zone rates and installation of meters on the District's 3,200 taxicabs is asked in a code which is ready for submission to the National Industrial Recovery Administration.

The code has been prepared by Harry C. Davis, president of the Independent Taxicabs Owners Association, which operates 1,200 Diamond cabs in the District.

To Fight Move.

The application for adoption of the code for District taxicabs has been drafted by Alfred P. Smith, attorney for the association. Representatives of Washington Taxicab operators yesterday conferred with Malcom Muir, Deputy administrator of the recovery administration.

It is understood that People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech is preparing to fight the move for abolition of the zones and the inauguration of meter rates.

Under the proposed code, it is understood, the rates would be 25 cents for the first 2 miles or any fraction thereof, and 5 cents for each additional third of a mile.

In the opinion of Mr. Smith, the proposed code, calling for meter rates, would come within the scope of the recovery act. "It will enable taxicab operators to make a decent living," he said.

Motorboat Flywheel Cuts Off Man's Toe

He was taken to the Leonardtown (Md.) Hospital and released after treatment.

Woman Roomer Found Dead of Heart Attack

Mrs. Emma Fitzpatrick, 65, a roomer at 2207 A street southeast, was found dead in her room yesterday, apparently the victim of a heart attack. A certificate of death by natural causes was issued by Acting Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald. She had been in ill health for some time. A daughter of the dead woman, Mrs. M. C. Handwork, lives in Honolulu, T. H.

Canoe Capsizes, 2 Pulled From Basin

Perhaps it was just a way to cool off. But the fire rescue squad and screeching police cars hurried to the Tidal Basin late yesterday, on the report that two men had capsized in a canoe.

The emergency vehicles arrived to find both men, W. T. Black, 27, and Paul Shoemaker, 24, both of 423 Eleventh street southwest, siting on the bank, very wet, but none the worse for their ducking.

Their frail craft upset in the center of the Basin, and as they sank beneath the water, a motorboat from the Public Buildings and Public Parks boathouse, put out to the rescue. The youths were pulled safely aboard by Americo W. Luistro, a boathouse employe.

Guild Seeks Play By Washingtonian

Production of at least one play by a native Washingtonian is the aim of the Drama Guild, which is developing plans rapidly for the 1933-34 season opening in November. Authors have been invited to submit manuscripts to be considered for production.

Denis E. Connell is chairman of the guild's administrative council and plays should be addressed to him. He will turn them over to the play-reading committee, of which DeWitt C. Croissant is chairman and Mrs. Alfred H. Brooks, Miss Dorothy Croissant, Miss Frances Herriott, Mrs. Isabel S. Farrington, Mrs. Ruth Harsha McKenzie and Paul Walter are members.

A play writing contest also will be conducted during the season. Only one-act pieces will be accepted. The rules will be announced soon by Mrs. W. J. Peters.
